teacher nded, pinched

art Slawson

A sixth grade teacher at Thompson Middle School was suspended Monday after being accused of pinching two sixth graders' noses, causing them bleed.

Helen Davison, a 10-year veteran social studies teacher was suspended in connection with case, according to TMS principal Mary Roach.

Her case will be heard by school superintendent Charles Knowles to determine if she will be paid during suspension.

Knowles will also decide if any further action is necessary, said Verner Davis, deputy superintendent.

Roach refused to identify the students involved because of their ages.

The incident occurred Thursday afternoon, during fifth period. Davison reportedly grabbed the two boys by their noses and pinched them hard, causing them to bleed. The boys went to the bathroom and washed their faces, Roach said. No other treatment was required.

Roach refused to say what provoked the pinching or what happened afterward. She would only say the Shelby County Board of Education is investigating the matter also.

Davis visited Thompson Middle School Monday. Davis is conducting the school board's probe of the incident.

The Reporter received a telephone tip Monday concerning the incident. The caller said the teacher twisted the noses to make them bleed.

Helping hands

100-year-old woman found tangled in vines

by Bert Seaman

A Wilton woman who likes to fish doesn't see any reason to stop just because she's 100 years old.

But during a fishing excursion last Wednesday, Maggie Spencer got tangled up in a potentially serious problem that launched a five-hour search for her, and had a lot of people concerned.

Around noon that day, Wilton resident Rodney Hall saw Spencer walking along a road leading to the woods carrying her fishing pole.

He tried to persuade her to return home, but Spencer apparently had her mind made up to go fishing.

The real concern started about 4:00 that afternoon when Hall found the elderly woman's fishing pole lying on the road.

He contacted Wilton Police Chief J.O. Page, and with the help of Spencer's neighbors, a search was launched.

When they were unable to find her, Page called for further assistance.

Among the volunteers who turned out to scour the woods for the missing woman, were members of the Montevallo Fire Department, Rescue Squad and Police Department.

Members of the Shelco rescue unit also assisted in the search along with other volunteers from Wilton and Montevallo.

It was nearly 10 p.m. when Spencer was found by a search party consisting of two Montevallo firemen, Ray Argo and Glen Stewart, and Wilton residents Reginald Brown and Mike Johnson.

She had been tangled in vines, but was apparently okay.

Her only complaint was that she was thirsty, and sore under one arm.

According to the Wilton Police Chief and others on the scene, Spencer had disappeared in the same area about ten years ago.

"Only that time it was mighty cold," Page remembered.

After she was examined by the Montevallo Rescue squad, neighbors took Spencer home.

There was no report on her success with the fishing that day.

Wrecks claim two lives

Two accidents claimed the lives of a Shelby County High School senior and a Calera man early this week. Both accidents involved drivers losing control of their car.

Patricia Vickrey, 17, of Wilsonville was driving to school Tuesday morning on Highway 25 at about 8 a.m. with her brother Billy Wayne Vickrey, 18, when she lost control of the car and hit a bridge, said Shelby County Coroner Billy Thompson.

The accident happened about halfway between Columbiana and Wilsonville. Billy Wayne Vickrey was taken to Shelby Medical Center where he underwent emergency treatment for most of Tuesday, said hospital officials. He was listed in serious condition.

On Monday Roland Edward Martin, 57, of Calera was driving toward Columbiana at about 1 p.m. on Highway 30 when his car left the road and hit a tree.

Martin was pronounced dead at Brookwood Medical Center at 8:17 p.m.

Beat 13 rejects zoning

by Bart Slawson

Voters in north central Shelby County' Beat 13 rejected zoning for their area by a vote of 56 to 35 April 30, leaving the area wide open for any land use.

Had zoning passed, Beat 13 would have been the second rural area to adopt zoning in Shelby County.

Horizon 280 Association, business leaders dedicated to preserving the integrity of the 280 corridor, had promoted zoning by having a meeting at Lloyd's Restaurant and explaining the value of zoning in the area.

Zoning ordinances state that when 25 property owners in a beat sign a petition for a zoning election, the Planning Commission draws up a proposed map and the owners vote on it.

The petition was circulated and signed and on March 28, Probate Judge Tommy Snowden called the election.

But at the public hearing on the issue April 18, several property owners voiced vigorous objections to the map unless their property was zoned their way.

The debate over controlled growth gave way to "the politics of appeasement" as one commissioner put it. Before the three-hour meeting was over, each person left with their property zoned their way.

Leo Karpeles, general manager of Inverness and president of Horizon 280 Assocation, said the problem was a misunderstanding.

"I am extremely disappointed at the outcome of the election. Being a landowner in that area and a developer along the Highway 280 corridor, we feel in order to develop the corridor in commercial and office and institutional (uses), there needs to be zoning.

"We would hate to see any industrial development along the frontage. We'd like to see some control by the county to assure the use is consistent.

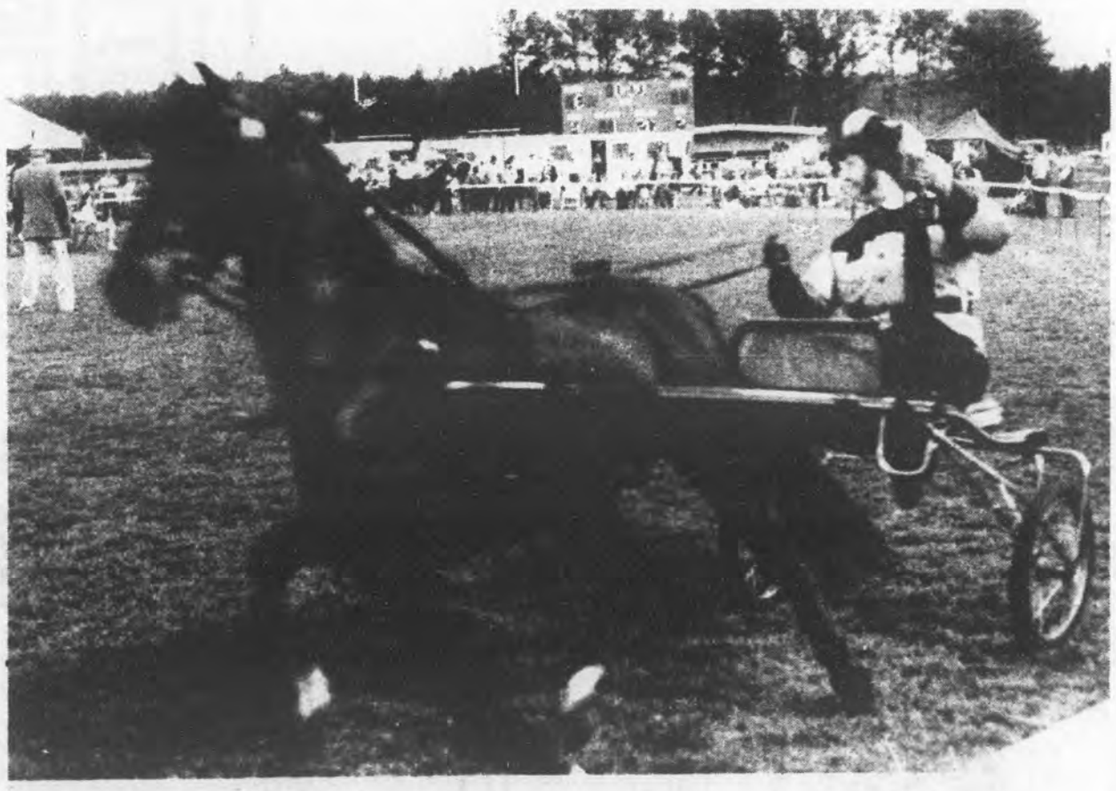

"I think it was voted down due to a misunderstanding by the landowners of what we were trying to do. Only through zoning can they preserve the value of their property," Karpeles said.

Frank Kovach, president of Kovach and Associates, developer of Cahaba Park South and a member of Horizon 280 said he didn't expect a rejection.

"I'm really sort of surprised. I felt it would pass after going to the meeting. I felt like they appeased most of the people. I think zoning is an excellent idea. It's certainly preferable to no planning. It (zoning rejection) won't affect our plans because we acquired enough frontage to control our surroundings.

"If the commission had notified the property owners and explained it, it would have probably passed. I think people are tired of having government shoved down their throats. They had little chance for input except that one surprise meeting," he concluded.

"I think preserving the natural environment down there is a worthy cause. And besides, if I don't build something that looks good, I can't rent it. You've got to use land wisely," he said.

City leads Attention Home list

Recreation center may solve juvenile problem in Columbiana

by Bert Seaman

A suggestion that the city apply for a grant to build a recreation complex could be an answer to the mounting juvenile problem in Columbiana.

At least that's how Judy Gilbert sees it.

The counselor for Shelby Youth Services and the Attention Home spoke to council members at their last meeting.

Her message was a grim one in regard to the city's standing in the number of young people referred to Shelby Youth Services and the Attention Home this quarter.

"Eight new referrals have been made since April 1, putting Columbiana at the top of the list," Gilbert told a dismayed council.

Later in the meeting when Councilwoman Jessie Jones discussed grant applications, she asked if the city wanted to apply for one in the area of recreation.

Speaking out in favor of the proposal, Gilbert said one of the reasons so many young people in Columbiana are getting in trouble is the lack of recreational facilities.

In her report on the number of young people Shelby Youth Services and the Attention Home are serving and the geographical breakdown, Gilbert said the total for Feb. 1982-83 was 404.

Of that number, 24 from Columbiana received help from Shelby Youth Services, 10 were at the Attention Home and 16 cases had been continued from the previous year.

Pointing out that there is no other place in the county to send troubled young people, Gilbert said the agencies are in danger of folding.

Already $10,000 short of meeting this year's budget, SYS and A Home will be losing nearly $40,000 in federal funding next year.

The total budget for both agencies is a little over $86,000.

Gilbert urged the council to continue the support they gave last year ($1,000) and double it if possible.

"We should support them any way we can," declared Police Chief Howell Horn.

"It's up to the people," he continued. "If they go now - we're gone," the police chief declared!

The council indicated their support for both the agencies and trying to get a grant for recreational facilities in the city.

Settlers' day

Settlers Day dedicated to paying off pledge

The Vincent Study Club has big plans for its tenth annual Settlers Day, Saturday, May 7.

The event, which will include booths for arts and crafts, the sale of homemade baked goods, and a gathering of old friends, will be dedicated to paying off a $1,000 pledge of support to the BMC East Shelby Medical Clinic.

The Study Club was formed in 1925 and has served the Town of Vincent for 58 years.

In the past, the club has used its funds to sponsor the first library and lunchroom at Vincent High School, to plant trees and shrubs throughout the town and to provide interest centers in the city library.

Recently the club donated $200 toward the cleaning of damaged carpet in the library after the roof leaked.

Keeping Settlers Day an inexpensive event, the price of booth space has not changed in five years. It remains five dollars per space.

Carolyn Hassett is president of the Vincent Study Club, Virginia Lambert is treasurer, Sue Robertson is vice president, and Letta Elliott is secretary.

Vandiver holds election

Residents of Vandiver are urged to attend a community election on Tuesday, May 10.

Five terms are expiring on the ten-member board of trustees for the Vandiver Community Center and volunteer fire department. Also up for a vote are the officers for the organization.

According to one present trustee/officer, Pat Brasher, it's time to get some new input to the board from some different individuals.

"We're looking for some new blood," she told the Reporter. "We want to get more people involved in community affairs."

Brasher said she hopes the voting will break away from the tradition of combining officers and trustees, thus allowing more input.

The election will be held during the regular board meeting, and other topics will be discussed, such as committee appointments and ironing out lines of communications.

Currently, the community officers are: president Richard Karrasch, vice president Dorman Lynn, treasurer Alice Ellison, recording secretary Cliff Brasher, and secretary Pat Brasher.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. at the Vandiver Community Center.

The Shelby County Board of Education will hold a public hearing on the 1983-84 budget on May 24.

Citizens who would like to express their feelings on budget priorities will be allowed up to ten minutes to speak (depending on the number of requests).

The board would like to have a written copy of whatever remarks are made.

Anyone wishing to speak should call the board's administrative office at 669-3149.

Calera sidesteps hot issues

by Fred Guarino

There were no fireworks at Calera City Council meeting Monday night.

But a major reason for the first calm in months was that the council sidestepped action on two ongoing hot issues:

•The resumption of fire and rescue protection out to the police juristiction limits was not brought up -- at least by the council.

•A repeal was sought for a controversial park board ordinance, but it too was tabled.

The topic of fire/rescue service to the jurisdiction signs was brought up at the end of the meeting by Hugh Morrision of the Calera Rescue Squad.

He inquired if maybe he had "missed something" because he had not heard the issue discussed.

However, Councilman Jeff Pilgreen took the city off the hook when he said the matter was not out of committee.

Although Fire Chief James Miles mentioned the matter when he reported the city's insurance rating has improved to a 5, he did not seek action.

Negotiation of rescue service back out to the jurisdiction bounds was a point the council promised when rescue volunteers agreed to end a walk out.

The item was also of concern to the fire department.

Some firemen had previously indicated they might quit if they were not allowed to respond to fires at their own homes outside the city.

Monday night Mayor Carl Prichard tried to repeal the park board ordinance which was passed earlier in the spring while he was out of town. The ordinance had been pushed through by former Councilman LeSueur.

Prichard said Monday that the wording of the ordinance gave the park board indpendent control of buildings, land and equipment, as well as the authority to seek funds independently, hire personnel and set salaries.

LeSueur had argued all along that the ordinance was identical to state law.

Prichard now proposes to replace the ordinance with one that allows the park board only to make recommendations for use of land, equipment, etc. to the city.

The mayor's ordinance would also stipulate that the board seek funds through the city.

However, Councilman Larry Farris moved that the matter be tabled until the next meeting. Councilman Mark Jones seconded the motion "as a courtsey" so that park board members might know what is happening.

The motion passed over Prichard's and Pilgreen's opposition.

In actions taken:

•The city rejected a low bid from Cahaba Tractor for a new bush hog and approved the next low bid from Austin Auto Parts. Cahaba Tractor failed to meet specifications.

•Mayor Prichard recommended that no action be taken against Central Shelby Ambulance Service until it is determined if previous service will be restored.

•The rescue squad was granted permission to see if a 100-watt booster will improve radio communications with Shelby Medical Center. The booster will cost $250, if successful, and will be pulled out at no cost to the city if it fails.

•The council approved the closing of 18th Avenue so that a new apartment complex could be constructed.

•Judy Gilbert reported that no LEPA funds would be coming to Shelby Youth Services and Attention Home in the future. Therefore, she requested a city contribution increase from $500 to $1,000 for the next budget year.

She said that increased telephone and insurance rates have put both services in the "red".

Train hits auto at Chelsea crossing

Two Chelsea students escaped with only minor injuries when their car was struck by a train last week.

Tim Johnson, 17, said he didn't see the train coming as he drove over the crossing on Hwy. 47 on his way to school around noon Wednesday.

The L&N engine hit the rear end of Johnson's car, throwing it down the steep embankment beside the tracks.

Tony Johnson, the driver's 12 year old cousin was a passenger in the car.

Both boys were taken to Brookwood Hospital, treated and released.

Helena debates zoning dates

The Helena Council didn't agree with Jim Kwater on the matter of setting their own dates for public hearings on rezoning.

It was Kwater's contention that council members were sometimes absent on the appointed date. He also claimed there wasn't sufficient time to look at the property and make an assessment.

But Mayor Sonny Penhale took up for the property owners. "People don't want to wait more than six weeks for a decision," he told Kwater, "You'd be making them pay so it could fit your schedule."

When Kwater mentioned that residents of the town didn't know about an area being rezoned until after it had been done, Councilman C.W. Fulgham said neighboring property owners were always notified.

"Others might be interested because it could set a precedent," Kwater answered.

However, no one on the council wanted to prolong holding the public hearings, and Kwater's motion died for lack of a second.

At the present time the notice of a public hearing is advertised for 15 days and there are two public hearings following the recommendation from the planning commission.

With Kwater casting the only negative vote, the council approved Ophelia Parker's request to rezone a lot in Liberty Heights from R-3 to B-1.

It was reported that Parker asked for the rezoning so she could put a game room for youngsters in a building on that property.

Building inspector Gary Carter said the structure didn't meet the Southern Building Code's standard for a commercial establishment and would need a variance.

Kwater felt that should be done before the council approved Parker's request. But Fulgham moved for the rezoning, saying, "if a variance has to be made, we'll look at it then."

The council also approved Lane Clayton's request to divide a piece of property he owns into two lots, providing he put in pipe adequate to handle the water in a drainage ditch bordering one lot.

Kwater abstained when the vote was taken.

Another request concerning property was tabled to give the council time to look at the location.

There was also some question about whether the sale of the lot by Betty Cox would be considered subdividing the property.

But there was no uncertainty about the buyers putting a modular home there, according to the Mayor.

He reminded the council that the city had taken the case of a modular home located in a subdivision all the way to the State Supreme Court.

Penhale said the Supreme Court ruling allowed that type of structure.

After looking at a new plan the developer had submitted for Brookline Mobile Home Park, the council decided it should be sent to the planning commission for review.

Pelham says no to stop signs

The Pelham Council felt that stop signs at the intersection of Chippewa Lane and Indian Hills Road could create a hazardous situation.

So the request presented by residents at the previous meeting was turned down Monday night.

Parents who were worried about cars driving too fast in that area, wanted three way stop signs put up along with 25 mph speed limit signs and "children at play" warning signs.

Police Chief Dave Watson pointed out that the purpose of stop signs is not to slow traffic.

The council did agree at the last meeting, to have the other types of signs erected.

Since city fines haven't been reviewed since 1981, Mayor Burk Dunaway asked Councilmen John Tanner and Willard Payne to review the fine schedule.

They are to report their recommendations at the next meeting.

Tanner brought up the matter of phone service in Pelham, pointing out the city doesn't have the type of services as other areas of the county.

Noting that Alabaster and Helena are in the same boat, Tanner suggested all three councils pass resolutions asking South Central Bell to provide the more sophisticated services.

The council unanimously approved the proposal.

After Tanner mentioned a reported sewerage problem in Chandalar, the council agreed the matter should be referred to the Shelby County Health Department.

In other business, the Mayor read a proclamation designating May 8-14 Municipal Clerk's Week.

Historical Society seeks museum grant

Federal grant money could mean the attainment of the Shelby County Historical Society's goal of restoring the 1854 courthouse in Columbiana.

Because funding has been scarce, the society has been plodding along in their effort to get the building in shape to house a museum.

But the announcement of a $100,000 matching grant at Sunday's meeting may speed up the project considerably.

Their vote to apply for the money means that the society will have to raise $50,000 since the grant is given on a 50-50 basis.

Dr. Jessie Butler Jones of Columbiana has agreed to be chairman of the fund raising drive which will be conducted this summer.

She has already received the support of the Shelby County Board of Education. At their last meeting, the board agreed to allow students to donate to the project (a dime per student was suggested).

Other potential donors who will be contacted include: government, service clubs, professional personnel, voters and business and industry.

In her capacity as Chairman of the Federal Projects Committee on the Columbiana Council, Jones learned of the grant money for historic preservation.

The new money available through the Alabama Historical Commission, was the result of President Reagan signing the Emergency Jobs Bill.

Bob House from the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission worked with society leadership in preparing the grant application.

He also secured the Shelby County Commission's approval to apply for the grant. (The commission has to approve legal matters concerning the old courthouse).

The objectives in the courthouse restoration listed on the grant application are: 1. To house the administrative office of the Shelby County Historical Society. 2. To provide permanent and centralized display of the county archives. 3. To house the court records of the county prior to 1850. 4. To permanently display Shelby County art, artifacts, documents, photographs and memorabilia.

5. To provide galleries for current exhibitions at the county, state and national levels. 6. To provide a multipurpose room for the public to hold conferences, workshops, seminars and activities. 7. To provide a commercial outlet for museum related items, works of art and arts and crafts on consignment from Shelby County residents.

8. To provide a kitchen and serving room for the society and the public for holding receptions and other fellowship functions. 9. To provide a secure place for the Edmund-Law-Harrison Museum, the largest collection of memorabilia outside of Mount Vernon, from the family of George Washington. (Currently housed at the Shelby County Library.)

Airport expansion stalls

There will be no money for expansion of the Shelby County airport this year.

Inaction by the county commission Monday morning allowed $200,000 in federal funds to go by the board.

In a special meeting, County Airport Representative Bill Tucker told commissioners that formation of an airport authority could be delayed.

But he said unless he received approval for an environmental assessment study that afternoon, 1983 federal money held for Shelby County would be lost.

The money, which could have be used for partial land purchase, would have come from a special FAA fund for reliever airports.

The study would have been the first step toward improvement of the airport with application for the federal dollars following close behind.

However, the county commission hesitated and then stopped cold on the airport expansion when it learned that it would not receive federal funds until it paid for the assessment study first.

Commissioner Harold Davenport was concerned that once the $200,000 was received the county would be committed to go all the way on a project that could cost one million dollars.

He emphasised that even a 90-10 grant on one million would commit the county to spend $100,000.

When Tucker said he could get the county a loan for the study, Davenport said, "Cash flow is one problem.

"We don't know if we can get through '83. It is easy enough to vote to spend but it is sometimes difficult to get money.

Commissioner John Ames stated that if the county was committed to forming an airport authority that was no point in the commission taking piecemeal steps on airport expansion.

He said, "The airport authority should present the whole picture. We could apply for funds next year."

Commissioner Leon Archer said that he had mixed emotions about airport expansion but that he agreed that an airport authority should be formed first.

With no action taken by the commission, airport expansion plans evaporated for this year and Tucker quietly left the meeting.

Aseans eye world market sales

by Marcia M. Sears

The First impression one gets in the Asean countries is of industry, commerce, and a hard working population.

On closer examination, one finds that the truth exceeds the first impression.

In fact, the people of the five Southeast Asian countries that make up Asean seem to be spending their days and nights figuring out products to make and sell to the United States and the rest of the world.

Although their leaders said they were suffering from the worldwide recession, it was not apparent to the 19 American publishers and editors with whom we toured the area in late March.

Construction was going on everywhere: new hotels, skyscrapers for business headquarters, housing projects, factories.

In Manila and Bangkok, city streets were jammed with vehicles while new transportation routes were being built. In Bangkok the joke goes that Vietnam can never conquer Thailand because the army couldn't get through the traffic.

Singapore's skyline abounds with high rises. Its new Changi Airport is so efficient, luggage is awaiting passengers less than 10 minutes after their plane lands.

Its port now handles more tonnage than any port in the world except Rotterdam. Its turnaround time for servicing freighters is the fastest in the world.

International corporations are planning or building new headquarters in Kuala Lumpur, the capital of Malaysia, to be where the action is in rubber, palm oil, timber, tin, and new oil exploration fields.

Indonesia, rich in natural resources, and with one of the world's biggest populations-per-square-mile, is building its capacity carefully to manufacture items the world needs.

Government policies encourage education and business, and the private sector rewards hard work. The result is the great majority of the people of these countries are industrious and interested in providing foods and services that meet high worldwide standards. Governments subsidize college students to study in universities throughout the world, especially the United States. (Several Malaysians are at the University of Montevallo, for instance.)

They all look to the United States as the great consumer center of the world, and expect to increase their exports of finished goods to the U.S. Their entrepreneurs are always alert to new products they can make more cheaply than American workers.

Salaries in these countries are much lower than in the U.S. as is well known, and the six-day workweek is common. To the casual observer, the workers seem to be much more industrious than the typical American.

Asean was formed in 1965 to encourage trade among the five countries, similar to the European Economic Community. But because they raise many of the same agricultural products, they do not need to buy much from one another, and indeed often compete for the same foreign markets.

Some say Asean has accomplished more as a political than an economic alliance. Their interests lie in keeping power balanced between the Russians, the Chinese, and the U.S. so that none of the three major powers gain the upper hand in Southeast Asia.

They side with Thailand against the Russian-financed Vietnamese, yet they resist overtures from the People's Republic of China. It's a difficult act in this part of the world, yet they hope that trade and commerce will create such mutual interdependence among all the nations, that political aggressiveness will subside.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

A letter in the mail from Ehney Addison Camp and some Zeroxed copies from an old note book kept by Beston Robertson at Shelby County High School 60 years ago.

If you remember hightop shoes and leggins and ten cents a pound coffee and steak you could eat and all you could eat for less than a quarter and 25 cent gasoline and three vegetables and a drink and a desert for a quarter and the Perils of Pauline and Tom Mix and dusty streets and muddy sidewalks and log fires and houses with unlocked doors and streets you could walk down at night, you'll get a bang out of this. If you don't remember it, turn on the radio and get some way-out music and pretend Skillet didn't work this week.

County may change computers

The Shelby County Commission may ditch its present computer systems for a new one.

In a special meeting Monday, commissioners voted to receive bids at 10 a.m., May 16, for an on-line minicomputer system to handle all departments.

Specifications will also provide for the possibility of the county tax assessor opting for a link to the state's computer. That would reduce the amount of equipment or programming needed.

The seeking of bids was approved only after department heads indicated minicomputers would suit their needs.

Present for the meeting were administrative assistant Myra Davis; chief probate clerk Pat Sewell; Carol Shubert, who will operate the new Pelham branch; county engineer Gary Ray; Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds; and Tax Collector Annette Skinner.

They reported that the present system takes a "computer person" to operate. Also, 85% of the current system is strictly used for the tax assessor's office.

The new system can reportedly be operated by anyone and will provide instantaneous update ability concerning transactions.

According to Charles Smith of S & W Minicomputers, putting everyone on-line on the present system would be a lot more than just upgrading. He said, "You are talking about some more money."

An earlier price quoted by Smith for an entire 33 terminal minicomputer system was only about $40,000 more than the yearly cost of the present one.

However, the county will now seek bids on a system which includes 45 terminals.

The date to accept bids was set to make delivery in time for the July 1 opening of the Pelham branch.

There will be no special meeting but Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden will open and read bids into a tape recorder.

Information will be forwarded to county commissioners for action at the next regular meeting, May 23.

With an understanding that all bids may be rejected, the county will seek an outright purchase price and a five year lease purchase price.

A no appropriations clause will also be included in specifications sent to venders.

If the new system is secured, the data processing office in the Columbiana Courthouse will be reduced to one person.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden reported that the sale of current equipment and cancellation of lease payments still owed will leave the county in a break-even situation.

Money talks in educational improvement

Letter to the Editor:

In reply to Debra Howard's letter, (April 21 issue) I would like to thank her for writing. At least, Mrs. Howard, you haven't been stricken by apathy as so many have. (Everyone remembers the Great Apathy Epidemic that swept the country -- why there are still numerous cases being reported right here in Shelby County.)

But now, let's get our facts straight. First, I work the night-shift (11 p.m.-7 a.m.). When I volunteer to be a homeroom mother or substitute for a teacher, I am giving up some of my sleep time. I do so willingly because I chose to be a room mother. Also, I have worked with the same company for thirteen years, so if you're interested, just fill out a job application. Also, we're not talking exorbitant salaries here, people.

A teacher with a BS or four years of college will live on a salary of $15,120 the 1st year and a teacher with a Master's degree will live on $17,412 the 1st year. A Master's degree requires six years of college. So, you say, a lot of people make less than $17,000 a year. But do they have 4-6 years of college?

Your statement about children being penalized for not having attended kindergarten is inadequate. All first graders (countywide) take a readiness test and that test result is used to place the child in the correct level for suitable learning.

The test result and not the teacher decides the level of comprehension. I agree that it is unfair for some children to attend public kindergarten while others are not chosen in the lottery. Indeed, my daughter is in this May's toss up.

In Mississippi, they have completely solved the problem, and NO child attends public kindergarten. The lack of funds for kindergarten rests with the state officials and not the local school districts.

Of course, since all mothers spend quality time with their children, I am sure that the children are absorbing most of what they would be getting in kindergarten or at least their mothers are working with their children on the alphabet and numbers. The state is the culprit in this case and not Thompson Elementary as you imply.

As to weeding out the incompetent teachers, any suggestions? We could use the method they used in Salem, Mass. We could tie a rope to each teacher, then hand them a 60 pound rock, then toss them into the Cahaba River. All the teachers that don't drown are the competent ones. Or we could re-test the teachers that are now teaching, but that would cost money and Heaven forbid that our taxes should go up to improve the schools. Everyone complains about the sorry state of our education system, but Nobody is willing to finance the effort to upgrade the system. It is all so easy to sling mud but difficult to offer constructive solutions.

If the pay scale for our teachers is not upgraded, the good teachers we have now will leave, and there will be no new teachers coming in to teach. Why should they waste their knowledge and lives in a low-paid, no appreciation job? True, they did choose to be teachers, and I'm sure none of them look for appreciation, but at least they should be able to live a reasonably poverty-free life. I am willing to pay higher taxes as long as the money will be used to upgrade the schools in Alabama. Taxpayers and Legislators, It's Your Move!!

Thank you,

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I have an answer for anyone who has ever felt a lack of attention.

Become a reporter and just put one foot inside a school building.

Oh, I guess it might not work every time. But that's all I had to do this week to attract attention.

In fact, I hardly had the door open at one school when requests came flying at me from all directions to "take a picture and do a write-up."

If only I could hear those same voices when we're having a drought in the news business and stories are as scarce as hen's teeth.

But to use still another cliche, "it never rains but it pours."

Anyway, trying to appease all the folks who wanted to get in the paper this week, I hurried to the school office so they could round up the students I had come to photograph.

I figured I'd run and take care of another group who were already gathered while the first group was assembling.

But before I took two steps, a student who had to catch a bus right then appeared to have his picture taken.

So we raced outside, down the steps and across the lawn to get him in an appropriate setting with a good background.

"Smile," I implored as I clicked away thinking about the next group who were probably going to be late for their next class as they waited for me.

As soon as we finished, my subject ran for his bus and I hightailed it to the place where several students in picture taking session number two awaited my arrival.

After getting them out of the shotgun formation in which they'd lined up, I climbed on a chair for a better angle and and took aim while they asked whether to grin at me or the plaque one of them held.

We took a shot both ways and then I leaped off the chair, down the steps, across the lawn, and back to the office to find out where my next group of subjects were.

On some occasions, I might have been annoyed to find someone already there with a camera, but this time I welcomed them with relief.

I agreed to let them do the honors while I went on my merry way - to the next school and more unexpected requests.

Did I ever get to the paper that day you ask? Ah yes, but later, much later than I had expected.

I must say though, that I got all the attention that day that anyone could possibly want.

And I suspect it will be a long, long time before I complain about anyone not knowing who I am.

Stop infanticide, what will stop the killing?

Letter to the Editor:

Recently I have become aware of the horrifying reality of infanticide that is going on in our hospitals accross this nation. Because an infant is born with birth defects and, or, Down's Syndrome the parents and doctor can decide that the infant does not have the right to food, water, and medical treatment, thus purposefully and willfully letting that child die.

The "Infant Doe" case, of just one year ago, has caused much concern and inquiry for many people, including myself. At the advice of a physician the parents contacted a judge to receive a court order that would legally deny their child the necessities to sustain life. For six agonizing days this infant was starved to death, of which the last four days he cried uncontrollably. It wasn't that this child wasn't wanted. There were people who would have gladly taken him and paid his expenses that he might have at least a chance at life, but the court refused.

How can a nation which was once so concerned about the life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness for its people not only turn its apathetic back on the increase of these murders, but also allow this to become an issue that by law infanticide could be legalized, as was abortion. Why is this called "neglect," and punishable by law, when a child is 3 or 4 years old, but legal when he is 3 or 4 days old?

What will it take for the press, media, and the public to get angry enough to speak out against this abomination and not allow it to continue. For those who know the right thing to do and, for whatever reason, does not do it, they, too are guilty before their maker. (James 4:17; Ez. 33: 8-9.)

Please, won't you do what ever you can to help stop this useless killing before it, too, becomes another legal holocaust, as is abortion?

For contest

Reporter thanked

Letter to the Editor:

As a parent with children in the Shelby County School System, I want to thank The Shelby County Reporter for sponsoring the recent contest to help put computers into our schools.

I was part of an informal group of parents discussing this project when one individual said she resented her child being asked to sell for the newspaper. My reply was direct and simple. I resent my child (and me for that matter) having to "sell" anything - candy, cookies, cheeze, notions, cards, raffle tickets ... the list is endless -- in some cases just to help a school buy needed janitoral or other school supplies. As a parent and a taxpayer, I resent that elementary and secondary education in Alabama is not fully funded by the State of Alabama Legislature to begin with. Every study or news report I have ever seen puts Alabama at or near the bottom of the list when it comes to funding education.

It is unfortunate that "selling" has been forced upon our local schools, but it has ... and, as for me, I'll keep on selling (and buying) if that's what it takes to give all of our children the opportunities they deserve and need.

Regardless of what some people think, our schools never fully recover from the effects of Proration. It just makes the problems multiply. While some politicians play political football with the educational budget, our schools are forced to play a dangerous game of "catch-up". And, that's what I resent most of all!

Thanks again for the support and recognition that The Reporter gives to our schools.

Sincerely,
James Davis

Library fund halfway

Montevallo's new Parnell Memorial Library fund is almost halfway to its goal. The funding committee reported that $12,705 of the $30,000 goal had been raised as of Monday.

Completion of preliminary construction of the building, located at the intersection of Valley and Boundary Streets, is expected this week.

The building was donated by Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Parnell, Jr., in memory of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Parnell, Sr.

The library received a monetary gift from the late UM professor Miss Josephine Eddy, for the renovation. However, it is necessary to raise the additional $30,000 to purchase furniture and complete the exterior.

Anyone wishing to make a gift or memorial to the library should send it to Parnell Memorial Library, 160 Valley Street, Montevallo, AL 35115.

The library will be closed May 7-14 to move into the new building.

UM Foundation has come alive to underwrite college quality

by Bart Slawson

After the University of Montevallo Foundation was incorporated in 1974, it lay almost dormant for four years.

But when University president Dr. James F. Vickrey was appointed, he recognized its potential and breathed life into the $20,000 auxiliary enterprise of the alumni association.

Today it is a healthy financial force with $700,000 in total assets, said Dr. John Van Valkenburg, the Foundation's executive director.

The net worth of the Foundation in 1981 was $510,322. This year it is expected to reach $750,000.

During the 1981 tax year, the Foundation took in $274,644 in donations and $41,363 in interest on investments. It awarded $53,148 in scholarships.

The fund also provided the deans of each college with a total of $44,500 to spend as they see fit, according to the Foundation's 1981 federal tax return.

President Vickrey controls the biggest fund ($12,500) called the University Account. "That's everybody's account," Vickrey said.

Van Valkenburg (who controls a $2,500 fund) said the deans use the money to send professors to conferences, buy equipment, or pay extra help -- whatever he decides.

For example, John Lott, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, spent his $3,250 to reprint a biology professor's paper, give a reception for an arts festival and help support a professor taking computer classes at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Bill Word, Dean of the College of Business spent his $2,750 on travel and computer hardware and software.

Survival

At a time when the University student population has risen 5% while the state funds have been cut back, the Foundation is becoming all the more important.

State education officials cut $330,000 from the $6,467,048 budget request. Since University officials strive to provide education "a cut above" the norm, Foundation funds are becoming vital for survival.

Assets

The Foundation's holdings are as follows listed from greatest to smallest:

•Funds invested by the Trust Department of the First National Bank of Birmingham $322,922

•Certificates of Deposit $75,530

•Operating fund in the Merchants and Planter's Bank of Montevallo $12,294

Land assets

•A 12-acre island in the middle of the Coosa River (Buzzard Island), valued between $50,000 and $100,000

•A 16% interest in an inactive coal mine in Blount County including 122 acres of coal land and 440 acres of farm land, valued at $75,000

•Two industrial lots in Jefferson County valued at $25,000

•Two lake front lots on Million Dollar Lake in Tuscaloosa County valued at $10,000

•A dormant West Virginia oil well, valued at $5,000, rounds out the list of property holdings.

Annually the Foundation is paid a dividend on its gas and oil stocks. During the 1981 tax year, the dividend was $725, according to the federal tax return.

Finally, the Kermit A. Johnson Baseball Field is listed as an asset of the Foundation, valued at $99,500. Van Valkenburg said the field is listed for tax purposes only and is not for sale.

Total assets: $511,074

An expensive business

It takes money to make money.

While the Foundation (including the Alumni Association) collected $302,704 in total revenue, it paid out $152,725 in expenses.

These expenses included "Special fundraising events and activities" which lost money -- $13,565 according to the federal tax forms.

It is important to note these activities are intended to promote goodwill and a coherent image for the school. They are not intended as profit making enterprises.

Chapter meetings and luncheons took in $1,892 but spent $6,540. Olympics Day collected $1,671 but spent $3,617. Directories cost $209 and took in zero. Founder's Day income was listed at $600 but spent $1,493.

The biggest expense of the Foundation's fundraising activities was Homecoming with an income of $3,426 and an expense of $9,713.

Travel and entertainment expenses totalled $36,560. Funding for UM's campus public relations magazine, Montevallo Today, totalled $14,290. Postage and shipping costs amounted to $8,984. Trophies and equipment (jackets for tour guides, etc.) cost $7,471. Automobile expenses were $3,574.

Precious odds and ends

Some friends of UM don't give money, land or stocks. One man donated 4,000 books on Confederate forts (by Zed H. Burns), which Foundation officials donated to several Alabama elementary schools.

A Birmingham doctor donated 100 trees from his property to help beautify the campus. Still another friend donated two race horses, which are currently up for sale.

One donor brought a beat up cardboard box to van Valkenburg's office. When he opened it, he found $10,000 worth of precious stones inside. Van Valkenburg said he is arranging to display the gems in the university's geology department in a glass case.

Veterinary report

Rabies threat is real, growing

by Philip Hubbard, DVM

Most people have their pets vaccinated each year because they are responsible pet owners who want to keep their dog or cat healthy. Very few people really understand much about the major diseases that these shots are designed to prevent.

The important fact is that a dog or cat that is properly immunized will most likely not get sick or die with a case of distemper, Parvovirus, or Panleukopenia. These vaccinations are given to protect your pet.

Rabies vaccinations are different.

First, vaccinating against rabies is required by State Law. And second, vaccinating pets for rabies is primarily meant to protect humans.

It has been known for many years that a "rabies reservoir" exists in the wild animal population, particularly in skunks and raccoons. The potential spread of the rabies virus from wild animals to domestic pets, and thus to humans, is a very real and frightening concern.

In the last six months, major outbreaks of rabies have occurred in the Mid-Atlantic Region and northern Illinois. Total cases in domestic animals in the United States since 1978 have jumped from 469 to 1084.

But the really puzzling statistic is the drastic increase in the incidence of rabies in domestic cats.

According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, confirmed cases of rabies in cats rose 197% from 1978 through 1981, compared to an 82% rise in canine rabies. It has become apparent that pet owners are unaware of the potential problem of rabies in cats. This is substantiated by the fact that only 4 percent of the estimated 38 million cats in this country ever receive a rabies vaccination.

In Alabama, there were 113 confirmed cases of animal rabies in 1981, including 3 cats and 1 dog. Already in 1983, there have been two cases of human exposure to rabid animals in Alabama.

Rabies in raccoons continues to spread north and west from an original endemic area in southeast Alabama. This epidemic of rabies in raccoons and other wild animals is expected by CDC to result in a massive spilling over to domestic pets.

These facts and figures are not meant to imply that either you or your pet is in any imminent danger of exposure to rabies, but rather to make you aware of a growing public health problem that has disease control officials all over this country worried. Significantly, the tragedy and expense of a human rabies exposure can be avoided. Right now the cost of rabies treatment runs about $500.00. The cost of a vaccination is 100 times less.

Particularly should this point be stressed to cat owners -- get them vaccinated. Check the schedule in the Reporter to see when the clinics will be held in your area. By next week, printed schedules will also be posted around the County.

Next week: How to avoid being exposed to rabies, and what you should do in the case of a possible exposure.

Vickrey honored

University of Montevallo president Jim Vickrey received two major statewide education awards in April.

On April 20 he was named a co-winner of the Outstanding Administrator of the Year Award, along with Dr. Charles Payne, president of Bessemer Tech.

The Alabama Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators also presented Vickrey the John Buchanan Award at their annual meeting in Huntsville. The award is presented to the college administrator who has contributed most to financial aid in Alabama.

'Mighty Casey' has nothing on Chelsea

The words "classic battle" are often used to describe sporting events which go down to the wire...

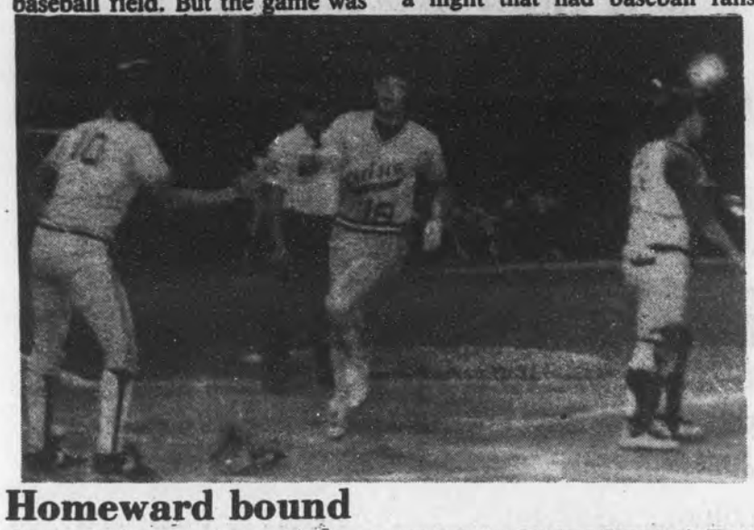

But last Wednesday's "classic" baseball contest between the Chelsea Hornets and Jemison in Montevallo might even put to shame the story of Mighty Casey at the bat.

That contest saw the Hornets lose the 2A Area 7 sub area championship by only one run, 8-7, under the lights of the UM baseball field. But the game was never decided, until the last strike was thrown.

Jemison and Chelsea faced each other twice during the regular season -- Jemison won at Chelsea 4-0, and Chelsea won at Jemison 7-1.

The Chilton County neighbors had to defeat Montevallo to play for the sub area crown, and Chelsea had to beat Jemison to face them again for the chance to claim the honors.

The needed wins by both teams set the stage for last Wednesday, a night that had baseball fans shivering in the stands.

Homeward bound

Larry Cork comes home to score a run for the Chelsea Hornets. The effort was to no avail as Chelsea fell to Jemison by one run last Wednesday in a sub area championship encounter. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Chelsea batted first, got one hit, and no runs. But coach Bobby Statum didn't appear too worried since his ace pitcher, Larry Cork, was on the mound. And Chelsea could hold Jemison -- couldn't they?

But after a fly out to center, disaster struck.

Cork walked six straight batters. Jemison scored its first run on a wild pitch, then Cork walked another man home.

Statum sent Cork to shortstop and put Ken O'Shields on the mound.

O'Shields walked a Jemison batter and yet another run scored when the Chelsea catcher overthrew third base.

Another Jemison hit scored a run before O'Shields and the Hornet defense retired the side. The nightmare turn at bat came to a close with Chelsea trailing 4-0.

When Jemison upped its lead 8-1 in the second inning, Statum pulled O'Shields and put Tim Rich on duty. The lone Chelsea run came on a hit from freshman Scott Vansant which scored Scotty Isbell.

But in the third, the Hornets cut Jemison's lead to 8-4. Jock Efferson and O'Shields got on base and Cork slugged a hit to score a run, and Ed Phifer got a hit that scored two.

Rich settled down on the mound and kept Jemison from adding to its lead in the fourth, fifth and six stanzas. But Chelsea batters did nothing to change the 8-4.

Finally, in the top of the final inning, Chelsea began to fight for victory, and batting up to potential.

Efferson, O'Shields and Cork all got hits, with Cork's pulling the Hornets to within three runs of a tie with no outs.

Things slowed for a moment when Jeff Kendrick made the first out. But Phifer walked and the bases were loaded.

After Isbell got out, pandamonium broke out in the Chelsea dugout when Rich slammed a hit that scored two runs.

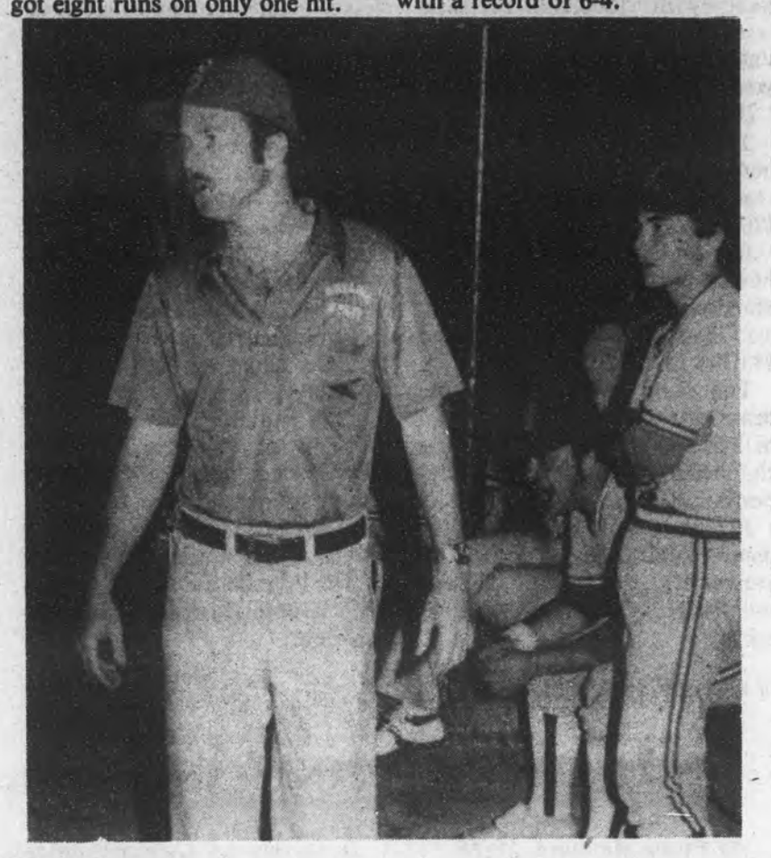

The score stood 8-7, the tying run was on base; and all freshman Scott Vansant needed was a base hit to tie the game.

But the dream recovery was not to be. Vansant went down on strikes.

"Our pitchers just didn't throw strikes. All kids have off nights," said Statum afterwards. "But I'm proud of our team for coming back from an eight run deficit, and still having a chance to win."

For the record, Chelsea got 13 hits in the battle while Jemison got eight runs on only one hit.

The baseball season is not over and Chelsea continues its action with a record of 6-4.

THS Warriors win Area 8 baseball title

Athletic honors continue to roll in for Thompson High School.

Friday, Coach Billy Woodham's baseball Warriors took the Area 8 title from Sylacauga before a home crowd.

The win advanced THS to the first round of state playoff action for the third time in five years.

The Warriors blasted Sylacauga 12-4 with ace pitcher Ronnie Rasp on the mound.

Rasp struck out nine batters, walked three men and gave up only five hits in preserving a personal 10-0 season mark.

The Warriors now boast a 15-2 season record and will begin state play at Buck Creek tonight at 7 p.m.

Woodham's squad was 6-0 in its sub area and defeated Columbiana 2-1 to win the other part of the sub area.

The Warriors are now hunting a scalp to claim Region 4 honors.

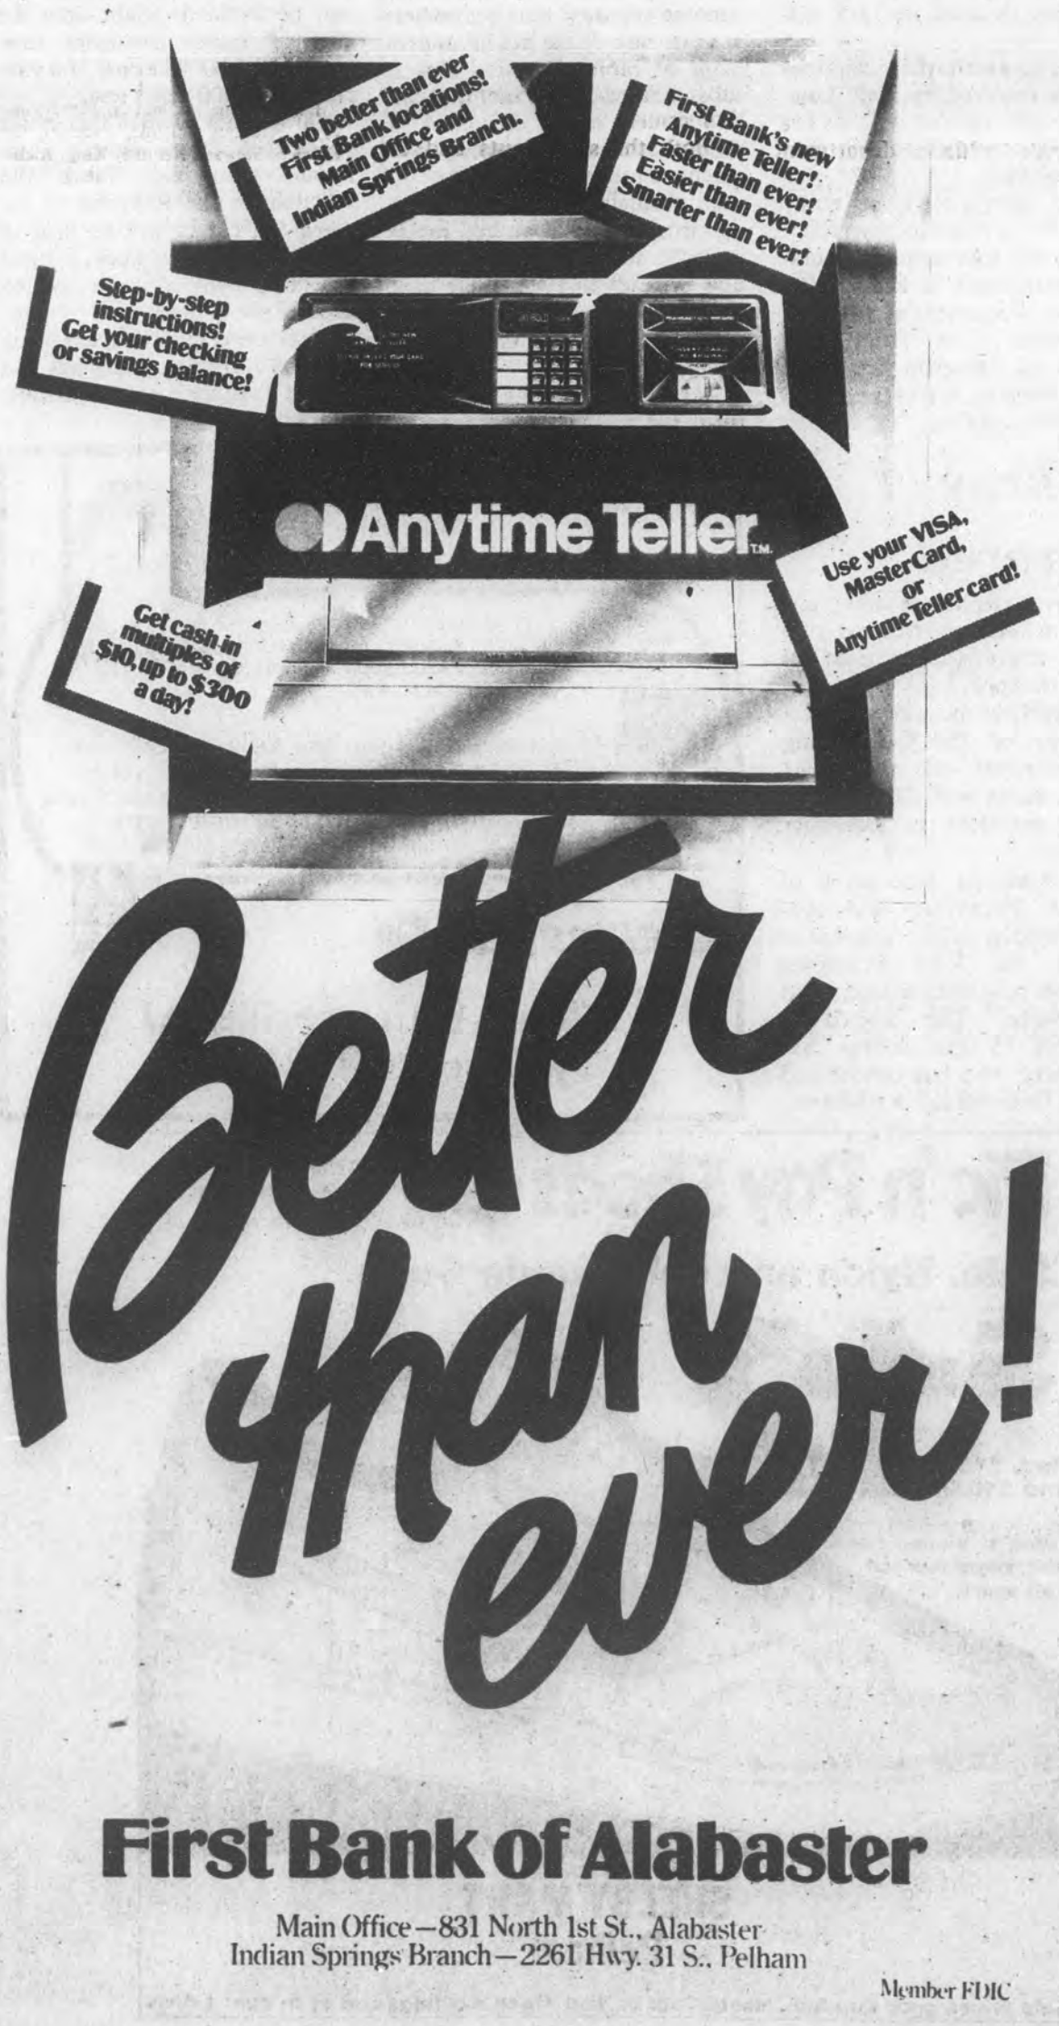

Against the Sylacauga Aggies, Buddy Cofer was three for four at bat with two doubles.

Richard Brasher was two for three at bat and Tim Miller smacked a homerun.

THS is also the defending county champion of baseball from last season.

MHS Bulldogs improve

by Fred Guarino

The Montevallo Bulldogs have won only a third of their baseball games this season -- but coach Richard Gilliam isn't complaining.

In fact, Gilliam views his 3-6 ballclub as one showing much improvement. Last year, the Bulldogs ended the season with just one win against 13 losses.

And, considering that MHS lost five senior players from last year's team, and actually starts five tenth graders this year, there is room for a good pat on the back.

Add to that the fact that of 15 total players, only seven have seen baseball action for Montevallo before, it is easy to see why Gilliam is so optimistic.

Given up to graduation last year were:

Bryant Staffney, who played left field; Sammy Nix and Fitz Williams, who both played in right field; Mike Peacock, who performed pitching duties; Jessie Holsomback, who played first base; and Kenny Pruitt, who played in the outfield.

The five starting sophomores on this year's squad are:

Freeman Rutledge, who plays left field and is the team's number two pitcher; Trey Hughes, who plays centerfield and who is the team's leading hitter and number three pitcher;

Ricky Gaddis, who plays in right field and is the number four pitcher; Andy Chism, who plays third base; and Anthony Prentice, who plays first base.

Of the sophomore starting quintet, only Chism, Hughes and Gaddis have seen action before. Rutledge and Prentice were ineligible to play as freshmen.

Of the ten remaining members of this year's team, only four return from last season:

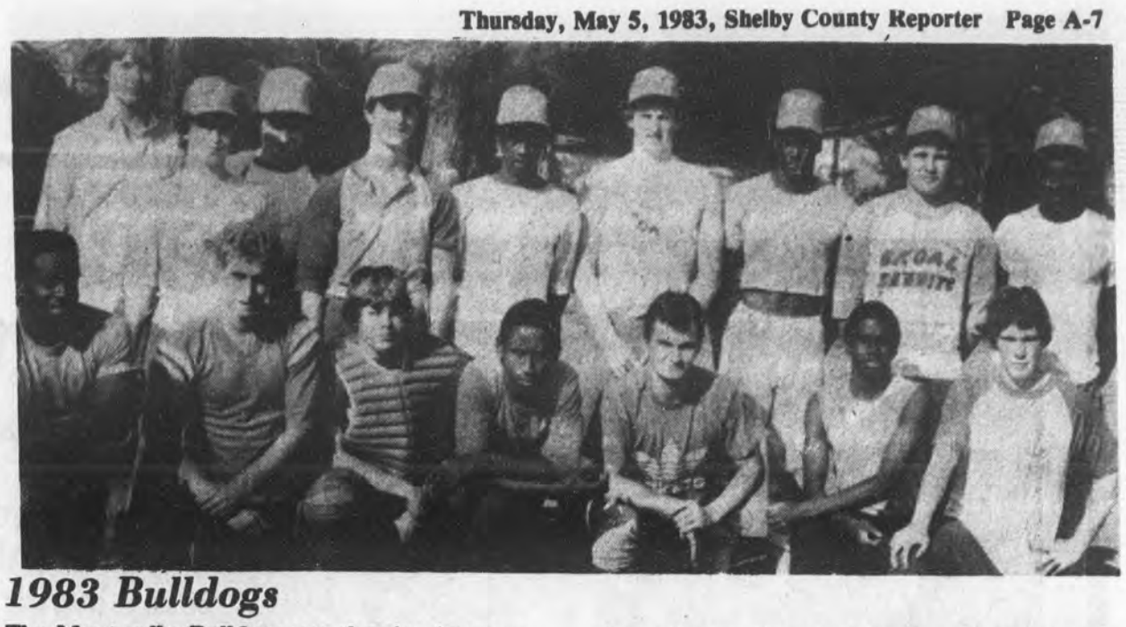

Richard Dailey, a senior, who is playing his third straight season as the number pitcher at Montevallo; Bobby Crowe, a senior, who returns as catcher; Chris Wilder, a senior, who returns at second base; and Keith Moore, a junior, who returns as a designated hitter.

Dailey also plays shortstop and third base.

Other new members of the team are:

Senior Howard Gaddis who plays shortstop; senior Robby Allen, who plays in the outfield; junior Charles Naiver, who plays in the outfield; and Jimmy Wade, who is a junior transfer from Shelby Acadmey and plays in the outfield; freshmen catcher Andy Anderson; and freshman infielder Steve Spears.

Coach Gilliam says of the 1983 Bulldogs, "We've had our lapses but over-all we have better defense than last year and better hitting. We are particularly strong in the outfield."

1983 Bulldogs

The Montevallo Bulldogs are showing improvement in baseball. This year's young squad has already beaten last year's record and is continuing to learn fundamentals. Team members are: Freeman Rutledge, Trey Hughes, Ricky Gaddis, Andy Chism, Anthony Prentice, Richard Dailey, Bobby Crowe, Chris Wilder, Keith Moore, Howard Gaddis, Robby Allen, Charles Naiver, Jimmy Wade, Andy Anderson and Steve Spears. Calera rises to occasion

"Up...up and away..."

Calera High School's Eagles might be heard singing about a beautiful balloon following last Wednesday's double-header baseball action with Weogufka.

The team, which found itself in the hands of football coach Danny Alverson, had lost the day's opening battle at the UM ballfield 9-11.

They were on the verge of being shutout in the second contest when something happened to give their spirits a real "lift".

Alverson was taking over baseball coaching duties for the first time this season because baseball coach Garry Griffith was out of town.

His team was down 4-0 after three innings in the second game and the dugout bench riders had all given up hope. There was no chanting of support or chatter for the dismal Eagles on the field.

Quitely, one of the bench riders said, "Hey...look at that big Easter Basket."

Real smiles appeared for the first time as everyone noticed a truck rolling by with something that indeed looked like a giant basket loaded onto it.

Weogufka came to bat in the top of the fourth inning and added another run to its lead.

The dugout was still quiet, except for the occasional joking from a losing side, when everyone began to take note of the fact that a hot air balloon was being inflated in an open area near the ball field.

By the time Calera managed to retire the Coosa County foes, everyone was watching as some brave balloonist began to take off in his brightly colored lighter-than-air craft.

But as unexpected as it was, as that balloon began to rise into the sky, Calera suddenly began to explode offensively.

While most people were still watching the balloon, the Weogufka catcher dropped a ball on a third strike and David Phillips raced to first base. He just beat the throw.

A few words of approval trickled from the Eagel bench and then things suddenly went crazy.

Crack, crack, crack.... Calera batters began to slap balls all over the UM field and rolled up an amazing 11-5 lead.

But Weogufka recovered, if it had been distracted by the balloon and roared back to take a 12-11 lead over Calera.

Because Chelsea was to face Jemison that same day, the contest could go no longer than five innings and Calera had to win or die on the spot.

The Eagles came to bat. Team spirits lifted along with the balloon that had just taken flight, Scotty Wells hit the ball and scored two base runners to win the game 13-12.

That come from behind win put the Eagles at 5-8 on the season .

Getting runs for the Eagles were:

David Phillips, three; Edward Wilson, one; Scotty Wells, one; William Edwards, two; Chuck Edwards, two; Scott McLendon, one; Steve Ellison, two; and Steve Bearden, two.

Zoning foes deadlocked

by Bart Slawson

The Alabaster City Council delayed action on a divisive zoning dispute Monday after both sides refused to budge.

The deadlock centers on Aaron Sherer's attempt to move his Cotton States insurance business from the Porter Drug Building to a lot behind the Jessup Building.

Sherer wanted the lot rezoned from residential to general business and had cleared the Alabaster Planning Commission, which recommended the council approve the request.

"I'm going to fix it up nice. It won't be an eyesore anymore," Sherer said, referring to the dilapidated house now on the lot.

But Reverend Melvin McGaughy and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Keely, who own adjoining lots, hired Alabaster attorney James C. Pino to argue against the plan based on covenants attached to the lot in 1955.

Pino said the protective covenants promise that the use of the residential lots in the area are confined to single family dwellings. Two story buildings are the largest allowable structures. The use can not be offensive or a nuisance.

"The people I represent want to stop the expansion here," Pino said, "They don't want any more commercial encroachment in this area."

"This area has changed and 1955 covenants shouldn't stand in the way of change," said Councilman Jack Reagin.

Reagin recommended that the council should approve the rezoning.

Mrs. Kelly said several other people opposed the zoning too "I can't understand why they aren't here. They said they would be here," she said.

"If you say all these people are opposed to it. Where are they?," Reagin asked, pointing out that no one showed up at the zoning hearing either.

Pino said the insurance office will increase congestion and traffic.

Councilman Calvin McCune asked Sherer, "Why do you want zoning since you can build what you want to build with the present zoning?"

The situation remained unresolved until council members and opponents can discuss the issue with nearby property owners.

Mayor H.A."Doc" Rubin said the matter will be decided at the next meeting.

The council approved two new street lights on Sequoia Trail in the new sector of Navaho Hills subdivision. One is on Big Tree Circle and the other is on Falling Rock Circle.

Happy anniversary to Joe and Carolyn Brantley of Pea Ridge, who celebrated their special day on May 3.

* * * *

Birthday wishes are extended this week to Willie Allen on May 4, and to Betty Horton on May 6, both of Rt. 4, Montevallo. The two recently walked 12 miles in the WalkAmerica event!

* * * *

I spent last weekend at the Travis Loyd residence in the thriving metropolis of Prattville, which compared to the size of Pea Ridge, is quite a difference.

Anyway, my sister, Becky, and my niece, Lesley and I enjoyed the weekend basking in the sun. It was great wasn't it?

Saturday, we had planned to spend the entire day covered with ye old coconut oil in hopes of achieving that ultimate island tan.

But... we went shopping, got carried away, and didn't return until late that afternoon.

So, at 10 a.m. on Sunday morning we grabbed our towels, a radio, sun tan oil, folding chairs, magazines, and of course, a glass of 'the real thing', (yes mother, I'm talking about Coke), and headed for the backyard.

By 3 p.m. we were back in the house, grumbling about our burns, and loving every moment of it!

Now, I have figured out that the only problems in having a sunburn is having to wear clothes... I wonder if that is where the idea for nudist colonies came about?

* * * *

Happy mother's day to all you great moms, and to all you not-so-great moms also!

Calera beauties...the unreal

Alabaster delays zoning vote

by Bart Slawson

Alabaster City Council members are mulling over the formation of a housing authority to oversee the construction of 240 new houses and condominiums.

Under a little used 1936 law, a city can form a housing authority to obtain tax-free bonds to finance multi-family housing, said Palmer O'Barr of Med-Comp Computers in Birmingham.

O'Barr explained the merits of such an authority to council members at Monday's meeting.

The council listened as O'Barr explained that the council must appoint five citizens to run the authority.

The purpose is to "create decent and clean housing for residents," O'Barr said.

The homes would serve low to moderate income people (up to $38,000 a year) with good credit, O'Barr said. There will be no government subsidy or poverty level type families in the project.

He explained the authority would build "co-op condominium type multi-family dwellings" where the co-op would buy the building from the authority after the tax-free bond was retired.

"Co-op members (residents) can build equity and get low cost financing to buy their homes," O'Barr said.

Because the bonds would be insured by a mortgage insurance company, there would be no risk to the city, he said.

Then O'Barr suggested the Willow Creek area with its existing water, sewer and streets would be a good area to build on. O'Barr said it was owned by Cross Creek Corporation in Hoover who say they can't proceed because of high interest rates.

O'Barr represents a group of Birmingham developers.

"Don't you think everybody is in that situation? They just want some money," Councilman Jack Reagin said.

"You can deal with anybody you want. They want the cheap money," O'Barr said.

At Reagin's suggestion, appointments to the authority were delayed until the next meeting.

CMS honorees

Kevin Morris and Janet Pate were elected Mr. and Miss Columbiana Middle School recently. The honors came in an election by the student body. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Morris and Mr.and Mrs. Charles E. Pate.

Scouts given memory canoe

As Boy Scouts in Columbiana troop 560 paddle down Wolf Creek Friday, they'll be remembering the times Alan Sigle used to canoe with them.

Following his death in an automobile accident last August, a memorial fund was started for the 18 year old son of Dale and Fran Sigle.

A canoe was one of the items purchased from that fund in Alan's memory.

The fund has also made it possible for students at Shelby County High School to have a computer.

Because her son was a straight A student and well known for his achievements in mathematics, Alan's mother said, "we wanted to get something in his memory that would be practical and maybe get other students more interested in math."

Explaining the purchase of the canoe in memory of her son, Fran Sigle said that Alan was an Eagle Scout and "we wanted to do something to support that organization."

AARON AUBREY HALE

Aaron Aubrey Hale celebrated his first birthday on April 25.

He is the son of Willard and Patti Hale of Alabaster. His older brother, Ashley, helped to celebrate the occasion.

Grandparents are Evelyn and Aubrey Rhoden and G.W. and Margie Hale of Jacksonville, FL.

Shelby personalities jailed

Some of Shelby County's noted -- or notorious -- citizens will be singing the "jailhouse blues" this Saturday.

Acting on behalf of the Jefferson-Shelby Heart Association, Keystone Shriner Cops will "arrest" numerous area personalities and jail them in a large cage at Century Plaza Mall in Birmingham.

If friends don't bail them out, they'll remain in jail. Conversely "friends" can also make bail payments to keep the jailbirds locked up -- all of which leads to some interesting possibilities...

Jailbirds from Shelby County include:

•Donald Lathem, vice president, First Bank of Alabaster

•James Spann, Channel 13 weatherman

•Roland Bradford, Shelby Medical Center administrator

•Pam Huff, Channel 13 news anchor

•Ralph Sears, Mayor of Montevallo and publisher of the Shelby County Reporter.

Other celebrities who'll be sharing the cell with them are Blazer coach Gene Bartow and Birmingham Mayor Richard Arrington. Providing entertainment from outside the jail will be Miss Alabama, players from the Stallions, the "Fillies," and Happy Hal Burns.

A $1,000 donation for local Heart Association projects is required to bail out any of the jailbirds.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Faith?

Heb. 11:6 "and without faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing unto him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that seek after him." Faith is a must!!!!!!!

Rom. 10:17 "So then Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Faith comes by hearing God's word.

Eph. 4:5 "There is one Faith. 'Just as there is' one body", Eph. 4:4, "one church" Col. 1:18; "The church of the Lord which he purchased with His own blood." Acts 20:28. There are not many faiths, many 'different churches', acceptable, there is only one faith, one teaching.

Gal. 1:8-9 "But though we, or an angel from heaven, should preach unto you any gospel other than that which we preached unto you, let him be anathema. As we have said before, so say I now again, If any man preacheth unto you any gospel other than that which ye received, let him be anathema."

Jas. 2:18b "I by my works will show thee my faith."

Gal. 5:6 "For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision; but faith working through love."

A warm welcome awaits you at the church of Christ at South Columbiana

Notice of Publication of Bill Filed and Proceeding in Rem to Quiet Title of Real Estate
Ella Mae Tilley
a/k/a Ella Mae Davis and Robert L. Riggins,
Plaintiffs,
VS.
Doss O'Neal and Certain Land, Defendants.

In the Circuit Court of Shelby County, Alabama
Case No. CV-83-127(E)

TO: The following described land: The N½ of the SW¼ of the SW¼ and a strip of land 160 feet wide off the South side of the NW¼ of the SW¼ of Section 36, Township 18 South, Range 2 East, Less and Except the property deeded to Melvin White in Deed Book 283, Page 39; Less and Except the property deeded to Louise Brown in Deed Book 283, page 101; Less and Except the property deeded to Willie Mae McCrimmon in Deed Book 292, Page 322; Less and Except the property deeded to Enos and Cynthia O'Neal in Deed Book 334, Page 494, all deeds being recorded in the Probate Office of Shelby County, Alabama; and the following named persons, or, if deceased, their heirs or devisees: Doss O'Neal, Mack O'Neal and Andrew D. Davis, and their heirs or devisees, if deceased, and all parties who, unknown to Plaintiffs claim an interest in or to the above described property.

Take notice that Ella Mae Tilley a/k/a Ella Mae Davis and Robert L. Riggins have this day filed their verified complaint in said Court against the above named Defendants and against any and all persons claiming any title to, interest in, encumbrance upon the above described real estate or any part thereof or interest therein, and against all other persons, and against said lands for the purpose of establishing the title of said lands in the said Ella Mae Tilley a/k/a Ella Mae Davis and Robert L. Riggins and to clear up all doubts and disputes concerning the same and that said suit is not pending in said Court.

Plaintiffs allege in said complaint that the title to said lands stands in the name of the Plaintiffs on the records in the Office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, Alabama, and said complaint further alleges that Plaintiffs claim title to said lands through and by virtue of a deed recorded in Deed Book 156, at Page 497 from Lillie Belle Hardy, a divorced single woman dated November 22, 1952, to Andrew D. Davis and wife, Ella Mae Davis; and by a default judgment of divorce rendered by the Circuit Court for the County of Wayne, State of Michigan in the Case Andrew Davis vs. Ella Mae Davis, Case No. 611-889 dated January 21, 1963, a true copy of which is recorded in the Probate Office of Shelby County, Alabama, in Deed Book 233, in Page 34; Robert L. Riggins acquired title to said land by deed from the Plaintiff, Ella Mae Tilley, a single woman, dated February 19, 1983, and recorded in the Probate Office of Shelby County, Alabama, in Deed Book 345, at Page 824; that during the time of Plaintiffs ownership, they have been in actual, peaceable, adverse possession of said lands claiming to own the same, and that title to said lands has stood in Plaintiffs' names on the records in the Office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, Alabama, for more than 30 years prior to this date. The Plaintiffs and their predecessors in title have assessed said real estate in the Office of the Tax Assessor of Shelby County, Alabama, and paid the taxes on said real estate for each year and that no one else has paid the taxes on said real estate for said period of time except the Plaintiffs and their predecessors in title and that no one has been in possession of said lands or any part thereof since 1952, except the Plaintiffs and their predecessors in title.

That Plaintiffs after most reasonable and diligent search and inquiry were unable to locate the following named persons to determine whether or not they are living or dead, and if living, what their ages and addresses are at the present time, and if deceased, the names, ages and addresses of their heirs or devisees, and that the same are unknown to the Plaintiffs, said persons being as follows: Doss O'Neal, Mack O'Neal and Andrew D. Davis and their heirs or devisees, if deceased, and that the names, ages and addresses of any other parties who, unknown to Plaintiffs, may claim an interest in or to the above described property, are unknown.

It is, therefore, ordered by the undersigned Clerk that publication of this notice be made in the Shelby County Reporter, a newspaper published and having a general circulation in Shelby County, Alabama, once a week for four consecutive weeks, and that all those to whom this notice is addressed and any and all persons claiming any title to, interest in, or lien or encumbrance upon, the above described real estate, or any part thereof, or any interest therein, be and they are hereby required to plead, answer or otherwise defend this cause within the time required by law, and not later than June 27, 1983.

It is further ordered that a copy of this notice certified by the undersigned Clerk, as being correct, shall also be recorded as a lis pendens in the Office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, Alabama.

The Industrial Development Board of the City of Columbiana (the "Issuer"), a public corporation existing under the provisions of Article 4 of Chapter 54 of Title 11 of the Code of Alabama 1975 (the "Enabling Law"), proposes to acquire, construct and install a facility (the "project"), consisting of a parcel of land of approximately six acres, situated near Highway 70 on Industrial Road in the western area of Columbiana, Alabama, and such buildings, structures, improvements, fixtures, machinery, equipment, furniture and other property, now or hereafter situated on said parcel of land, as may be approved by the Issuer. The Project will be used and operated by NFA Corp., a Massachusetts corporation, or any other user or users designated by the Issuer (the "User") for manufacturing, processing, assembling, storing, warehousing and distributing elastic webbing and for any other purpose authorized by the Enabling Law.

In order to finance the acquisition, construction and installation of the Project, the Issuer proposes to issue approximately $1,500,000 aggregate principal amount of its revenue bonds (the "Bonds"). The Bonds will mature within eleven years from the date of their issuance, will bear interest at a rate or rates of approximately 75% of the prime rate of AmSouth Bank N.A., and will contain such additional provisions regarding redemption and other matters as the Issuer may approve. The Bonds will be sold by the Issuer at a price not greater than par plus accrued interest and not less than 90% of par plus accrued interest, to AmSouth Bank N.A., or any other purchaser or purchasers designated by the Issuer, in a private placement.

The Bonds will be limited obligations of the Issuer, payable solely from the rentals and other revenues and receipts to be derived by the Issuer from the leasing or sale of the Project. The Project will be leased by the Issuer to the User pursuant to an agreement providing for the acquisition, construction and installation of the Project and the payment of net rentals sufficient to provide for the payment of the principal of and interest on the Bonds when due, and containing such additional provisions as the Issuer may approve. The Bonds will be secured under an agreement whereby the Issuer will mortgage the Project and pledge the rentals and other revenues and receipts to be derived by the Issuer from the leasing or sale of the Project for the benefit of the holders of the Bonds. The Bonds will not be general obligations of the Issuer and they will not in any way consitute a debt, liability or obligation of the State of Alabama, Shelby County or the City of Columbiana. The Bonds will not be payable from any tax revenues.

The Bonds may be issued in one or more series. If the plan of financing includes more than one series of Bonds, each series may be issued to finance a different phase of acquisition, construction and installation of the Project, and the last series will be issued within a period of three years from the issuance of the first series. The agreement securing any subsequent series of Bonds will be subordinate to the agreement securing any prior series unless the agreement securing the prior series permits the issuance of the subsequent series on a parity with the prior series.

A public hearing on the issuance of the Bonds to finance the Project will be held in the Council chamber at the City Hall in the City of Columbiana, Alabama during the regular meeting of the City Council which is scheduled to begin at 6:30 o'clock P.M. on May 19, 1983. BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. This act shall apply only in Shelby County, Alabama.

Section 2. When used in this act the word "code", unless the context clearly indicates a different meaning, shall mean: not less restrictive than the Southern Building Code, as of the date of this act, (and its companion codes on plumbing and gas, all as produced by the Southern Building Code Congress, and the National Electrical Code of the National Fire Protection Association.)

Section 3. The Shelby County Commission may by reference, adopt, amend, and provide for the enforcement of the code. Such code, when adopted as herein authorized, shall apply to and govern in all unincorporated areas of the county and also in those parts of the county lying within the corporate limits of municipalities which have not adopted and are not enforcing municipal building codes. Such commission may also repeal any such code after having adopted it.

The code shall not be adopted by such commission except after a public hearing on due notice thereof by publication in a newspaper published and of general circulation in such county. Such notice shall be published at least ten days before the hearing. The text of the code which it is proposed to adopt by reference shall be made available for inspection at the county courthouse. Nothing herein shall be construed to required the setting out in full of the text of the proposed code in the notice of the hearing nor in the resolution or ordinance; but such code or amendments thereof shall be properly identified as to date and source in the notice and in the ordinance or resolution adopting it and a copy thereof shall be attached to such ordinance or resolution. A copy thereof shall also be filed in the office of the clerk of the county commission and in at least one other county office where such copies will be available for public use, inspection and examination.

When Shelby County has adopted the code by reference pursuant hereto, the officer administering such code may adopt administrative regulations which incorporate by reference such subsequent changes and amendments of the code, properly identified as to date and source, as may be adopted by the agency or association which promulgated the code, if such officer finds that the changes and amendments conform to nationally recognized standards or accepted engineering practices.

Any administrative regulations which incorporate building code amendments by reference shall become effective upon the expiration of sixty calendar days following the promulgation of the regulations, unless within that period of time the county commission adopts a resolution or ordinance disapproving of such administrative regulations.

Section 4. The county commission shall have the authority for and the responsibility of enforcing the provisions of this act. The county commission having established an enforcement program for such code, no building or affected project shall be commenced without first having a building permit issued by the county commission therefor. The county commission is hereby further authorized and empowered to prescribe and exact fees and charges to be paid for inspections and other administrative services, and for building permits which it may issue. Such fees and charges collected pursuant to this act shall be paid into the county treasury general fund.

Section 6. This act shall not be construed to impair or limit in any way the power of the county commission to enjoin or abate public nuisances within its jurisdiction.

Section 7. Nothing in this act shall be construed as abrogating or otherwise affecting the power of any state department or agency to promulgate regulations, make inspections, or approve plans in accordance with any other applicable provisions of law not in conflict with the provisions herein.

Section 8. This act shall be liberally construed as being additional authority for the Shelby County Commission to adopt ordinances relating to the establishment and enforcement of minimum standards for buildings, dwellings, and the structures of all types and descriptions used for human habitation and occupancy. The authority conferred by this act is cumulative to and in addition to other existing legal authority.

Section 11. The provisions of this act are severable. If any part of the act is declared invalid or unconstitutional, such declaration shall not affect the part which remains.

IN MEMORY

IN MEMORY OF
WALTER M. ALDRIDGE

In loving memory of our father, grandfather and great-grandfather, Walter M. Aldridge, who departed this life 25 years ago, May 8, 1958:

Today recalls many memories
Of our loved one gone to rest,
And the ones who do remember
Are the ones who loved him best.

Daughter: Pauline Creamer
Granddaughters: Hilda Bynum and Jane Noe
Great-Granddaughters: Ava Johnson, Dawn Morse and Mindy Noe

IN MEMORY OF
ARCHIE ROLAND SMITHERMAN

It's been 2 years... some days that seems like only yesterday, some days it seems like a thousand years.

We all miss your smile Uncle Smitty, but are fortunate that you shared a part of your life with us, and happy for all the good memories you gave each of us.

No, we'll never forget...

But mystery remains

Murder suspect arrested

by David F. Moore

Mystery continues to cloud the shotgun death of a Birmingham art dealer whose body was found recently in Helena.

On Friday, Sheriff Buddy Glasgow and deputy investigators charged Gerald Lawley, 31, of Birmingham, with the murder of Malcolm McRae.

Tuesday, Lawley remained in the Shelby County Jail in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Lawley, however, contends the shooting was accidental.

"He admitted to being responsible for his (McRae's) death," Glasgow told the Reporter, "but he stated that it was an accident."

What investigators are now facing is the unraveling of rumor from fact, in a case that still has numerous questions dangling without full answers.

"Parts of Lawley's story just aren't clear right now," Glasgow said.

"Because it wasn't reported for almost two months, it makes us curious, suspicious, about what happened," he continued. "It's not clear yet as to why they went out there (to the isolated site of the abandoned Ruffin Mines in Helena)."

"There's some more questions. More people need to be interviewed," Glasgow said.

McRae disappeared February 27 from his Southside gallery/home. His decomposed body was found April 17 by a Helena man scouring the area with a metal detector.

Glasgow said Lawley contends he was shooting at a bottle McRae was throwing into the air.

Lawley, who reportedly has a high IQ, is an unemployed painter who previously worked eight and a half years as a Birmingham firefighter, Glasgow said.

Ousted health planner loses

by Bart Slawson

Jack Van Pelt's suit to get his state health planning job back got as far as the Alabama Supreme Court where it hit a brick wall.

The Court declined to accept the case, which cleared the way for a federal court to deny his complaint April 28.

Judge Truman Hobbs, of the U.S. District Court for Middle Alabama asked the high court to clarify the intent of the law and issue an "advice" so he could rule on the case.

The high court said Van Pelt's job on the State Health Planning and Development Agency board involved no property interest since he wasn't paid for the position. That ruling destroyed the basis for the suit.

'That's the end of it as far as I'm concerned. I'll be interested in what the new board does with issues we already turned down (concerning a women's hospital proposed by Brookwood Medical Center and a new hospital in north Shelby County," Van Pelt said.

"It's terrible to allow a planning operation to be subjected to the personal ideas of one governor. What it boils down to is: He who makes the biggest political contribution can control the board," he said.

The north Shelby County businessman was fired February 22 from the SHPDA board by Governor Wallace.

The dismissal was part of the "George Washington's Birthday Massacre" as hospital watchers call it, when the governor fired all nine members of SHPDA without explanation.

UM rape was imagined

A University of Montevallo coed who reported last fall that she was raped in Orr Park, has admitted her story was a hoax.

After an intensive investigation by UM and City of Montevallo police and the Alabama Bureau of Investigation, the young woman confessed she had fabricated the incident.

According to authorities, the reason the coed gave for making up the story, was because of difficulties she was having with her parents.

Lab tests made on the coed following the reported rape were inconclusive. And there were also inconsistencies in the story she told.

However, law enforcement officials still felt the incident needed to be investigated.

More than three dozen suspects were picked up for questioning during the course of the investigation.

Storm is still brewing on new hospital future

by Bart Slawson

There's a storm on the horizon.

A decision is expected in the next few months that will affect everyone who pays taxes or needs health care in Shelby County.

The storm centers over developing northern Shelby County and who wins the right to build a hospital there.

Millions of dollars are at stake.

If a hospital manages to land a new facility in this booming region, it stands to leap far ahead of other hospital corporations in competition for patients.

At present, Shelby Medical Center (owned by the county), St. Vincent's Hospital and Baptist Medical Centers Inc. own land in northern Shelby County and hope to build medical facilities in the burgeoning region.

Brookwood Hospital in Birmingham, owned by AMI, an international hospital corporation, is planning to expand its Homewood facility to serve northern county residents.

To build a hospital in Alabama, a corporation first runs the gauntlet of planning and developing. But the final judges of whether a hospital plan lives or dies is the State Health Planning and Development Agency - all political appointees.

Although several hospitals have tried and failed to get proposals past SHPDA, expert hospital watchers at the Birmingham Regional Hospital Council say this is only the beginning.

Mixing hospitals, politics and money is a tricky business not recommended for the faint of heart.

At the outset of this hospital battle, health corporations began manuevering: some in the quest for more patients and money, others seeking to survive the efforts of ambitious competitors.

All indications are that Governor George Wallace, Alabama's most accomplished professional politician, is watching the Shelby County hospital situation carefully.

The most overt example of his interest came February 22, George Washington's birthday.

Without warning, Wallace announced the wholesale firing of Police 'shoot it out' at lodge

There was a serious shoot-out last weekend in Camp Branch. Fortunately, only the targets were hurt.

The Shelby County Fraternal Order of Police cranked off its second season of semi-monthly pistol tournament last weekend. The events are held at the FOP gun range, located at the lodge off highway 26 in the Camp Branch Community.

The events are designed to provide county officers with both regular training sessions and a social gathering.

Judging by Saturday's standing, deputy sheriff Jim Walters is the man to avoid if you want to get violent with the cops. Walters shot first place scores in the open division and the police division.

Second place in the police division went to Columbiana officer Frank Fornby, followed by deputy Mike Shaw in third.

Fornby's 28 "X's" edged fellow CPD officer Tom Carter's 21 "X's" in the open division.

Deputy Chris Curry lead deputies Butch Naish and Steve Ward in the police reserve division.

In team competition Fornby, Shaw and Carter won first place. Walters Curry and deputy Buddy Wilkerson took second, and Montevallo PD officers Bill Gray and Tim Genry teamed with deputy Steve Ward for third.

Eighteen FOP memebers participated in the moring shoot-out.

The FOP is also taking applications for self-defense pistol classes. The three-day classes start May 19, with two hour sessions on Thursday and Friday, and an all-day class Saturday.

The classes will be offered through the fall.

For more information, call deputy Jim Keister at the county jail, 669-4181.

Junior Civitans earn honors

The Shelby County High School Junior Civitans won or placed in every awards category at the Alabama Central District convention. To top off the weekend of honors bestowed on the group, it received the Outstanding Club Award in the entire 20 club district.

The 60-member club at SCHS took first place in:

•Campus project -- work with the Center for Exceptional Children and the Special Olympics

•ARC -- for the largest donation made to the Association of Retarded Citizens

•Outstanding club president -- Senior Melanie Morris, daughter of Earl and Mary Morris of Four Mile

Outstanding advisor -- Dell Moody

Second place standings:

•Community Projects -- the Alan Sigle Memorial Eye Drive

•Female Civitan of the Year -- Melanie Morris

Third place standing:

•Male Civitan of the Year -- Senior Russell Horton, son of Jack and Connie Horton of Wilsonville

Morris said the weekend of awards was a fitting way for the club to celebrate its 20th anniversary.

The convention was held at Gulf Breeze, Florida.

Hospitals' futures staked on new board

all nine members of SHPDA.

It should be noted the fired board had consistently denied permission to all the groups seeking to expand in north Shelby, on the basis that there were already enough hospital beds in the area to serve the population.

The governor reappointed one former board member, Dr. Alan Perry, a Birmingham physician at East End Memorial Hospital.

But the eight new appointees had hospital officials scrambling.

"We're in the process of figuring out who they are and why they were appointed," said Robert Harper, vice president for public affairs of the Birmingham Regional Hospital Council.

BRHC is an "issues oriented hospital association serving hospitals in the Birmingham area" Harper said. Shelby Medical Center is a member.

"One of the things we have to find out is the level of expertise these people bring to the board. We need to know whether we need to go to square one to re-explain everything," Harper added.

"We can only assume the governor appointed people who have a working knowledge of the health care planning situation in Alabama," he said.

Wallace appointed a small town mayor, a Mobile doctor, two of his own cabinet members, a nursing professor from Samford University, a lawyer, a pharmacist and a car dealer.

How these people stand on political matters affecting hospitals remains an important open question.

One thing is a sure bet. Their decisions will shape the future of health care in Shelby County for years to come.

Dean notes nurse

Carrie Gill of Pelham has been named to UAB's School of Nursing Dean's List for the winter quarter.

She is one of 127 undergraduate nursing students there who qualified for the honor by earning a grade point average greater than 3.6 while carrying a minimum of eight hours.

Gill earned a 4.0 GPA, based on 4.0 grading system.

Blue Cross/Blue Shield and Farm Bureau.

The best you can do to fight the rising costs of health care.

When you have Blue Cross and Blue Shield, you have more than health insurance that keeps catastrophic illnesses from becoming financial catastrophes. With Blue Cross and Farm Bureau you have a major organization working for you — to keep the costs of health care from going through the roof.

That's something to feel good about. Because Blue Cross and Blue Shield returns about 94 cents of every premium dollar in the form of benefits. Keeping health care costs under control is the best way to make sure you keep getting that kind of value for your health care dollar.

That's why Blue Cross and Blue Shield is making special efforts — like pre-admission testing for procedures that require hospitalization to save you a night in the hospital and save money. Ask your doctor about it.

And we're working to give people information on how to stay healthy. That's the best way to save money on health care. We're here when you need us for catastrophic illnesses that could wipe out your savings. But good health is the best insurance.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield works with doctors and hospitals all over Alabama, looking for new and better ways to provide quality care at the least possible cost. With common sense and cooperation, we can keep costs down. And quality up.

Alabama Farm Bureau represents the largest Blue Cross and Blue Shield group in Alabama. Protect your family with Alabama's largest group and keep your family feeling good. Affordably.

Alumni officers

The Shelby County Chapter of the University of Montevallo National Alumni Association recently elected the following local residents as officers: (from left) treasurer Chris Goodin Dobson '63; vice president Mary Sherrer Williams '81; president Doug Trotter '73; reporter Phyllis Garrett Horrell '81; secretary Kay Johnson '62.

UM cited for quality

State legislators commended the University of Montevallo in budget hearings at the Capitol recently for its 'commitment to quality.'

Their comments came in response to President Jim Vickrey's presentation of Montevallo's case for 1983-84 state funds. He emphasized the institution's 'selfhelp initiatives' and its goals-centered stewardship efforts.

Vickrey said no other college in Alabama has a better claim on increased state funding than does UM. Despite that, he added, Montevallo officials are willing to settle for $6.5 million for 1983-84, if all of higher education likewise is 'level funded.'

Vickrey also reminded the dozen or so law-makers present of the 'unhappy fact' that UM students, since 1978, have endured the largest percentage increase in tuition of any senior college in Alabama. Yet, he said, 'only five other state universities had fall, 1982 head count enrollments larger than their fall, 1980 enrollments.'

Vickrey placed 'UM's Case for Funding'--in the context of statewide developments in higher education.

'We Alabamians have constructed a trap for ourselves,' he said. 'We permitted ourselves to believe that we can achieve our collective economic and educational aspirations with our present level of resource commitments. And, simply put, that is just not possible.

'Hence, our dilemma as a state: We must down-size our aspirations or do what's necessary to achieve them.'

All systems go

It was 'all systems go' Monday at Wilsonville Elementary as students got their first crack at using the school's new color computer. If the 180 students there are taking extra pride in their brand new Apple system, they certainly have every right to do so. They won the machine last month by generating 109% participation in the Reporter's Great Computer Giveaway subscription sales contest. Flashing 'thumbs up' and matching smiles are fourth graders (from left) Levonia Deyampery, Stacey Armstrong, Sherri Watson, Jennifer Ford, and (seated) Chris Matherson. (Photo by David F. Moore)

Court-ordered vote stirs key questions

by Marcia M. Sears

Who will represent Shelby County in the new Alabama House and Senate?

When will we elect them?

These questions are causing much speculation in political circles, as the state heads into a court-ordered election.

The unique situation will match up senators and house members with the new districts the state is divided into.

Until the governor announces the date of the general election, the Democratic and Republican parties say they cannot decide whether they will have time to call primaries. If there is not time for primaries, the parties could nominate by convention.

Sonny Moore, who now is the representative for the large eastern section of Shelby County, says he would like to run for the new Senate district. But if there is no primary, he would have to have the nomination of the state Democratic Committee, meeting as a convention, in order to run against the Republican nominee in the general election.

Don Murphy, who is now representing the western section of the county would like to be the Republican nominee for the same Senate seat.

The new Senate seat includes all of Shelby County and parts of Bibb and St. Clair counties.

Several others are being mentioned for the Senate race.

If both Murphy and Moore run for the Senate, that would leave the house races in their districts open to newcomers. Potential candidates for those seats are keeping a low profile at present, waiting on the governor to announce the general election date.

According to a spokesman at the state Democratic headquarters, the chairman of county committees and the Young Democrats are pushing for primaries.

But the expense of primaries, not only to candidates, but also to county and state governments, is an argument against holding primaries.

Another problem facing the political organizations is a conflict in state law with the court order.

According to Senator Lister Hill Proctor, co-chairman of the state's reapportionment plan, the quirk in the law arises because the federal court order says terms of the legislators will expire on December 31. Yet state law says legislators assume office the day after the general election. Proctor says this must be resolved for an orderly transfer of power.

Proctor says, "Never under any stretch of the imagination did we foresee the courts ordering this special election." He said none of the plaintiffs who asked for the new redistricting wanted a special election.

"The sad part is, in my time in the Senate, I have never seen so many crucial issues we need to address. But in place of facing up to the issues, legislators are looking over their shoulders to see how their votes on issues will affect them in this new election. The election process has taken an overriding position, and many important things are now on the back burner," Proctor says.

But Proctor is pleased with the reapportionment plan. "The significant thing about this plan is that it will serve the state for 10 or 20 years or more and legislators in 2000 will not have to face it again. We did something that hasn't been done since 1901, and unraveled some of the problems that were built in during all those years."

Proctor now represents eastern Shelby County in the Senate, as well as Coosa, Chilton and parts of Talladega Counties. Since he lives in Talladega County, the new plan will throw him into a contest with Senator John Teague for the new seat there.

Commission approves thirteen road projects

by Fred Guarino

The go ahead has been granted for 13 county resurfacing and leveling road projects at a cost of $538,829.30.

The action was taken by the county commission, Monday, when it approved Central Alabama Paving as the low bid for the total project.

Roads to be resurfaced are:

County Highways 42, and 71 (Kewa south to county 47). This is the loop which serves the Lay Lake Area.

County Highway 10 from Pea Ridge to Montevallo.

County Highway 29 (Caldwell Mill Road from 17 south to New Hope).

County Highway 52 from Helena to Pelham.

County Highway 55 three quarters of a mile through the Muncy bridge project.

And, County Highway 85 from Vincent south to U.S. 280.

Roads to be leveled are:

County Highway 13 from the Bibb County line to County 52.

County Highway 11 (Simmsville Road).

And, County Highways 57 and 59 in the Martintown Area.

According to County Engineer Gary Ray, logging operations through this past winter have created problems in the Martintown areas which requires this leveling.

Other bids for the total project were submitted by Butts and Billingsley, APAC Alabama Inc. and Dunn Construction.

In other action:

The commission approved a pay step increase from 15 to 16 for two sheriff's department sergeants.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden reported that he had received no response from Mayor Ralph Sears in regard to a charge to municipalities for the upkeep of their prisoners in the county jail.

However, according to Mayor Sears, he has not been contacted by anyone from the county commission concerning the matter.

The commission agreed not to consider a Tac Can monthly rate increase for HBO until proof of a increase by HBO is received.

Tac Can did not request the rate increase, as commissioners understood they should, but simply reported it.

The location of the Beat 12, Box 2, voting location was moved to Lazy Boy Showcase on Highway 31.

The Beat 11 voting place was to the Westover Water Authority building.

Katie Arnold was appointed to fill Thelma Walker's unexpired term on the county library board to October 1983.

Lajuana Stubbs was appointed to fill Sybil Dearing's unexpired term on that same board until October 1985.

Arnold will represent north Shelby and Stubbs will represent Pelham and Helena.

Bills proposed:

Salary power to county; revenue to probate judge; private driveway work

Three new pieces of legislation were proposed this week that will affect Shelby County - if they pass.

Representative Don Murphy presented them to the County Commission Monday, saying he would introduce them in the House after the four-week required advertising period.

One bill would give the county commission the right to set all salary rates for all county employees. This bill would take away salary-setting power from the personnel board that oversees the sheriff's department. But it would make it easier for the commission to project expenses and to write a balanced budget each year.

Another bill would create a license issuing division in the probate office. It would transfer duties from the tax assessor and tax collector to the probate judge. It would also give the judge $500 per month in expense allowance.

The third bill would give the county the right to perform work and sell materials to churches, individuals, schools and nonprofit associations and corporations. The wording limits the activity to when materials and services are not "reasonably available to them at a reasonable cost from private enterprise."

The county engineer would report each January to the commission, which would issue a written policy on this type of work. The policy would be published annually in the newspaper. The recipient would sign a contract that would become a public document, and would pay for the work or material at the time it is received.

The bill is aimed at helping people with driveways, cherting, and similar projects.

Representative Sonny Moore said he had not heard about the first bill. On the second proposal, he told the Reporter, "If it just creates more jobs, I'm not sure I'd be for it." But if the county can use the same employees it already has, he indicated he might favor it.

On the third bill, Moore said he tried to get a similar bill passed last year, but was told too many parts of it were unconstitutional.

The proposed bills are printed in full on the legal page of this issue of the Reporter.

Montevallo boiler irks neighbors

"I'd like you to blow it up," was the disgusted reply given by Dr. Miriam Collins when asked what she would like the city to do about the University of Montevallo's wood chip boiler.

Collins came to Monday night's council meeting to find out if there was any relief in sight for residents of Cardinal Crest Road who are bothered by noise and smoke from the boiler.

One attempt by the university to reduce the noise has only made it worse, Collins reported.

Plans for extending a wall to lessen the sound are now being reviewed, city administrator Don Hughes reported.

"If there are no snags, con-

Sam Fiorella indicted on gambling charge

Sam A. Fiorella, legendary Shelby County gambling figure, was indicted Monday on charges of violating the federal gambling laws. The indictment covers the period from September 1980 to May 1981.

It specified that the gambling business involved dice tables and a blackjack table. Others named in the indictment were George Zarzaur, Masief Resha, Jack P. Rouss, Sr. and Andrew George Tsimpides.

The case has been under investigation for more than a year. No mention was made as to why it took so long to file the indictments. The indictments were announced by Cecil Moses of the Birmingham FBI office, and by U.S. Attorney Frank Donaldson.

Fiorella's brushes with the law date back to the 1950's. His place of operations at that time was a large home on the Shelby county side of the Cahaba River on Old U.S. Highway 31 (now state highway 275).

At one time Governor John Patterson led a raid on the place. At another time the house was ordered permanently padlocked.

He has served time in the Shelby County jail, and in federal prisons at Maxwell Field.

Airport off ground

Authority formed

Shelby County's airport may not be flying high, this year, concerning expansion.

But...action was taken by the county commission Monday to at least put the facility on the taxi ramp for a boom in the future.

On a motion by John Ames, the commission voted to approve the incorporation of an airport authority.

Incorporation is the first step toward the actual formation of a county airport governing body.

However, there is no real authority until the commission officially appoints a board of directors and gives it control.

That action is expected to take place as soon as Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden presents a list of nominees to commissioners for approval.

The incorporation was approved after airport representative Bill Tucker presented commissioners with a petition signed by Larry Lynn Miller, Douglas H. Ballard, G. Alvon Dampier, Richard Simpson and Robert W. Tucker, Jr.

Once a board of directors is approved and the authority is deeded ownership of the county airport, that body will exercise independent control.

Its only tie to the county commission will be the fact that its directors will be appointed by the commission and will be subject to recall.

Larry Chapman of Lane Aero, called the step taken by the commission...."great."

The president of the firm which now leases the county airport said, "It allows people with some knowledge of such things to make decisions relative to airport and its involvement with the community. It takes politics out of running the airport."

Calera police quickly clear two burglaries

The homes of Clyde Long and Colene Mitchell sit almost side-by-side on Route 1 in Calera. On April 25 both were hit by burglars.

Two days later, Calera police had arrested two suspects and recovered the stolen property, according to Chief Harry Deal.

The families lost about $3,000 in appliances, guns, chainsaws and other household items, Deal said.

Investigating officer C.H. Johnson questioned neighbors. Neighbors told investigator Billy O'Bryan that two people were seen in the neighborhood that day.

O'Bryan discovered one man was from Tarrant City, and contacted Tarrant police. Investigators from the two departments joined forces to arrest Ricky Hatcher, 22, of Calera, in Tarrant City, Deal said.

Hatcher and a male juvenile were both charged with two counts of burglary. Deal said Hatcher is being held in the Shelby County Jail.

Stolen items were recovered from several different people and returned to the owners.

Burro dragged on highway; Harpersville men charged

by Bart Slawson

Two Harpersville area men are accused of dragging a small burro behind a pick-up truck on Highway 280 Saturday evening, kicking it in the head and threatening to bury it alive, said humane society officials.

Glen Edwards and Johnny Mack Brown were charged with cruelty to animals, a misdemeanour, a deputy said.

Anne Speakman, director of the Shelby County Humane Society said she investigated the incident and found the men apparently drunk.

"They said the burro was wild and they had to rope it and throw it to catch it. Glen (Edwards) said he made his living catching burros. He complained that I was preventing him from making his living," Speakman said.

Then the men threatened to shoot it or bury it alive, adding they had buried one before, she said. They also said it was funny to watch burros try to kick the dirt off, Speakman said.

Harpersville Police Chief Aubrey Perrigin's report said when the burro apparently refused to walk behind the truck, the driver accelerated.

Perrigin said after the dragging, the truck stopped and one man kicked the burro in the head several times to get it to stand up.

The two finally forced the burro into the truck and left, the report said.

There were several witnesses who stepped forward after the incident. One was Pat Etress of Chelsea.

"My husband and I were on our way to Childersburg and right across from Evans Flea Market, we saw this little burro tied to the bumper of a pick up. The burro was trying to run but the truck was going too fast. It squatted on its haunches trying to stop," she told the Reporter.

Etress said the burro fell on its side and the driver continued to drag it. She estimated they dragged the animal a total of one and a half to two blocks.

"It's front legs and back legs were skinned up and bleeding," she said.

"We passed the truck and the driver was grinning from ear to ear. I felt outraged. We turned around, came back, and wrote down the tag number," Etress said.

Her husband stopped at a phone booth and she called the sheriff. Deputies said somebody had already called and they were on their way.

"I hope they're punished to the fullest extent of the law. I wish they would put them under the jail," Etress said.

Speakman took the burro away from the owners, and carried it by truck to the home of chief deputy James Jones. Jones' wife volunteered to take care of the two-year-old animal.

"She's skinned up and sore. On the left rear leg the skin and muscle was torn off down to the bone and ligaments. She ought to get back to normal in time," James Jones said.

Edwards and Brown could not be reached for comment.

Mayor Ralph W. Sears of Montevallo, and Don Latham, president of the First Bank of Alabaster, area loaded into a "paddy wagon" and taken to "jail" in Birmingham as a stunt to promote donations to the Heart Association. Montevallo Library fund passes $15,000 point

The fund drive for the new Parnell Memorial Library in Montevallo has gone past the half way mark.

Anne Hamilton, chairman of the library board announced that a total of $15,655 has been reached toward the $30,000 goal.

The board and the fund drive steering committee are very encouraged with the response for gifts and memorials to be used for completion of the library, she added.

Preliminary construction has been completed and open house will be held on Sunday, May 15 from 2:30 until 4:30 p.m. at the new building located at the intersection of Valley Streets in Montevallo.

Formal dedicaton of the building will be held after final completion.

The public is invited to the open house on Sunday. Refreshments will be served by the Centrala Garden Club.

The new library will be open for business beginning Monday, May 16. The hours will continue as folows: Mon., Wed., Fri., 9:30 until 12 and 2 until 5 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 12:30.

Issues confuse computer bids

Shelby County is expected to receive bids on a minicomputer system at 10 a.m., Monday, May 16.

But as the deadline for those bids draws near, there are still many unsettled issues.

Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds wants her part of the computer system to be excluded from the bids so that she can secure a link to the state's computer.

Reynolds wants to keep 11 terminals from the old Burroughs system to be used in that link.

She reported that the state link will save the county money on its new system, if approved, because it will decrease the number of computers needed.

She reported that the cost would only include a $170 monthly phone line expense to Montgomery and roughly $6,000 per year for printing of data.

Reynolds said that the state would provide two people to key punch for the county through reappraisal at no cost and one free terminal.

However, commissioners were unwilling to exclude Reynolds from the new computer bid until they could receive some hard cost facts from the state.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden expressed the sentiments of the commission members when he told Reynolds the state offer, "sounded too good to be true."

Reynolds agreed to bring a representative from the state or all needed information to the next commission meeting.

But another concern that lingers is the county's position with Burroughs. That company installed the present county computer on a lease purchase plan.

Commissioner John Ames said that he is not satisfied with the information the commission has on that agreement.

He said, "It is obvious that they (Burroughs) don't want us to make the change. And before we do change we must have some hard facts on where we stand."

Ames pointed out that there is no way the county can save money paying Burroughs over $200,000 and purchasing a minicomputer system for over $300,000 in the same year.

But he said if a savings can be secured with a new computer, it would be a future savings.

Wilsonville answers calls

The Town of Wilsonville has answered two calls for help.

In a 30 minute meeting, Monday night, the town council consented to help a farm operation meet its water needs and voted to answer an agency's plea for financial support.

The council agreed by common consent to sell water to Rex Perry for a flat fee of $30 per year and voted to contribute $500 to Shelby Youth Services and Attention Home.

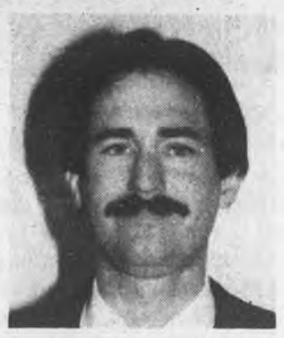

The council also voted to hire someone to cut grass at the town ballfield and to chalk lines for ballgames.

Councilman Woodrow Foster and Mayor Sherrel McClure also agreed to look at drainage problems on Central Hill.

Moore's fuel bill draws fire, support

by Bart Slawson

State Representative Sonny Moore (D-Sterrett) introduced a fuel bill in the legislature that opponents would like to set on fire.

A Calera oil dealer, however, said the bill is necessary to help him compete with big oil companies and stay in business.

The bill, whose immediate future looks dim, would require a mark-up of at least 9% on sales of gasoline, diesel fuel, kerosene, jet fuel, motor oil and other lubricants. It's called the Motor Fuel Marketing Act.

A study by the Alabama Petroleum Council, which lobbies for large oil companies, estimated the bill would drive up the cost of driving in Alabama by $77 million annually.

According to state records, Moore received a $500 campaign contribution (the maximum allowed by law) from the Independent Oil Members of Alabama Political Action Committee. The lobby represents independent oil dealers who would directly benefit from Moore's legislation.

When asked about a connection between the bill and the contribution, Moore said, "That had nothing to do with it whatsover."

"I introduced the bill to help independent jobbers and try to establish a wholesale price. The company owned service stations are trying to put the little man out by cutting prices. They're selling below wholesale to the public but, selling above wholesale to jobbers," he said.

Bernie Higginbotham, owner of Higginbotham Oil Company of Calera agrees with Moore.

"I can't compete. I'm six or seven cents out of line. If the market doesn't change, the major oil companies could very well put me out of business," he said.

He said Moore's bill is a guarantee the big oil companies can't sell below cost. The demise of Higginbotham Oil could throw as many as 32 people out of work, he said.

Tom Dart, associate director of the Alabama Petroleum Council denies the companies are selling below cost. "If he has any proof of that claim, there are federal laws that would take care of it," he said.

Representative Don Murphy (R-Pelham) said he doesn't buy the 'little guy vs. big guy' argument.

"The smaller 'mom and pop' stores that are willing to compete are making money. Everybody said the big groceries, Big B and K-Mart would put them out of business. They didn't," he said.

Hearings on the bill have been set and postponed three times leading oil lobbyists to believe Moore will hold off until the next session.

Moore said he will probably wait for a better time to reintroduce the bill.

Montevallo gives promise to patch road

Montevallo is applying for two grants. But neither one will include any road work in the Evansville community.

Nevertheless, the city promised Monday to do whatever possible to improve a torn up road in that area.

Larry Coleman, the spokesman for residents living on Evansville Circle, said that potholes in the road have turned into ditches.

"We can plow up the road, put gravel on it and reshuffle that every couple of months," City Administrator Don Hughes said.

"Right now we'll accept sawdust or whatever you can offer," Coleman replied.

However, Mayor Ralph Sears said it was his feeling that the city would regress if the road were torn up.

The city had put in the road four years ago at no cost to residents. However, with the present money shortage, property owners would have to be assessed if the road were repaved.

City officials noted that it has never been determined who owns all the property along the road.

Hughes said he would figure what could be done for the least amount of money. Then the matter was handed over to the street committee headed by Councilwoman Billie Lacey.

Even though all of the grants the city has submitted to upgrade the Evansville community have been turned down, the council said they aren't giving up on the area.

One of the latest grant applications, which was approved by the council at a called meeting last Wednesday, will help drainage problems in Evansville if the city gets the money.

The grant request for $267,640 is for the construction of stormwater drainage facilities in the Shoals Creek communtiy.

A second grant the city is after would provide $300,000 to rehabilitate housing in the area around Montevallo Middle School.

Counselor may solve Columbiana problems

by Bert Seaman

The Columbiana council found help on their doorstep when they looked for a way to reduce the number of young people getting into trouble.

The person who has agreed to give the city a helping hand is the person who brought the problem to the city's attention.

Reporting on the Attention Home and Shelby Youth Services, counselor Judy Gilbert said Columbiana young people topped the list in referrals to those services.

After talking with Councilman Bill Seale, Gilbert, who lives in Columbiana, agreed to see if she could turn the local situation around.

"I can't do it overnight," Gilbert told the Reporter in an interview Monday, "but I believe there will be a big difference in six months."

In order to prevent any conflict of interests, Gilbert will discontinue her counseling duties at the Attention Home. She will, however, still handle public relations for the Alabaster facility.

Gilbert's aim is to try and straighten out any problems a young person may have before they need referral to the Youth Services or Attention Home.

The job may not be easy. She feels it's important to see young people who need help rather than talking with them over the phone, so she'll probably find herself getting up in the middle of nights to give assistance.

The city is providing her with a beeper in order to reach her whenever needs arise.

The city is paying her $100 a month.

Editorial opinion

Politics, UA board don't mix

Lt. Governor Bill Baxley is apparently trying to pack the University of Alabama Board of Trustees with people of his own choosing.

He is doing it under Senate Rule 34, passed in the recent special session of the legislature.

That rule gives the Senate Rules committee the right not only to confirm or reject nominations to various state boards, but also gives the committee the right to re-nominate all board positions. Because Baxley, as Lt. Governor, names the members of the Rules Committee, he, in effect, can now exert one-man power in naming board members.

Last week he announced that he opposes all the new trustees nominated by the board of the University of Alabama last summer, and has submitted a list of his own. Unless public opinion arises, he may well get his way.

In our opinion, this is a mistake and a terrible disservice to the people of this state.

The University's Board of Trustees has taken its share of criticism over the years, but last year the board conducted an extensive search to find well qualified people for the seven new positions on the expanded board.

The public was asked for comments and suggestions. The needs of the state as a whole were studied. The nominees who were finally chosen were representative of all the population of this state, and are well prepared to guide the University system as it tries to meet the educational needs of the people.

Baxley wants to sweep away all these nominees. Although no criticism of any of them has come up, he has issued his own slate. His choices also seem to be good people, but they seem to be those who might favor the Tuscaloosa campus over the University's other programs in the state.

However, the question here is, what is best for higher education in Alabama: a slate of nominees carefully chosen, with the public asked to participate, or a political slate chosen solely by the Lt. Governor?

We hope the Senate Rules Committee will rise above political considerations and confirm the nominees submitted by the University's Board of Trustees.

Indictments were returned in 67 cases, 43 cases were dismissed and 22 cases continued.

Thirty cases involved crimes of violence. These included two indictments for manslaughter, four, rape; eight, assault; eight, robbery; three, child abuse.

Walking horse shows involve too much pain

Letter to the editor:

We recently attended The Heart of The Heart of Dixie Horse Show in Columbiana. This was their 20th Anniversary and the proceeds are going to help support the Shelby County High School Athletic Program.

How good it felt to see so many families having such a good time. Big kids, little kids, ponies of all sizes, quarter horses, Arabians, saddlebreds, and others....a really beautiful day and beautiful people.

Then came the walking horse....Only man can take a truly beautiful horse of such historic background, burn its feet, add four-inch pads and heavy weights to its legs and hooves, and trim its back hooves so short that to walk he must almost walk on his front toes.

The chains bang with each step they take. Their legs and feet have many old scars healed with time. Some of the horses stand tied to their trailers, shifting their weight from one leg to the other, trying to ease their pain. You can see the animals tied, legs swollen, stiff and sore.

As each horse is to enter the ring they are checked by the D.Q.P. (designated qualified-person), often times a trainer himself who is appointed by the Walking Horse Association. These poor pitiful animals, so beautiful in their God given gait, enter the ring and even before they complete a round, sweat forms on their necks. Their eyes blaze in pain.

Most of the horse people grumble, "it should be against the law". They turn and look away, not wanting to see the pain in the horses' eyes as they pass.

These horses move in a grotesque, animated way; their back legs drag on top of the hoof as it twists in an unnatural way; The front legs rise and slam to the ground; the chain bangs at the ankle.

Some walking horse people stand at the edge of the ring shouting at the rider. They sound like a pack of wolves going in for the kill. "Whip him, make him work," they yell.

The class event ends. The horses line up in front of the judge and ring master. The horse that moved in the most animated way, the one that appeared to suffer the most, places first.

These poor dumb animals suffer for no reason other than seeing which trainer-owner can animate this naturally beautiful horse the most. No concern for the animals' welfare is shown.

This horse show is for a good cause. We support the efforts of the community to help the high school, but, next year we hope they will leave the walking horse out of the show.

Law day mock trial appreciated

Letter to the Editor:

On April 29, 1983, eighth grade students in Shelby County attended a very special program at Calera High School. The office of the District Court and the Shelby County Bar Association presented a mock court play. The court drama was a unique learning experience. The civics and law teachers would like to express their gratitude for this enrichment opportunity.

Sincere appreciation goes to District Court Judge Patricia M. Smith, Mr. Jim Pino, President of the County Bar Association, and Mr. Evan Major, county office of education. The lawyers who volunteered to participate in the play did an outstanding job and are commended as actors, lawyers, and concerned citizens.

Mr. Danny Goggins, Principal of Calera High School, was a superior host and his efforts in arranging for the program and 900 visiting students was greatly appreciated.

Care fair helpers thanked

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank Mr. Roland Bradford, Mr. Norman Price, Ms. Vickie Kessler, Darlene, and Connie from Shelby Medical Center for all the behind the scenes effort they put into the various Health Care Fairs held around Shelby County this past month.

They truly are the ones who made these Care Fairs so successful by their commitment of time, energy, and expertise.

The commitment to preservation of a good state of health is new in the health care industry. Hospitals in particular are crises intervention oriented and frequently do not have the time or foresight to lead the way in the prevention of illness and the preservation of a high level of well being for the citizens it serves. Mr. Bradford and the Shelby Medical Center staff expressed this interest in the health of our citizens by their willingnesss to sponsor the Care Fairs.

I would like to thank them for all of us who benefited from their interest. Bravo and keep up the good work!

Sincerely,
Jeanette L. Merijanian

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

It's that notebook again -- filling up like rain in a bucket. A letter in the mail from Wilma Spearman Crawford down Atmore way. She wants me to tell the folks at Union Methodist Church, at the next singing, hello for her. Forty-two years she's been away, reading Good Morning every week. Strange, the way words travel from one friend to another, year after year. Sometimes without our even knowing it. She remembers Houston Farr and Fox Polk and the Shelby County Reporter, where Houston and Fox worked.

A big Thank You to Ehney Addison Camp for letting us in on a visit to yesteryear. And to Beston Robertson for sending the information along to Ehney. Sixty years, and time running away, with just the names now, and memories of times half forgotten. One wonders how many of the names are only names now. And how many names identify folks who'll recall a thousand pleasant moments because of this.

The mockingbirds found our strawberry patch ten seconds after the first berry turned pink. We like their singing and they do a lot of it, but the strawberry patch is off limits to them. So I put up a scarecrow. He looked so much like me that folks, passing on the road, waved. And we supposed we had them outdone. Until Monday morning, early, when we looked out the door. One mockingbird was sitting on the very top of my scarecrow's head.

Bobby Foster Roegner, the daughter of Henry and Alice Foster goes with her family and her parents to New Bethesda Church, between Columbiana and Chelsea on highway 47. Now and then' they have a singing up there and Amy and I go. Along with a lot of other folks who like good singing. But there's something else. Bobby Foster Roegner can sing like a mockingbird. If you're up that way and have a little time to spare go in and hope it's time for Bobby to sing 'One Day at a Time'. You'll never forget it.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Would you believe that anyone would consider me a "dream come true?"

It's pretty far-fetched, I know, but I'm proud to say someone does think of me that way.

The person who penned me the note expressing that sentiment was none other than my number one - no, not fan - granddaughter.

Printed with a red magic marker, the sentimental note proclaimed that a grandmother, namely me, was a dream come true.

It almost brought a tear to my eye when she handed it to me on Mother's Day.

And I nearly cried again when I wandered into the kitchen and found a huge white monster humming softly in the corner.

No, it wasn't a big cat. It was a big, white refrigerator.

My old bronze one, which had blended so well with the cabinets, had sat in that spot for years.

But it had been mute for the past few weeks, waiting for some expensive parts to restore it to life.

So, a very thoughtful member of my family thought a new model would make a nice Mother's Day present.

Who could not appreciate such a magnanamous gesture? But WHITE - oh, my. Why white?

It sticks out like a sore thumb.

Dare I exchange it I wonder, without hurting the dear child's feelings?

But speaking of feelings, no one thought of taking mother dear out to lunch, which I'd been hoping for.

Instead of getting lunch, I got a razor blade and was set to trimming wallpaper.

When I finished that, the blade was replaced by a piece of sandpaper and my next assignment was getting the finish off a chair.

You see, my daughter and her husband have bought an old house they're fixing up and I was their helper for the afternoon.

I did get rewarded however. I was taken to a restaurant for supper.

Since we were wearing dirty shorts and T shirts, our selection of eateries was somewhat limited though.

We thought we looked grubby until some barefooted folks in tattered jeans plopped down in the booth next to us.

They almost made me feel dressed up.

Anyway, the food was good and the baby didn't start fussing until we were almost through.

And guess what? I still have another present to look forward to.

One child calls me every day to say they've once again forgotten my gift. But I'll get it tomorrow, they assure me.

Whatever it is, it will be appreciated. Just as long as it isn't big and white and doesn't hum.

The Alabama scene

by Bob Ingram

Gov. George Wallace, in compliance with state law, has filed his financial disclosure statement with the Ethics Commission. It clearly shows he is no millionaire, but it also indicates that he is far from a pauper.

The statement that all public employees must file if they make $15,000-a-year or more each year does not require very specific numbers, in fact it is exceedingly general. For example, if you make more than $10,000 from one source you simply must indicate that. It is anybody's guess how much more than the $10,000 you actually made.

Gov. Wallace reported that he made "more than $10,000" in interest from three separate accounts---two savings and loan deposits and government bonds. In addition, he reported he made more than $1,000 but less than $10,000 in four other interest bearing accounts.

About all this proves is that he made a minimum of $34,000 in interest in 1982. You don't need to be very good at math to figure out that if a person makes that much in interest, then he has a considerable sum deposited or invested. For example, if his average yield in 1982 was 10 per cent, he would have had to have $340,000 invested to make $34,000.

Honest citizen returns purse

by David F. Moore

That bad, sinking feeling hit Janice "Tweet" Bearden Monday morning. She reached inside her purse to get her billfold, and it was gone.

The billfold contained $201 -- not to mention her drivers license, numerous credit cards, and various other items of identification.

"I knew immediately what I'd done with it," she said. She had left the billfold on top of her car after buying gas that morning at a convenience store on U.S. 280 in Chelsea.

Returning to the store, however, did nothing to alleviate the sinking feeling in her stomach. No one at the store had seen the billfold.

Several hours and several prayers later, her phone rang. Ray Tidwell of Westover had found her billfold.

Apparently the billfold had slid off the top of her car when she turned onto Old 280. Tidwell had been driving down the road, seen some papers blowing in the wind, and turned around to investigate.

Near the papers he found the billfold -- along with two "C" notes and $1 bill. Not only did he return the money, but Bearden said he went so far as to collect all the scattered papers along the road.

"I was thinking someone might take the money and give me back my billfold," a very relieved Bearden told the Reporter. "But Ray found all the money and every one of my cards and papers!"

"I wanted to let everyone know that there are still good, honest, young people in the world who care for others."

Accident prompts traffic light crusade

by Bart Slawson

The erratic traffic light at the intersection of Highway 31 and Cross Creek Road in Pelham became a personal cause for Benny Zito on Oct. 23, 1982.

That was the day Zito's car was rammed broadside by a truck as he was driving to work.

They took his car away in a box and Zito in an ambulance. After the wreck, he didn't remember anything until the end of November. When he came around, he was blind.

Four major neurological surgeries later, he can see and speak again.

After the doctors told him he was improving, Zito started a one man campaign to get the light fixed. He knocked on doors called the mayor, the state highway department and the police to try to get the light fixed.

The light has plagued Pelham city officials as well, who are responsible for the light.

"We can't keep it fixed. It's been out, off and on, for a few weeks now," said Pelham Mayor Burk Dunaway.

But Zito, 27, said it hasn't worked right for several months. Twice a day he keeps a log recording if the light works or not each time he drives through the light. He said everybody he talked to said it was someone else's problem.

On Tuesday morning, Mayor Dunaway said he was fed up. "This morning I ordered a $3,000 mechanism from a Tennessee company to fix the light for good," he said.

Dunaway said crews have worked on the light several times, but the light never stayed fixed. The mayor added that the light was outdated when the state turned it over to the city and has been on the blink ever since.

struction should begin about mid-summer," the city administrator said.

Collins and other residents living in the neighborhood behind the machinery have registered complaints since its installation nine months ago.

Enumerating the problems the equipment has caused, Collins listed noise, vibrations, smoke, dust and silt residue, lights shining in her house at night and an unsightly view.

"I came to see if I'm going to get any help from the city or if I have to fight this myself," Collin said.

Mayor Ralph Sears explained that the city is acting on the advice of its attorneys by waiting until the university does everything possible to solve the problem.

Vincent wins track titles

by Fred Guarino

When it comes to track, everyone in Shelby County knows about Vincent's girls.

But what about that town's male athletes?

Well folks, believe it or not, the boys have finally caught some thunder.

It happened last Friday and Saturday at Troy State University in competition for state outdoor track honors.

It was no surprise that the Vincent varsity girls added 2A state outdoor honors to their previous indoor state and county tournament scalps.

But surprise, surprise, surprise... for the first time ever, Vincent's male runners snatched the A-2A junior high state crown as well.

The fact that the junior high entered only two runners makes that accomplishment an even greater feat. Losing schools ran as many as nine track stars.

To clinch the male title:

Earl Lawson won the mile run with a time of four minutes 52 seconds, the half mile with a time of two minutes 8.12 seconds, finished second in the 100 meter hurdles with a time of 16.9 and sixth in the long jump with a leap of 19 feet.

Hugh Kidd finished first in the 200 meter dash with a time of 24.42 seconds, second in the discus with a throw of 104'2", third in the shot put with a throw of 38'7.25", and fifth in the 100 meter run with a time of 12.9 seconds.

The Vincent duo competed against runners from 41 teams to win the state crown.

Even Vincent's varsity boys managed a respectable eighth place finish among 26 teams.

Phillip Bruno finished third in both one mile and two mile events, George Datcher finished fourth in the discus, and Thomas Turner finished sixth in the two mile run.

But while the boys can finally crow about something, the girls are still number one.

Even with a system of scoring that allowed teams to collect more points, VHS took a commanding grip on first place.

According to VHS coaches Jim and Debbie Barnes the girls tallied 84 points to 60 for White Plains and 52 points for J. F. Shields.

Leading the way for super star Teresa Peterson who accounted for 38 of those points alone.

Peterson won the 100 meter low hurdles with a time of 15.95 seconds, won the 300 meter low hurdles with a time of 47.19 seconds and won the long jump with a leap of 17'1.40".

In addition, she finished four in the 400 meter run with a time of 62.2 seconds and she ran on the 400 meter relay team which finished in second place.

According to Jim Barnes, Peterson's accomplishment is outstanding considering that he has only a 15 minute rest between the 400 meter dash and the 100 meter hurdles and no rest before competing in the long jump.

Adding to the points for VHS, Sebrena Kidd won the discus with a throw of 110'11" and finished third in the shot put with a toss of 34'2.50".

Wanda McCrimon won the high jump with an effort of 5'1", finished second in the 100 meter hurdles with a time of 15.96 and also ran on the 400 meter relay team.

Ane Stone finished third in the discus with a throw of 102'1".

Other relay runners for VHS were Sharon Kelley and Ellen Jordan.

Freshman Carol Abernathy and seventh graders Adriane McCrimon and Sonia Kidd also competed.

Big fish

"I thought I'd hooked a rock," deputy sheriff Shelton Griffith laughed as he told the Reporter about the 23¼lb. salt water striper he caught last week. The Calera man was fishing with two buddies on the bank next to Lay Dam when he hooked the whopper. And we mean WHOPPER. (Photo by Bert Seaman)

Warriors fall at home to end title dream

by Fred Guarino

The 11-2 score must have be backwards.

The name of the winning team and the winning pitcher must have be wrong.

Only the place for the Thursday night, Region 4 baseball contest between Thompson High School and the Stanhope-Elmore Mustangs sounds right.

The game was played before a predominantly home crowd of THS fans at Buck Creek.

For those fans, the outcome of the game was all backwards. On paper, several things just didn't add up right...

For example, Billy Woodham's Area 8 champion Warriors were previously 16-2 on the season.

And while S-E won the Area 7 title, it did so with only a 8-5 mark.

The Mustangs so far played only area contest, while Thompson had the experience of having played a well rounded schedule.

Logically, the edge should have gone to THS.

Take for example, too, the perfect 10-0 record of Thompson's starting pitcher, Ronnie Rasp. His opponent, Bub Akins, was 5-2 on the year.

Also, the Warriors boasted power hitter Buddy Cofer.

But Thompson's 11-2 whipping adds up right when you consider that the important big hits came for the Mustangs. And, the most crucial errors fell on Thompson's side of the scorebook.

S-E scored in the first inning on an error. And in the fourth inning they scored on a homerun and and a base hit.

THS trailed 3-0 until Johnny Thomas got a base hit in the bottom of the fourth, and a runner crossed the plate.

In the top of the six, the Mustangs scored three runs on more errors, and one run on a hit.

Down 7-1, the Warriors did not add to their tally until the bottom of the sixth on yet another RBI by John Thomas.

But the game was not really over until the Mustangs hit two homeruns in the final inning and brought two other runners home for an 11-2 lead.

The Warriors tried to rally with two men on base and two outs. But the last Warrior fell on strikes and Thompson's ambitions for more state glory folded.

It's over

Church golf tournament produces many winners

William Rasco captured the First Flight Championship of the Ross Mullins Memorial Golf Tournament.

The event was held last Saturday in Centreville for the First Baptist Church of Columbiana.

Rasco fired an 83 for the championship. His brother-in-law K.R. Nivens came in second four shots back. Rasco also won the closest-to-the-pin, just missing a hole-in-one on the course's number two hole.

In the second flight, Stan Ennis won in a three way sudden death tiebreaker. Placing second was Russell Rasco with Herbert Sims third.

Tim Williams, pastor of First Baptist, was the winner of the third flight. Deacon Terry Smith placed second. J.C. Rasco won the fourth flight with a score of 94. Jeff Hand Jr. came in second four shots back.

In the final flight, Carl Jones took the trophy but not before Terrell Guthrie gave him a run. Guthrie succumbed on the final hole.

Gaining notoriety was Charles McCombs who won the sandbagging prize. Jamie Williams garnered the worst score reward. Russell won the gorilla prize with the longest drive.

Golfers at First Baptist continue in their intramural program next month with a title match against Lakeside Baptist of Hoover.

Bat girls

Babbi Hocutt, Cynthia Allen, Sharon Kines and Kendell Davenport kept Thompson High School's loss to the Stanhope-Elmore Mustangs from being TOO upsetting. And when you lose a big game, you need all the smiling support you can get. Right? (Photo by Fred Guarino)

When it counts, Wildcats are tough

by Fred Guarino

Coach Bill Reid's Shelby County Wildcats may be short "on paper" in experienced baseball players this season.

But the team is certainly not short on action, when it counts.

Last Wednesday afternoon, the Wildcats whipped a scrappy bunch from Calera at home 11-7 to post a 6-4 season mark.

Earlier this year, the squad which returned only one starter from an 18 man, 18-5 team last season, fell to the mighty Thompson Warriors by just one run in ten innings for the Area 8 sub area title.

So, you can believe, the Wildcats are itching to face the Warriors again in the county tournament, which begins Monday, May 16.

Last Wednesday, the Wildcats took Calera to the woodshed in the first inning, scoring four runs to none for the visitors.

Kevin Crumpton slammed a homerun ball that traveled over 327 feet to clear the left field fence.

Shelby County continued to pound the Eagles for a 7-0 lead after three innings. The Eagles didn't manage to get anything going until Reid pulled three starters out of the action.

Calera managed two runs in the fourth but things didn't improve much. The Wildcats swapped scoring innings with Calera until the tally stood 11-4 after six.

Jeff Jones of SCHS slapped a triple on his first hit this season.

The Eagles made a push in the final inning to close the score 11-7, but that was the best they could do and the Wildcats clawed their sixth victim of the year.

Statistically:

	Runs	Hits	Struck Out
SCHS	11	12	10 Eagles
Calera	7	7	4 Wildcats

Cecil Wood went all the way at the mound for Shelby County to claim the win and Boo Jones went all the way to take the loss for Calera

* * * *

But what about those Wildcats? Who are they and how short was Reid on experience this year?

Basically, the Wildcats gave up 11 seniors to graduation from last year's team:

Bobby Greenwalt (now of UM fame); C Matt Dill; 3B Tim Smith and Mike Waldrop; 1B Jason Shaw; 2B Randy Lewis; CF Bryan Stanley; RF Thomas Simon; Alan Sigle who died in an automobile accident LF; Jason Hallford and Ben Jones.

The only returning starter on the team is Ronald Benton who played SS. This year he plays 3B and P.

The rest of the team is made up of players who saw either regular, part-time or no action at all last season. Regular, does not mean starting action.

Team members and their status from last season are:

Seniors: Russell Walker, 1B (regular); Jeff Jones OF; Kevin Crumpton, 2B (regular); Russell Horton, OF; and Jason Head, (part-time) C and DH

The only junior on the team is Cecil Wood, P and OF who saw part-time action last season.

Sophomores: Gary Lewis, SS (new); Kenneth Jones, 2B and P (part-time); Mark Cardwell, 3B (new); Bryan Bentley, C (part-time); and Kevin Jones, C and OF (new).

Two freshmen seeing action are David Wood, P and 1B and Tim Billingsley, 1B and OF.

But the newest member is starting eighth grader Ambrose Wood who plays CF.

Coach Reid calls this year a rebuilding one for his team. But that might be hard to take by 3A powerhouses Sylacauga and Childersburg who fell to the Wildcats and by the Warriors who barely edged them 2-1 for the Sub area title.

Reid feels that the future will be bright for Shelby County. Next year he will return one senior and five juniors who he calls "a good nucleus" to build a ballclub around.

The Wildcats will face the Thompson Warriors this afternoon for their final regular season encounter. However, Reid places little emphasis on that game and a twinkle in his eyes indicate dreams of winning a county tournament title are still alive for this year.

Wildcats

The Shelby County Wildcats have their eyes on a county championship this season. And, they could well be the next champions considering that they gave Thompson a real scare in a sub area title match. Not in order are SCHS ball players: Ronald Benton, Russell Walker, Jeff Jones, Kevin Crumpton, Russell Horton, Jason Head, Cecil Wood, Jr., Gary Lewis, Kenneth Jones, Mark Cardwell, Bryan Bentley, Kevin Jones, David Wood, Tim Billingsley, and Ambrose Wood. UM sports update

UM basketball, coming off a 16-12 season, signed a third junior college player this past week.

The latest to sign with Coach Bill Elder is Dexter Walker, a 6-4, 180 pound guard from Emmanuel Junior College in Franklin Springs, Ga.

Walker averaged 13.6 points and five rebounds a game last season.

Montevallo's other signees are 6-7 Curtis Campbell from Southern Junior College of Business and 6-6 Clarence Rowe from Lawson State Junior College. Coach Elder hopes to sign one or two more players.

The Amateur Softball Association will hold a non-sanctioned tournament this Saturday, (May 14), at Orr Park in Montevallo.

The Falcon Club Invitational will be an eight team double elimination tournament with the first rounds set for 8 a.m. and 9:10 a.m. and the finals scheduled for 5:30 p.m.

Teams entered in the tournament are the Montevallo Misfits, Montevallo Dragons, Jemison Longshots, Jemison Gems, Jemison Jets, Russell Athletic, Selma Medical Specialists, and Busch of Sylacauga. There is no charge for admission.

The UM baseball team ended its regular season on a happy note by knocking off UAB 6-5.

The win this past Saturday night at Kermit A. Johnson Field gave the Falcons a sweep of the two game series this year with Montevallo winning 14-13 earlier in the year in Birmingham.

It's time to go fishing

It's time to go fishing.

And, not only are the fish jumping after the bait, some super events are luring fishermen into competition.

In terms of fishing, Lay Port Marina, Bozo's Fish Camp, Okomo Marina, and Camp Waxahatchie all have good things to report for those in search of bass.

Nell Lewis of Lay Port says bass are hitting worms and top water lures and less spectacularly, some crappie are biting.

At Bozo's the bass are reported to be striking in the weedbeds in the morning and afternoons and off the points in the middle of the day.

J. T. Boykin says that crappie are running three to five feet deep.

Okomo's Jerry Wooten says crappie are hitting in the stick-up and weeds and bass are hitting spinner and lunker lures.

At Camp Waxahatchie, Lilliam Hyche is beaming.

She reports that one fellow recently caught ten bass which weighed a total of 27 pounds on a fly rod.

She says crappie are running four feet and deeper but those being hauled in are nice.

Why the beam on her face?

Hyche recently went out and caught eight bass, five crappie and one bream on one lure... a Repalla.

What about those sporting events.

Jack's Hamburgers is sponsoring a tournament, Saturday, May 21 at Camp Waxahatchie.

Funds will go both to the winner of the event and to help support the Diabetes Research Hospital in Birmingham.

The Verbena Volunteer Fire Department will host the first annual Peach Blossom Classic on Chilton County's Lake Mitchell Saturday, May 28.

All proceeds will go to help the fire department.

And, May 9-June 4, Wal-Mart is sponsoring a no entry fee required big fish contest.

Nine year-old wins...chop, chop Montevallo's Taekwondo Karate Club now has something to brag about.

The club recently attended the Grand National Tournament in Little Rock and brought home two trophies.

Competing among 1,814 clubs from 50 states a 9 year-old, Rachel McKinney brought home first place honors in free fighting and third place honors in Red Belt forms.

Brett Collins, a 19 year-old first degree Black Belt went through three sparrings before being eliminated.

Science students compete countywide

The first annual Shelby County Science Competition drew 130 of the top students from all seven county high schools.

The event was held April 28 at Calera High School. However, teams from Thompson, Pelham and Montevallo apparently weren't intimidated by any "home court" advantage Calera may have had.

Thompson took first place in physics team competition, followed by Montevallo and Chelsea. Thompson also took first in biology team competition, followed there by Calera and Vincent.

Pelham captured first place in advanced biology, ahead of the SCHS and Calera. And in Chemistry, Montevallo put together the brains necessary to beat Pelham and Thompson.

In individual chemistry competition, William Edwards of Calera won first place. Matt Pigan of Thompson finished second, followed by Jeff Denney from SCHS.

Rhonda Carter of Vincent High took first place honors in individual competition in advanced biology. Dale Dalhey of Pelham and Mark Dyer of Calera finished second and third.

In the biology brain war, Pelham's Jody Otts won first place, ahead of Thompson's Sam Hamm and Joe Gerald, also of Pelham.

Thompson's Chris Ridley won first place in individual physics competition. Jimmy Grubbs, also of Thompson, came in second, and Greg Sigle won third for SCHS.

The event was coordinated by Shelby County math and science rescource teacher Glenda Mims. Mims said it went over so well, the event will become an annual thing.

Consultants for the day long competition were: Dr. Rufus Webster, Bessemer City Schools; Dr. Neil Hall, UAB; and Dr. Jim Martin, UAB. Emcee was Gene Lively of WVTM tv.

Search called off

by Bart Slawson

A 13-year-old Birmingham boy became lost at Oak Mountain State Park about 7:15 p.m. Saturday and park officials called out the Shelby County Amateur Radio Emergency Service (SCARES) and Vulcan Trail Association to help search.

Talmadge Butler, the park's chief of security, coordinated the two-hour search. But about the time the main search party of 21 people was assembled, the boy walked out of the woods in good condition. The boy's name was not released.

"He didn't know how late it was. He just didn't meet up with the people he was looking for," Butler said. Park medical personnel checked him over and he was fine, Butler said.

"We've got a real good relationship with hikers in the park," Butler said.

VTA members know the trails well and suggest people stay on trails to prevent getting lost, said Kenneth Stallings, VTA spokesman.

VTA sponsors hike about one Sunday a month. For more information call Les Miller, VTA president, 879-2682.

"Hikers should get a flashlight and a trail map. That's what most of them forget. Most of our hikers don't get lost, they just run out of daylight," Butler said.

Recital set

Students of the Judy Trotter school of dance will present their recital on Saturday, May 14.

It will take place in Palmer auditorium at the University of Montevallo.

Dances will consist of ballet, tap and acrobatic. The public is invited. Admission is free.

Rabies easy to transmit

by Philip Hubbard

The real fear of rabies is never fully appreciated until one is exposed to an animal suspected of having the disease.

If you or someone you know has ever been bitten by a rabies suspect, then you know about the often agonizing procedure to determine if the animal is indeed infected with rabies. If the animal is a pet dog or cat, it must be quarantined under the observation of a veterinarian for ten days.

Rabid animals usually die within four days of onset of characteristic symptoms. In the case of a wild animal, the animal is sacrificed and its head is submitted to a suitable laboratory for examination of brain tissues.

If the animal is positive for rabies, you must begin the series of post-exposure shots immediately.

One problem, however is that a person may not even know that he or she has had contact with a rabid animal and needs a vaccination. When the symptoms appear (sometimes months after exposure) it is too late.

Therefore, it is vitally important to know how rabies is transmitted, how to avoid being exposed, and what to do if you are.

Rabies is commonly transmitted to humans by the bite of infected animals that have the virus in their saliva. Infection may also occur by saliva getting into existing skin wounds.

Even rubbing your eye with a hand exposed to infected saliva can introduce the virus into your body. Under certain circumstances, transmission of the virus through the air may occur.

Rabies affects all warm-blooded animals, therefore any warm-blooded animal can transmit it to humans.

Since the closest source of rabies is household pets, you should have your dogs and cats vaccinated each year.

With the spread of suburbia, the appearance of an abnormally affectionate raccoon in the back yard may present a temptation to adopt the critter as a pet. Don't do it! It most likely has rabies.

Tell your children to avoid contact with any wild animal, stray dog or cat, no matter how tame it appears.

Montevallo trucking firm gives in, moves out in wake of court ruling

The owner of a trucking business and the city of Montevallo appear to have resolved their differences.

Tony Hall is moving his trucking terminal from its Shelby Street location to a site in the industrial park on Hwy. 25.

At a special called council meeting last Wednesday, the city gave Hall until June 1 to make the move. The city also gave Hall permission to open another business on Main Street.

Hall is now in the process of fixing up the former Sherman Holland Ford dealership building as a truck service center and a used car lot.

"I think we've got everything ironed out," Hall told the Reporter, referring to his differences with the city.

"I think this (new) business will help the city," Hall remarked, adding, "I want to add to the city, not take away from it."

The city and Hall have been at odds for some two years, as officials have tried unsuccessfully to get Hall to move his truck terminal from an area zoned residential.

Hall claimed there were other businesses operating in the same area and that the city was discriminating against him.

But city officials say those businesses were grandfathered in when the R-1 zoning was approved in 1973. Hall began his business in 1975.

Legal action was initiated in January when the city filed a suit against the trucker in Shelby County's circuit court.

After a hearing in March, the judge rendered a decision April 6, finding the trucker in violation of the city's zoning ordinance.

If Hall has not vacated the Shelby Street location by June 1, the city has papers ready to file to declare him in contempt of the court order to move.

The trucker is now in the process of preparing the four acre site located at the industrial park entrance.

Ed hearing draws interest

On Tuesday, six people had already signed up to speak at the Board of Education's budget hearings May 24.

But the board's Finance Coordinator Jim Davis said school principals told him there will be at least double that number who want to make requests.

Only five people showed up at last year's hearing which was held in July.

Even if there isn't enough money to accomplish everything that's asked for, the hearing still gives citizens the opportunity to "make those needs known," Davis remarked.

"Although it's often assumed we're aware of all the needs in the school system, we aren't," Davis said.

The decision on what goes in the budget depends on how much money is expected next year.

This year, checks from the state have been cut 10%, but the financial coordinator expects the cut to be less during the next school year.

"But there's no way you can ever get caught up," he observed.

One of the difficulties in making the budget, Davis pointed out, is not knowing how much will be received from the state until the last check arrives Oct. 10.

Since the fiscal year ends Sept. 30, Davis said, "We have to amend right up to the last minute."

Citizens who want to address the board on the 24th should make a reservation by calling 669-2491. Each speaker will have up to ten minutes to make requests.

The board requests that whatever remarks are made be written and turned in when the speaker finishes.

The hearings are now scheduled to begin at 4 p.m., but with the additional speakers that are expected, the hour will probably change to early afternoon.

The board's regular May meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m.

A called meeting of the board has been changed from the 17th to the 18th to ensure the presence of a quorum.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Faith Only

Jas. 2:19-26 "Thou believest that God is one; thou doest well: the demons also believe, and shudder. But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith apart from works is barren? Was not Abraham our father justified by works, in that he offered up Isaac his son upon the altar? Thou seest that faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect; and the scripture was fulfilled which saith, And Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned unto him for righteousness; and he was called the friend of God. Ye see that by works a man is justified, and not only by faith. And in like manner was not also Rahab the harlot justified by works, in that she received the messengers, and sent them out another way? For as the body apart from the spirit is dead, even so faith apart from works is dead.

If you say, "I BELIEVE", well, so do the demons.

"Our low prices and personal service make us more than just another drug store."

We work hard at keeping prices down for you. In fact, our average prescription price is substantially lower than you'll find anywhere else around. That's true whether you compare our prices with discount store prices or with special senior citizen discount prices.

And our computer remembers every prescription we fill. That's a big help when you need facts for tax and insurance records.

We try to keep up with your needs. Since 1965, we've been renting and selling home health care supplies like hospital beds, wheelchairs, canes and walkers.

No wonder people say we're more than just another drug store.

Clowning

The clowning around these Riverchase Middle School students were doing in class recently was just what the teacher ordered. Clown make-up was one of the classes students could take when a Fine Arts Day was held at the school. Watching Tiffany Bedford get her "face" are Timo Haapanen, Michael Patrick, Dale Nall, Greg Kennedy.

Housing authority seen as key to Alabaster economic growth

by Bart Slawson

"Everybody benefits!," said Alabaster Mayor H.A."Doc" Rubin.

He may be right. Alabaster officials appear to have found a way to stimulate the town's economy, banking, employment, population and tax base -- all in one program.

And they say they can do it with no risk to the city.

The magic formula is a housing authority, which under state law can be set up by a city council as a vehicle for low interest loans to housing developers.

Palmer O'Barr, a financial consultant from Birmingham, makes his living arranging "marriages" between growth-hungry towns and developers in search of cheap loans.

The proposed authority would serve low to moderate income families (moderate income is $38,000) in a multi-family arrangement like condominiums, O'Barr said.

Although O'Barr refused to identify the Birmingham developers he is trying to interest in dealing with the authority, he did say the first construction phase of Willow Creek development would cost $6 to $8 million.

Cross Creek developers, who started Willow Creek but didn't have the money to finish it, could likely be one of the firms O'Barr is working on.

The city installed water, sewer and streets in the Willow Creek area before the project stalled, so it seems an ideal area to restart, O'Barr said.

Another benefit of the housing authority idea is that bonds will be insured by the federal government or private mortgage insurance firms, giving them an automatic 'AA' rating on the bond market, O'Barr said.

Mayor Rubin is sold on the idea.

"Through this housing authority, developers can establish a means to get low-interest bonds and we aren't liable for anything. It's a magnificent growth factor," he said.

The plan takes advantage of a little-used 1936 law allowing cities to set up boards to secure low interest bonds. Such boards have been approved by the attorney general's office.

"What's killing the building industry is high-interest rates. The housing authority gives builders the opportunity to beat those high rates," Rubin said.

The mayor estimated the new Willow Creek development would bring in about 500 more citizens into Alabaster, stimulate retail sales, employment, and yield benefits for banks.

"If it's there to use, why not use it? There's no reason to oppose it," Rubin said. "We want to keep Alabaster a go-and-get'em city."

The housing authority is scheduled for discussion at the next Alabaster City Council meeting set for Monday, May 16, at city hall.

County skies will be buzzing with air show Saturday

If you're anywhere between Alabaster and Calera Saturday, keep your head down. The air will be full of planes, daredevils and parachutists.

This weekend, Air Show '83 is happening at the Shelby County Airport. The show runs through Sunday, with gates opening each day at 10 a.m., and action starting at 2 p.m.

David Campbell, spokesman for the Birmingham Aero Club which sponsors the high-flying event, said no one will want to miss the 24-man skydive in which all the jumpers will attempt to link up during a 120-mph free fall.

If they succeed, it will be the first demonstration jump of its kind in the history of the Southeastern United States, he said.

The jumpers will exit at 10,000 feet and attempt the feat twice a day both Saturday and Sunday until they succeed.

Other airborne guests this year include the popular Valiant Air Command. Among the rebuilt warbirds the command will be 'flying out of history' are two P-51 Mustangs.

Also expected on hand are three T-6 Navy trainers, a B-25 bomber, a C-47 cargo plane and two T-28 trainers.

Earl and Paula Cherry will fly a sky-writing and smoke-writing act. "She walks on the wings while he flys acrobatics," Campbell said.

The show includes plane-rides, displays, exhibits and plenty of noisy fun.

Tickets will be available at the gate, and children 12 and under get in free.

Proceeds from the air show will benefit the Southern Museum of Flight. The donation is tax deductible.

Beta officers

New Beta Club officers from Chelsea High School were installed at a banquet honoring new members of the senior club. They are: Tracey Dorough, president; Theresa Cain, vice-president; Sandy Brasher, secretary-treasurer; Tracey Massey, reporter. Outgoing president Celeste Melton was presented the National Beta Service award.

Montevallo winners

Montevallo Elementary School student Jill Lawley (back row 3rd from left) won a first place award in the state social studies fair. Renee Robertson (2nd from left back row) received an honorable mention. Other students whose exhibits went to the state event are: (1st row l-r) Jamie Roberts, Sandy Wilder, Jessica Smitherman. Others on the back row are Clare Vance and Brandy Lucas.

Alabaster students are printed

In a joint program sponsored by the Thompson Elementary P.T.O. and the Alabaster Police Department, over 1,000 preschool and elementary school children were fingerprinted last week.

This project is an outgrowth of a nationwide movement to help with the identification of lost or missing children.

Linda Roberts, chairperson for the event, emphasized the importance of having accurate and descriptive information.

The cards, which were turned over to the parents, contained not only the fingerprints, but also space for identifying birthmarks and dental information.

Olympic basketball comes to north Shelby

The Olympic games coming to Shelby County?

Well, not quite. But Shelby County youths will have the opportunity this summer to participate in a sport identified with the Olympics.

An Olympic youth basketball program sponsored by Converse Inc. and administered by the YMCA will be carried on at Thompson and Pelham High Schools.

Meeting with school representatives Friday to discuss the program, the Shelby County Y's Executive Director Molly McGregor explained that there are no fees for participants.

She said the game is 3 on 3 half-court basketball and is open to boys and girls between 12 and 17.

THS Principal Alan Fulton felt that the program would be a useful addition to the sports program in the school.

"It will start off the younger kids that we don't have much opportunity to work with," he noted.

At the same time, Fulton observed, the program will enable those already in the schools' athletic program, to keep their skills toned during the summer.

"Our goal is to have 200 kids at each site," McGregor told the group at Friday's meeting.

She said the deadline to register is May 27.

CHS installs club officers

The Calera High School Junior Civitan Club has installed new officers.

Elected to lead the club through the upcoming year are: Michelle Pearson, president, Emily Edwards, vice-president, Katrina Lawrence, secretary, Stacy Harding, treasurer, reporter Sharon Killingsworth, and Patrick Gallavan, chaplain.

Betty Alverson serves as faculty sponsor for the club. Beth Godfrey, the outgoing president, recently, installed the officers during the club's annual banquet.

Thompson sweeps math tournament

"Math test on Friday!" Those are words which can put fear into the hearts of school children everywhere.

But not so with the 4th and 5th grade math teams from Thompson Elementary.

Last Thursday, the two teams, coached by David Little and Emily Watts,swept 6 of 8 trophies in the west Shelby County Math Tournament.

The tournament, which included teams from Montevallo, Helena, and Valley, was devised two years ago to give elementary age students a chance to sample math competition. (This age group is not included in the County-wide competition.)

The tournament was designed to test general math skills, speed and accuracy.

Thompson's two teams won 1st place overall in both age groups.

Runners-up were: 4th grade - Helena (2nd) Valley (3rd); 5th grade - Montevallo (2nd) Valley (3rd).

Individual winners were:

•4th grade: 1st Nikki Price - Thompson (perfect score), 2nd Marnie Rutledge, 3rd Brian Young - Thompson

•5th grade: 1st Tracie Cole - Thompson, 2nd Erica King - Thompson, 3rd Frank Patrick.

Other team members and alternates from Thompson were: Michelle Kent, Karla Claxton, Amy Tucker, Bradley Hubbard, Tara Stanley, Jeffrey Sides, Steve Jones, Bo Eisen, Shane Joyner, Andra Simmons, Michael Schmale, and Michael Friedman.

Bus maintenance earns certification

School bus maintenance in Shelby County has undergone a major upgrading. Six employees of the maintenance shop recently received their master mechanic's certification from the state.

According to board of education transportation coordinator Braxton Baker, the men are now qualified at the state level for diagnosing and repairing school busses -- inside-out, from the brakes and tires, to the safety strobe on the roof.

Baker said the shop crew has been working towards the certification all year.

"This means we have a highly skilled group of men looking after our buses," he said. "They also do maintenance on about a dozen county board of education vehicles."

The county's school bus fleet presently runs 109 buses every day, with ten others kept in safe, running order for backups.

The importance of the certification is emphasized by the fact that 9,000-10,000 Shelby County school children ride the buses daily, Baker said. The fleet averages 5,500 miles per day, and tallies 962,500 miles per school year -- enough for two round trips to the moon.

The school's transportation operation was budgeted at $1 million this year. Baker said that covers only the transporation of students and maintenance, not capital outlay for any new buses.

Park bans breakables

Breakable containers have been outlawed at Oak Mountain and other State Park Beach areas.

According to park officers, the regulation became effective April 19.

A breakable container is anything subject to breaking, shattering, fracturing, disintegrating or otherwise fragmenting.

Violators will be subject to a fine of as much as $500, plus court costs, imprisonment up to six months or both under paragraph 9-2-9, Code of Alabama.

NEW DIET METHOD IS EARMARKED FOR SUCCESS

"THE APPETITE CONTROL UNIT EXPERTS PRESSURE ON THE NERVE ENDING IN THE EAR WHICH CONTROLS APPETITE AS SHOWN IN THE DIAGRAM OF ACUPUNCTURE POINTS"

The small typewritten note taped on the receptionist's window sounds almost too good to be true: Call Body Reflections/America's Health Systems about the new method of weight control.

No shots or pills.
No fad diets.
No exercising.
No will-power required.
Best of all, the weight loss is permanent.

J.N. Milovich, a certified acupuncturist, assures that it is all true, and that it works almost without exception; he can attest to its success because he is using it himself.

It's called an appetite control unit, a tiny, plastic mold which fits into the ear and acts to suppress the appetite. The appetite control unit is based on the same principle as weight control through acupuncture, but this overcomes the weak points of acupuncture.

Acupuncture itself was developed centuries ago by the Chinese, and has been used with remarkable success in treating a variety of diseases and chronic conditions.

More recently, it has been adapted to use in controlling weight, usually with a staple which is implanted in the proper stimulation point in the earlobe. No one knows for sure how this works, except that there are nerve endings in the ear which end up in the same point in the brain nerve endings in the stomach.

The problem with acupuncture is that the staple remains in the ear permanently for a specified length of time, and can result in overstimulation of the nerve endings. The nerve endings become numb. It's the same as if you kept your legs crossed for a week - when you finally tried to uncross them, they'd be numb.

The appetite control unit overcomes this problem because it is worn only a few minutes during the day, so there is no danger of overstimulation.

There are more and more around the country who are using the appetite control unit that are desiring a successful means of weight control, and many more have become interested in the method. Within the next couple of years, it is expected this will become a standard procedure.

In the United States, there are many people that have lost from 40-80 lbs. using the appetite control unit (references are available). It is very effective when people on a diet reach a plateau - that period of time when despite their continued dieting, they just do not seem to lose. This of course, is temporary, but, can be very discouraging and this is usually when most people go off their diet.

However, the appetite control unit helps to overcome this, since it makes you feel full while on a low intake of food.

The procedure for fitting a patient for an appetite control unit involves taking an impression of the ear using a putty-like compound which solidifies to a rubbery consistency. This impression is then sent to the laboratory, where the actual appetite control unit is made. The clear lucite appetite control unit, which is virtually invisible when worn, has imbeded in it tiny steel balls which exert pressure at the proper point in the ear for appetite suppression.

What results is a change in the "degree of hunger", says Milovich. "For instance, when I go to lunch now, I'm hungry for lunch - but I'm not starving for lunch like I once was."

The appetite control unit is not for just anyone. It is not recommended for people who want to lose only a few pounds. This is for people with a true weight-loss problem, who have been the route with different diets, and found nothing that has worked.

Most people desire weight loss for cosmetic reasons. But, their first concern should be for them to shed excess pounds to maintain good health.

"Fat people don't live as long. They're more inclined to diabettes, heart disease and high blood pressure. What we're doing for these people with the appetite control unit is not just getting them into a small dress size - we're adding years to their lives."

A special offer to introduce you to the miracle of the appetite control unit, Phase 1.30% discount to the first 25 callers. Call now 822-2317 for free information. 100% Money Back Guarantee.

Lightning skipped . . .

An early morning lightning bolt skipped across Ruby Abrams' yard Monday before brushing her house. Four windows were blown out and her water line ruptured.

Lightning hits Vincent home

by Bill Casari

"It sounded like a jet airplane was flying over the house, a huge, roaring whoom and then it faded away."

Ruby Abrams used those words to describe the lightning bolt that struck near her house north of Vincent on highway 25 at about 2:10 a.m. Monday causing her power and water to fail.

Abrams and her son, Walter, met each other in the hallway of their house after the noise jarred them from bed.

In retrospect, Mrs. Abrams found it strange that she jumped so fast because she has arthritis in her legs.

"I guess I forgot about my arthritis for a minute, she said.

The lightning appeared to have struck a tree about 250 feet from the house. Six feet from the base of the tree the bark was torn away. A hole was left at the bottom, exposing roots.

The lightning then apparently skipped toward the house making haphazard eight-inch holes in the ground.

When it reached Abrams' driveway, it dug a five-inch deep trench about a foot wide.

After that, the bolt appeared to have followed the foil garden edging that lines Abrams' front walkway.

The lightning dug double trenches on either side of the walk, burning flowers and creating a hole 14 inches deep and about two and a half feet wide near the porch.

The lightning also broke four windows in the house and burned a hole in the water main, rupturing it.

During her 40 years in the Vincent area, Abrams said she has never experienced anything quite like this. She thought maybe the lightning was combined with a small tornado.

J. Alpha Lowe, former county commissioner, theorized that the lightning could have followed a phone cable which led toward the house. This would account for the almost straight line that the lightning made from the tree to the house.

A Harpersville resident reported that his house was shaking and a resident that lives across the road from Mrs. Abrams reported seeing "a huge ball of fire" just before the lightning struck.

No one was hurt in the incident.

. . . from the tree

Apparently the lightning hit a tree before being deflected across the Abrams' yard. Former commissioner Alpha Lowe said it might have even traveled by phone wire.

Computer bids show problems

by Fred Guarino

Next Monday the Shelby County Commission is expected to make a decision concerning the direction is will take on computers.

That decision will be based on bids received by commission chairman Tommy Snowden last Monday--despite the fact bidders indicated:

- Specifications are incomplete, or need clarification...
- Snowden wants a new computer system on line by the proposed July 1 opening of the Pelham license branch office. Computer represenatives said Monday, that's too short a time to submit cost effective proposals...
- The county is seeking more computer than it truly needs...

Furthermore, the decision on the new system is still expected, despite the fact that Snowden told bidders, "I was told the other day that we had more than needed" (with the current Burroughs system).

After the meeting Snowden told the Reporter that the current Burroughs hardware "is good."

His major gripe with the Burroughs system is that he has people requesting computer information, but they can't get it.

The Burroughs could well be the third system the county has ditched in a dozen or so years.

Among the firms bidding on a minicomputer system Monday were NCR, IBM, Computer Resources, Nixdorf Computer, Systems Design and S&W Minicomputers.

Burroughs did not bid on a new system but presented a alternative. The company representative said that in the next two years the county can own its presently leased computer outright for $87,022 and a monthly maintenance charge of less than $2,000.

The other firms offered computer bids ranging from $285,074 to $390,273. New software costs ranged from $24,050 to $155,600.

Maintenance fees ranged from $2,699 per month to $3,700 per month.

Snowden turned off the county's tape recorder after bids were read, saying, "I want to go off record to design a quick chart for discussion, Monday."

The chart was drawn but not without comment from bidders on the information the county provided them.

A representative from NCR said "specifications as written (for a new system) may require clarification for certain points."

An IBM representative said there was no report on the volume of data needed, and that his company could not "provide our best, most cost effective, [bid] without further study."

A Nixdorf representative said the short time frame to work with (the July 1 opening of the Pelham branch) may have restricted "the providing of other recommendations."

Snowden told bidders, "Our current system takes three days to find errors. Commissioners would ask me when they were going to get something and I would ask the data man he he said two weeks. That's the explosion that caused all of this."

Snowden said he wants something better.

Dog racing appears stalled at gate

by Bart Slawson

"About the only dogs you'll see racing in Shelby County this year will be doing it on an informal basis," said State Senator Spencer Bachus (R-Altadena).

That opinion on chances of a bill to allow a dog track and gambling in Pelham is shared by State Representatives Don Murphy (R-Pelham) and Sonny Moore (D-Sterrett).

Two House rules and the surprise court-ordered election worked together to sign the Pelham dog track's death certificate.

The first rule separates bills into local bills and general bills. House protocol prohibits legislators from voting against another lawmaker's bill that has only local impact.

The entire House votes on general impact bills.

The second rule automatically designates all bills "general" if they deal with gambling.

The third strike against any dog track bill--at least during this session--is that a pro-gambling vote in an election year can be turned into an instant political liability, the politicians said.

Bachus said dog racing won't be good for the county, the entire county should vote on any prospective bill, and the bills he's seen are unfair.

"It's a promoter's bill masquerading as a revenue bill," he said.

Bachus said wealthy people in Birmingham stand to make a lot of money from the existing bills if they pass. The county would get

New district lines are still a mystery

by Marcia M. Sears

Nobody in Shelby County seems to know the exact dividing line between the new House Districts 40 and 41.

The boundary is drawn roughly on maps, but it follows census tract lines, and no one in the county has yet been able to get maps that show the census lines.

As reported earlier, the line, approximately, goes from Riverchase through Pelham, Alabaster, and Montevallo. District 41 is east of the line; District 40 is west.

The new districts were formed by the state legislature and approved by the Department of Justice and the federal courts, so the line has been definitely, if not clearly established. County officials, who must draw up voter lists and establish where each voter votes, are in a quandary.

Doris Turner, chairman of the Board of Registars, turned over all the maps she was given by Representative Sonny Moore, to County Planner Paul Owens, and asked him to define the voting precincts.

But Owens, who has vast experience in working with Shelby Coutny maps, says he cannot proceed without more information on the census tract lines.

Owens suspects that the new district line may divide several beats. If so, new beat lines will have to be drawn up, and he commented Tuesday, "They don't know what trouble it is to cross beat lines."

In the last election, where that was done in several west Shelby

Mary Roach retires from Thompson, education

MARY ROACH...finally relaxing

by Bart Slawson

A tear came to Mary Roach's eye as she recalled the fondest moments of her 40-year education career in Alabaster.

Roach, principal of Thompson Middle School, retired Friday. So the school and the City of Albaster celebrated "Mary Roach Day" Friday with awards, speeches, plaques and even a quilt, which was handmade by teachers with all their names embroidered on it.

The Thompson Middle School PTO gave her a recliner chair to enjoy in her retirement.

If the many people went to great extents to honor her, it's little wonder.

Mary Roach not only grew up in Alabaster, but she spent her entire teaching career serving students there. She has been a teacher, counselor, educator and principal at TMS.

The day-long program in her honor was entitled "A New Beginning." It included a presentation of the colors, prayer, singing, speeches and gifts.

Speakers included Alabaster Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin; Vern Davis, deputy superintendent of Shelby County Schools; Rebecca Nail, coordinator of elementary education; Allen Fulton, principal of Thompson High School; Donald Latham, Trustee of Thompson Schools; Jimmy Grubbs, Thompson High School senior; Rev. Terrell D. Maynard; Corene Rodgers; and J.B. Denham.

Student tributes were presented by Donna Bivins, a former TMS student, and Donna Clark, an eighth grader who recited a poem.

Gifts and remembrances were heaped on Mrs. Roach by the PTO, faculty, annual staff, 4-H clubs, honor society, chorus, science club and the student council.

"A Perfect Day" sung by a faculty quartet ended the perfect day at TMS.

After a reception in the school cafeteria, Roach rested from the celebration in her office. When asked about her fondest memories, a tear came to her eye.

At first she had a hard time deciding what was her most memorable moment in her 40-year career. But after some thought, she said the most important things had to be her students and their success.

"The joy and happiness of teaching is seeing the students you've worked with succeed," she told the Reporter. "That's really the teacher's pay -- not the paycheck."

"She has been an outstanding dedicated personality in the City of Alabaster," insisted Mayor Rubin. "We will miss her. There was only one of a kind. After her, they broke the mold."

Rubin declared May 13 Mary Roach Day in Alabaster.

Sunday, a retirement tea was also held in her honor.

Alabaster will soon begin garbage collections in annexed areas

by Bart Slawson

Alabaster city officials debated hard and long Monday night, then postponed everything they had discussed -- everything except the garbage committee report.

Councilman L.O. Farris, chairman of the garbage committee, said garbage collection will begin "soon" in the newly annexed areas of the city at no charge to residents.

Housing debate

The council and audience argued hard and long over the proposed formation of a housing authority.

After extensive questioning and challenges, council members agreed to meet with the city attorney and Palmer O'Barr, a Birmingham financial consultant.

O'Barr arranges deals between growth-hungry towns and developers in search of cheap loans.

The proposed housing authority would be the vehicle for the low-priced, guaranteed loans, O'Barr said. The arrangement is allowed under a 1938 Alabama State Law updated in 1975, O'Barr said.

"We don't have a housing shortage in Alabaster. I think the city council ought to stay out of free enterprise," said Councilman Jack Reagin.

"If we got into this apartment situation, we'd have a run-down area in 25 years," he added.

"Flim-flam?"

"The only reason for forming the housing authority is to get cheap interest rates," O'Barr declared in frustration at questions about a "flim-flam."

Several asked O'Barr pointed questions about his motivation for promoting the housing authority. "No one is paying me a salary. But if you did $50 million in business I'd make money," he said. O'Barr said he makes a commission on issued bonds if he can arrange a deal between a housing authority and a developer.

Councilman Calvin T. McCune said he wasn't comfortable with the idea because he didn't understand it. He also said he didn't understand why housing authority members don't need to be experts in developing.

"We don't need somebody telling us what to do. We have too much of that already," he said.

A man in the audience stood, identified himself as a former member of the city medical board and said,"The board just does the paperwork to bring about the desired effect. All you need is a little common sense and can write your name."

The audience roared.

But the crowd sobered when Harold Walker, a businessman in the housing field, criticised the housing authority as a bail out.

Walker pointed out that discussion centered around the Willow Creek subdivision that was never finished because Cross Creek company ran out of money.

"The city of Alabaster is not in business to rescue people who've made bad business decisions. If you bail these guys out, I want to be bailed out too," Walker said.

The entire issue was eventually tabled with nothing resolved.

Street lights

Another subject of disagreement was the placement of street lights along U.S. 31 from the Pelham city limits to I-65.

Mayor H.A."Doc" Rubin wants the lights to enhance driving safety, to maintain Alabaster's forward movement and because the city has the greatest growth factor in Shelby County.

Police Chief Bull Carter said several accidents have occurred along the dark areas of the highway.

Farris agreed the lights would improve driving safety and help the businesses bring in more money and pay more taxes.

Reagin said the 60 new lights would cost $500 a month to install and maintain. He added the lights would be an unnecessary expense costing $75,000-$80,000 over a 15 to 20 year contract with Alabama Power Company.

The issue was postponed.

Planning commission welcomes its first woman

The newest member of the County Planning Commission voted with the majority at Monday night's meeting. The similarity ends there, however, because Kathryn Coleman of Indian Springs is a woman.

Coleman is the first woman to serve on the Planning Commission. She was named to take the place of the Commission's former chairman Joe Garity who recently resigned.

Living in the county for the last 12 years with her family has given Coleman the opportunity to watch the county grow. She said she was not a feminist but thought she would "like to put a female in the group of men" on the commission and assist with county planning.

Feeling especially proud to have been nominated by the Circuit Court Judges, Coleman said she felt a "great obligation" to her job and thought she had been handed a "holy grail." Coleman added that she is going to do her best to be a credit to the planning commission and said reading and knowing the rules is of great importance.

A graduate of Ensley High School in Birmingham where she grew up, Coleman is also an alumna of the University of Alabama. Past activities include being a finalist in the 1964 Miss Alabama Contest, president of the Western Council Garden Clubs and a 1967 nomination for Western Section Best Citizen

In addition to her duties on the planning commission, Coleman said that being the mother of four sons is her most important accomplishment. She is currently a member of the Indian Springs First Baptist Church and enjoys cooking, flower arranging, and all needlework.

Inverness med center turned down again

The Inverness Family Medical Center was turned down for the second time by the Shelby County Planning Commission.

At the Monday night meeting, board members were unanimous in denying the Center's request for a new access road to its emergency room. Since most of the emergencies brought to the center are minor, the Planning Commission felt that the present entrance was easy enough to locate in that sort of a situation.

Randy Sain, engineer, represented Colonial Properties in making the request for the additional entrance. He argued that even in a minor emergency situation, the present entrance is too confusing to find and that time would be wasted when a driver had to turn around.

Calera Pub and Grub comes up dry

by Fred Guarino

The phone rang in the lounge of Calera Pub and Grub, Tuesday morning.

John Roberts answered, "Hello, Vicki, the cocktail waitress..."

He proceeded to tell Vicki that his establishment would not be serving any liquor tonight because the City of Calera had denied his liquor license on Monday.

A few moments later the phone rang again. He told another would-be cocktail waitress that there was no job.

Monday night Roberts appeared before Calera's Council, requesting a lounge liquor license for his establishment, formerly know as the "Clara-Neal".

The council unanimously denied his request.

Roberts proposed a supper club and coffee shop--one that would serve a complete menu of good food, as well as featuring a lounge, he said.

He admitted to the council that there had been problems with the most recent establishment to be located there, but he attributed that to the live band that had played there.

Councilman Mark Jones said that different managements had attempted to run respectable clubs there before.

He said, "I resent Calera offering honky tonks for Clanton. It's a liability for the city. If I honestly thought people wanted it I would be for it. But I can't see anything but pain."

Roberts argued that he understood that the place had a bad reputation but said that there was no reason, it could not be successful.

'I think it has great potential and could be good for the city. It could bring people in, a man and wife, college students.'

Roberts said that he was not interested in the six pack carriers, wet t-shirts and hard rock music.

The motion to deny the request was made by Jeff Pilgreen and seconded by Jones.

The Calera Council agreed to write a letter to the State ABC Board requesting that it not override the city's denial.

Sewerage problem hits Pelham

by Bert Seaman

Sewerage has been creeping up through the ground in Oak Mountain Estates. Coral Bryant told the Pelham City Council Monday that it even backs up into the homes there too.

Bryant and her husband, along with other homeowners in the subdivision on County Road 105, asked the council if sewer lines couldn't be extended to their neighborhood.

In order to see how much funding is available and if the city has a shot at it, Councilman Ken Maynard moved that the matter be tabled until the next meeting.

Bryant told the council that out of the 40% response to a survey, 60% reported having problems with their septic tanks.

In her own case, Bryant said sewerage had backed up in the bathroom three times last winter, and on one occasion there was raw sewerage in the bathtub when houseguests were visiting.

Mayor Burk Dunaway told the delegation that the city had tried through the Water Improvement Commission to get funding for sewers in their area without any success.

Although several homeowners pressed the council for a committment, the members agreed they sould get a better grasp of the situation before deciding on a course of action.

After trying for eight years to get something done, Bryant told the Reporter, "At least this is a beginning and we'll try to keep the momentum going."

Fantasy flight

As planes swooped past the crowd of spectators at Saturday's airshow at the Shelby County Airport, these youngsters put on their own air show with their miniature aircraft performing deeds of daring that the "War Birds" in the skies above might have engaged in during wartime.

Aerobatics excite county airshow crowd

by Bert Seaman

The old Stearman biplane was a "basket case" when he bought it, reported aviation enthusiast Tom Henley.

But Saturday, the old veteran was in top notch shape as Henley's son, Mark, put it through its paces at Air Show '83.

Crowds turned out in record numbers for the first performance of the show at the Shelby County Airport.

However, rain cancelled the Sunday performance.

And according to E. Henley, secretary of the Birmingham Aero Club, "that's our gravy day."

Although disappointed that there will only be limited proceeds this year for the club's project--the Southern Museum of Flight--Henley explained the purpose of the show was accomplished.

"Our aim each year," she stressed, "is to promote aviation."

And spectators at this year's event had the opportunity to see and even to ride in, various aircraft from the past.

Among the planes performing at the show were P-51 Mustangs, T-6 Navy trainers, T-28 trainers and a C-47 cargo plane which was used in the invasion of Normandy during WW II.

Another crowd pleaser was a husband and wife aerobatic team, Earl and Paula Cherry. While the male half of the team piloted the plane, his daring wife rode the wing. (See X-tra section.)

Parachutists from several locations made two jumps from the C-47 during which they attempted a hook-up.

However, the clouds kept them from accomplishing that feat.

Although the first section of the Southern Museum of Flight was completed two years ago, Mrs. Henley said the official opening is planned for this summer.

The building near Birmingham's municipal airport contains numerous photographs detailing the history of aviation plus other memorabilia dating from the days of Orville and Wilbur Wright.

Dogs kill newborn

by Bart Slawson

Two dogs killed a newborn baby near Montevallo Thursday after the mother left it outside on the ground, police said.

The mother, Esther Cutts, 22, of Route 5 Montevallo, was being held in the Shelby County Jail without bond Friday. Deputies said she is charged with manslaughter.

County Coroner Billy Thompson said the woman was from a strict family and lives at home. Because she weighed 240 pounds, she was able to keep her pregnancy a secret from her family.

Thompson said the story Cutts told police indicated the baby was only hours old. Cutts told them she wrapped the infant and hid it outside on the ground until her mother left for work.

Shortly afterwards, the dogs apparently found the baby. They mangled the lower half of its body, dragging it 140 feet from the house.

The baby girl's body was found by a neighbor, police said.

The incident took place some three miles outside the Montevallo city limits, between Almont and Dogwood.

Chuck Foster, Lions Club spokesman, said that doctors and other health professionals from the Riverchase Family Medical Center and the Diabetes Foundation Hospital will be on hand to conduct screenings and provide counseling.

Fingerprinting of children will be available with parental consent and will be provided by the Shelby County Sheriff's Department.

Paramedics from the North Shelby County Fire District will be present to demonstrate life-saving techniques, along with personnel and equipment from Hank's Ambulance Service.

Moore said he didn't think the bills would even be introduced this session. And even if it is "The rules will kill it."

Other lawmakers Moore has spoken to have turned their thumbs-down on the issue.

Legislators have tried to change the rules stopping the passage of the bills, but failed each time.

Under those circumstances "I don't see any chance at all" for passage, Moore said.

Murphy, one lawmaker who would be called on to introduce such a bill, said he won't do it. "I'm not introducing either bill (Pelham bill or County Commissioner's bill) until the city and county get together on one bill. They need to work it out," he said.

"It's not likely the bill will be introduced or passed, but I've seen stranger things happen in Montgomery," Murphy added.

Mystery vote lines

County beats, Owens said the polling places remained the same, but voters had to consult maps to know which machine to use for casting their ballot.

This time, he believes the beat lines themselves may have to be changed to fit the court order.

What happens if the new district line divides Beat 12? That is the only beat in the county that has voted for zoning. A whole new Pandora's box of legal tangles could be opened if that should happen, Owens thinks.

Owens is continuing his efforts to get the proper maps so that these questions can be answered, and so that voters in west Shelby County will know where to vote, and which district they live in.

Alabaster will soon begin garbage collections in annexed areas

by Bart Slawson

Alabaster city officials debated hard and long Monday night, then postponed everything they had discussed -- everything except the garbage committee report.

Councilman L.O. Farris, chairman of the garbage committee, said garbage collection will begin "soon" in the newly annexed areas of the city at no charge to residents.

Housing debate

The council and audience argued hard and long over the proposed formation of a housing authority.

After extensive questioning and challenges, council members agreed to meet with the city attorney and Palmer O'Barr, a Birmingham financial consultant.

O'Barr arranges deals between growth-hungry towns and developers in search of cheap loans.

The proposed housing authority would be the vehicle for the low-priced, guaranteed loans, O'Barr said. The arrangement is allowed under a 1938 Alabama State Law updated in 1975, O'Barr said.

"We don't have a housing shortage in Alabaster. I think the city council ought to stay out of free enterprise," said Councilman Jack Reagin.

"If we got into this apartment situation, we'd have a run-down area in 25 years," he added.

"Flim-flam?"

"The only reason for forming the housing authority is to get cheap interest rates," O'Barr declared in frustration at questions about a "flim-flam."

Several asked O'Barr pointed questions about his motivation for promoting the housing authority. "No one is paying me a salary. But if you did $50 million in business I'd make money," he said. O'Barr said he makes a commission on issued bonds if he can arrange a deal between a housing authority and a developer.

Councilman Calvin T. McCune said he wasn't comfortable with the idea because he didn't understand it. He also said he didn't understand why housing authority members don't need to be experts in developing.

"We don't need somebody telling us what to do. We have too much of that already," he said.

A man in the audience stood, identified himself as a former member of the city medical board and said, "The board just does the paperwork to bring about the desired effect. All you need is a little common sense and can write your name."

The audience roared.

But the crowd sobered when Harold Walker, a businessman in the housing field, criticised the housing authority as a bail out.

Walker pointed out that discussion centered around the Willow Creek subdivision that was never finished because Cross Creek company ran out of money.

"The city of Alabaster is not in business to rescue people who've made bad business decisions. If you bail these guys out, I want to be bailed out too," Walker said.

The entire issue was eventually tabled with nothing resolved.

Street lights

Another subject of disagreement was the placement of street lights along U.S. 31 from the Pelham city limits to I-65.

Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin wants the lights to enhance driving safety, to maintain Alabaster's forward movement and because the city has the greatest growth factor in Shelby County.

Police Chief Bull Carter said several accidents have occurred along the dark areas of the highway.

Farris agreed the lights would improve driving safety and help the businesses bring in more money and pay more taxes.

Reagin said the 60 new lights would cost $500 a month to install and maintain. He added the lights would be an unnecessary expense costing $75,000-$80,000 over a 15 to 20 year contract with Alabama Power Company.

The issue was postponed.

Planning commission welcomes its first woman

The newest member of the County Planning Commission voted with the majority at Monday night's meeting. The similarity ends there, however, because Kathryn Coleman of Indian Springs is a woman.

Coleman is the first woman to serve on the Planning Commission. She was named to take the place of the Commission's former chairman Joe Garity who recently resigned.

Living in the county for the last 12 years with her family has given Coleman the opportunity to watch the county grow. She said she was not a feminist but thought she would "like to put a female in the group of men" on the commission and assist with county planning.

Feeling especially proud to have been nominated by the Circuit Court Judges, Coleman said she felt a "great obligation" to her job and thought she had been handed a "holy grail." Coleman added that she is going to do her best to be a credit to the planning commission and said reading and knowing the rules is of great importance.

A graduate of Ensley High School in Birmingham where she grew up, Coleman is also an alumna of the University of Alabama. Past activities include being a finalist in the 1964 Miss Alabama Contest, president of the Western Council Garden Clubs and a 1967 nomination for Western Section Best Citizen

In addition to her duties on the planning commission, Coleman said that being the mother of four sons is her most important accomplishment. She is currently a member of the Indian Springs First Baptist Church and enjoys cooking, flower arranging, and all needlework.

Inverness med center turned down again

The Inverness Family Medical Center was turned down for the second time by the Shelby County Planning Commission.

At the Monday night meeting, board members were unanimous in denying the Center's request for a new access road to its emergency room. Since most of the emergencies brought to the center are minor, the Planning Commission felt that the present entrance was easy enough to locate in that sort of a situation.

Randy Sain, engineer, represented Colonial Properties in making the request for the additional entrance. He argued that even in a minor emergency situation, the present entrance is too confusing to find and that time would be wasted when a driver had to turn around.

Calera Pub and Grub comes up dry

by Fred Guarino

The phone rang in the lounge of Calera Pub and Grub, Tuesday morning.

John Roberts answered, "Hello, Vicki, the cocktail waitress..."

He proceeded to tell Vicki that his establishment would not be serving any liquor tonight because the City of Calera had denied his liquor license on Monday.

A few moments later the phone rang again. He told another would-be cocktail waitress that there was no job.

Monday night Roberts appeared before Calera's Council, requesting a lounge liquor license for his establishment, formerly know as the "Clara-Neal".

The council unanimously denied his request.

Roberts proposed a supper club and coffee shop--one that would serve a complete menu of good food, as well as featuring a lounge, he said.

He admitted to the council that there had been problems with the most recent establishment to be located there, but he attributed that to the live band that had played there.

Councilman Mark Jones said that different managements had attempted to run respectable clubs there before.

He said, "I resent Calera offering honky tonks for Clanton. It's a liability for the city. If I honestly thought people wanted it I would be for it. But I can't see anything but pain."

Roberts argued that he understood that the place had a bad reputation but said that there was no reason, it could not be successful.

'I think it has great potential and could be good for the city. It could bring people in, a man and wife, college students.'

Roberts said that he was not interested in the six pack carriers, wet t-shirts and hard rock music.

The motion to deny the request was made by Jeff Pilgreen and seconded by Jones.

The Calera Council agreed to write a letter to the State ABC Board requesting that it not override the city's denial.

Sewerage problem hits Pelham

by Bert Seaman

Sewerage has been creeping up through the ground in Oak Mountain Estates. Coral Bryant told the Pelham City Council Monday that it even backs up into the homes there too.

Bryant and her husband, along with other homeowners in the subdivision on County Road 105, asked the council if sewer lines couldn't be extended to their neighborhood.

In order to see how much funding is available and if the city has a shot at it, Councilman Ken Maynard moved that the matter be tabled until the next meeting.

Bryant told the council that out of the 40% response to a survey, 60% reported having problems with their septic tanks.

In her own case, Bryant said sewerage had backed up in the bathroom three times last winter, and on one occasion there was raw sewerage in the bathtub when houseguests were visiting.

Mayor Burk Dunaway told the delegation that the city had tried through the Water Improvement Commission to get funding for sewers in their area without any success.

Although several homeowners pressed the council for a committment, the members agreed they sould get a better grasp of the situation before deciding on a course of action.

After trying for eight years to get something done, Bryant told the Reporter, "At least this is a beginning and we'll try to keep the momentum going."

Computer confusion costs

First there was the IBM.
Then there was the NCR.
Now there is a Burroughs.

Through the 10 or 12 years the county has used a computer, the results have never measured up to what the county commissioners wanted. What the commissioners really want is an easy-to-read summary every month that shows county income and expenditures. They want these basic figures to compare with the budget, so they know every month just where the county stands financially.

Every computer maker that has approached the commission or has offered bids on the equipment has promised that result.

The commission still does not get that information. Whose fault is it?

When Tommy Snowden was elected probate judge, the commission voted to go to the Burroughs system. Burroughs' representative told the commissioners their machine would be able to handle all the county's work for years to come.

The county payroll was the first thing that went on the computer, but according to Tommy Snowden, there is still hand work required to complete each payroll. The Board of Education had its payroll on the county computer at one time, but when the commission started charging them a fee for running the payroll, the board pulled out, saying they could get it done cheaper elsewhere.

The county has hired one department head after another, in an effort to get more work out of the computer.

Now the county has dropped its latest computer department head and taken bids on other computer systems.

Part of the problem is that commissioners are not experts in computers, and have relied in the past on the people they hired to handle the work. The department heads, however, have felt their directions from the commission were not clear, or they could not get the information early enough to enter it into the system.

Then, too, it is a popular excuse everywhere to blame everything "on the computer."

The commission needs to get this matter resolved. It is costing the county too much to have an expensive computer, while at the same time having to hire several employees whose work the computer might be able to do.

Touching bases on Goat Hill

by Bob Ingram

Montgomery --- hitting a lot of bases lightly in and around Goat Hill...

Montgomery Mayor Emory Folmar, still limping from the whipping he took at the hands of Wallace last November, says he will never make another race for governor. "I had so much fun in that race that I wouldn't want to deprive somebody else of that pleasure," Folmar quipped....

And speaking of Folmar, he got the good news last week that his bid for reelection as mayor in July will not attract opposition from George Wallace Jr. The younger Wallace had been encouraged to run by Montgomery Councilman Joe Reed, head of the predominantly black Alabama Democratic Conference. The young Wallace said he would not make the race as he wanted to devote more time to his home life. That was a roundabout way of saying that a survey indicated he couldn't win...

Good jobs for family and friends continue to cause Gov. Wallace difficulty with the media. It started when he appointed a son-in-law and a brother-in-law to high-paying judgeships; next came the revelation that his sister, Mrs. Marianne Dauphin, had been hired as a legislative clerk in the Senate, and then the story broke that Wallace had appointed his good buddy C. J. Sullivan to a $44,500-a-year job relating to safety standards for mobile homes. Sullivan's son, Jim, was appointed in January by Wallace as president of the Public Service Commission....

Some people still ask the question: Is the AEA as potent in the Alabama Legislature as some claim? Try this for size. A bill was introduced in the House to create a separate governing board for Alabama's two year colleges. It was one of Gov. Wallace's bills and was co-sponsored by 70 members of the House. When the AEA leadership let the house members know they opposed the bill, a parade of 25 original sponsors of the bill marched to the mike and asked their name to be removed as a sponsor. Gov. Wallace has clout, but "Governor" Paul Hubbert of the AEA has more...

No doubt about it, the taxpayers benefitted when the state refinanced the $520 million oil windfall bonds last week. A great deal of money will be saved during the life of the bonds due to more favorable interest rates. But far bigger beneficiaries were the lawyers who handled the refinancing.

Robert Thorington confirmed his firm's fee was $300,000 plus $20,000 in expenses; Dudley Perry (the former state senator from Tuskegee) was paid $50,000 plus about $10,000 in expenses. While members of the legal fraternity rarely comment on what their colleagues receive, these fees provoked one nameless attorney to paraphase Churchill: "Never has so much been paid to so few for so little..."

Surplus cheese distributed

Surplus cheese will be distributed this week at several locations in Shelby County.

According to Elizabeth Roy, director of the 11th Area of Alabama Community Action Committee, distribution will begin some time after 9 a.m. on Thursday, and again on Friday. The locations will remain open until 3:30 or 4 p.m., she said.

To be eligible for the free five pound blocks of cheese, a person must be one of the following: a food stamp recipient; in a foster care home; age 60 or over; unemployed, and receiving unemployment compensation or having applied for it; unemployed whose compensation has run out; or receiving social security disability.

The cheese will be given out at the following locations:

Calera: First Baptist Church and Fire Department.

Montevallo: Shiloh Baptist and United Methodist churches.

Almont: Pilgrim Rest church.

Columbiana: Macedonia Baptist, Antioch church in the Kingdom.

Harpersville: Mt. Olive Baptist church.

Westover: Prospect Baptist.

Wilsonville: city hall.

Shelby: Bay Springs Baptist.

Dunnavant: Community Center.

Pelham: Crosscreek Baptist.

Alabaster: Suburban League, Mt. Olive Baptist.

Saginaw: Camp Branch Civic Center.

Sheriff's blotter

Thefts and burglaries again dominated the attention of the Shelby County Sheriff's Department from May 10 to May 16.

Gerald Lawley of Homewood remains in the Shelby County Jail awaiting trial in connection with the death of Birmingham art dealer Malcolm McRae.

Esther Lynn Cutts of Montevallo remains in jail on $50,000 bond, awaiting trail on manslaughter charges in connection with the death of her newborn daughter. (See related story.)

Other investigations are still under way, including the reported sexual assault of a 40-year-old Shelby woman. A child molestation case was also reported.

Items stolen in the 12 thefts included a 1973 Cadillac, items from a porch and driveway, a portable generator, rings from a country club, several guns, a depth finder from a boat, nine crossties and a set of silver flatware.

Homes were burglarized in Wilsonville and along Cahaba Valley Trace. The old Wallace place in Columbiana had a mattress stolen after a burglary.

The following people were arrested on felony charges:

Drugs: David Paul Teer of Pelham; Stanley Payne and Ronald Martin of Fairfield; David Gray of Dolomite; and Terrell Gray of Birmingham.

DUI: Tommy Lee Johnson of Birmingham; Edward Charles Kynard of Pratt City; Johnny L. Bean of Clanton.

Sexual assault: Gabriel Morales of Helena, also charged with kidnapping.

Assault: George Oscar Keller of Vincent.

Burglary: Richard Thomas Hardin of Wilsonville.

Robbery: Donald Ray Hagood of Hueytown.

Theft: Robert Taylor Fincher of Birmingham.

Probation Violation: John Ray Lucas of Montevallo, James Bearden of Montevallo.

Leaving the scene of an accident: Myles Timothy Woods of Calera.

Chelsea PTO president pleads for help

Letter to the Editor

While attending the last PTO meeting of the year at Chelsea School, I was not only ashamed of myself but shocked to find the All-American tradition of having a PTO, about to fold at our school.

In fact a vote was taken on behalf of continuing or allowing this School Parent Teacher Organization to lapse into a defeated memory of what used to be. There was about 75 people mostly who came as myself to witness the Eighth grade play performance after the always tolerable PTO meeting.

As a working mother and head of the household I always found reasons and excuses as to why I did not attend PTO meetings. My eight year old never seemed to give me notice and I had lost my yearly schedule two days after school had begun. Besides what could I do? What would my voice contribute to the authority of such a meeting?

How wrong and selfish I have been. Because I have not been interested, as well as others, Chelsea PTO is almost non existence.

The nominating committee gave their report that they could find no willing people to run as officers for the 83-84 season. President Judith Hatcher opened the floor for nominations for the new President. I was not only amazed but stunned when after several seconds of silence, someone nominated me. I came very close to fainting and was speechless. I did not realize I could decline until I had been elected without anyone else even being nominated. Other officers were chosen the same way.

I am certain there are more qualified parents that should have been President of such an organization. But as American people who are blessed with freedom of choice, I was chosen. And now it will be your choice to support our school, our teachers and our students.

I earnestly pray that God will put a desire in all of us to become more involved with our school. We say television is no good, but every time we turn the knob we are involved. We say our young people are hopeless, but even criticism involves us.

Please help me, as an ordinary working parent, to get involved and save our public school system.

I look forward to meeting you and working with each teacher and parent and our Principal at Chelsea High School in the opening season.

Respectfully yours,

Ed board applauded for zone line drawing

Letter to the Editor:

This letter is to commend the efforts of the Shelby County Board of Education in setting the boundaries for elementary school zones in the north part of the county. Much effort was put forth to accomplish this formidable task.

The Board, Superintendent and staff obviously listened and reviewed with great detail the mountains of information which had been assembled. When the proposal was finally ready and presented, they were quick to respond to suggestions made during the Board meeting to satisfy a problem which was inadvertently overlooked.

Whether or not we agree with all the decisions that were made in this very emotional issue should not deter us from commending this spirit of cooperation and extraordinary effort to satisfy the needs and desires of a very complicated and diverse area of the county. It is this very spirit that should be continued and projected into all phases of education policies and decisions. With all of us working together, the possibilities are unlimited.

Thanks to the Shelby County Board of Education, Superintendent, and the entire staff for a job well done!

Sincerely,
Al Knight

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

The notebook keeps filling up: Good Morning was back at University of Alabama, Birmingham, talking to the teachers in Dr. Maree Macon Blackwell's writer's workshop. It's a treat to meet with these folks and talk about writing, and do a little of it. We had a great time for two hours. This is to say Thank You to Dr. Blackwell for inviting me and to the teachers for treating me royally.

A tape of Oldies from Hooks Lindsey over Georgia way. Boo Hoo and Josephine and I'm Forever Chasing Rainbows and Linger Awhile and many more. He hoped they'd bring back memories and they did, one after another for almost an hour. This guy is some friend. I wouldn't trade 'im for two gold quarters. He apologized for not playing Margie, knowing it was my favorite.

An apology to Tag Elliott and his church on 280 for not being able to make the fish fry. And to Bill Shaw at Union for not making the singing. But sometimes the bug'll bite you and when he does other things have to give way to him.

A newspaper from Quitman, Mississippi and a feature story about Dr. J. Rowland Hamilton, Professor Emeritus, Mississippi State University. He lives at Quitman now and is still writing college textbooks. Just another reason why the folks who were reared here and those who passed our way on their way up makes a guy glad he passed this way too.

They keep slipping away, one by one, friends for more than fifty years. One day it was Harry Mims Roberts and another day it was Elmer Davis. Yep, you stop and you look back, and you wish you could change things, but time marches on, unmindful of you and me.

A note from Minnie Storey wanting to know how I was doing so she could tell Esther Merrell. The three of us are as close as three little run-a-way boys. She invited Amy and me to the Wilsonville Old-Timer's reunion on the 28th of May. This is one of my favorite get-togethers and Amy and I will be looking forward to seeing the good folks up there.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I'm not what you'd call a seasoned air traveler. But having lived as long as I have, I've had occasion to fly here and there on commercial airlines.

And I've been up a few times in smaller craft too.

But the flight I took Saturday was a brand new experience. I was right out there in the open - completely exposed.

My trip aloft was made in an open cockpit biplane known as a Stearman. And the big adventure took place prior to the air show at the county airport.

I wasn't sure what I was getting into when I drove out to the airport at 10 a.m. to fly in the Dawn Patrol.

Even though that little deal never did jell at any hour, I was promised a ride anyway.

However, I expected to go aloft in something that had a floor, sides and a roof.

I may have blanched a little as they led me up to the craft they wanted me to ride in, but I think I smiled gamely and said I'd give it a try.

As I gripped the edge of the cockpit and had one foot up on the wing, preparing to clamber aboard, I overheard someone say the pilot hadn't flown that particular plane in a year.

I almost backed out, but just at that moment someone gave me a boost into the hole where I was to sit and started buckling me in.

And before I could think of some good excuse to escape, we were taxiing down the runway.

As we left the ground, one strap of the harness that was supposed to keep me tied in the plane slipped off my shoulder.

And suddenly I felt as though the least little tilt of the plane would send me sliding out into space.

There wasn't much to grab onto in my little back seat. But I did find little rods running along on either side of me and I held onto them for dear life.

And then I noticed these two stirrup-like things on the floor in front of me and they made a dandy place to brace my feet.

Just as I was about to get used to riding through the sky with the wind whipping my hair hard enough to blow it clean off my head, I suddenly found myself looking at the landscape below as we banked to the left.

When we leveled off, the engine seemed to quit and so did my breathing. But I guess the pilot must have just turned it down or something so I could hear what he was saying.

"Would you mind taking your feet off the rudder pedals," he asked me?

Well, I hated to lose my foot braces, but I certainly didn't want to mess up the steering, so of course I quickly complied.

After I viewed the landscape to the right as we banked in that direction, the motor quieted again and the pilot asked if I wanted to do some loops.

As calmly as I could I shouted back, "No thanks - maybe next time."

When I explained about the loose seat belt after we landed, he told me that the force of gravity would have glued me to the seat anyway.

Maybe so, but I'm glad we didn't put the theory to the test. I had had all the thrills I could take for one day.

PTA leader thanks Reporter

Letter to the Editor:

We would like to express our deepest appreciation for the opportunity to participate in and win the Reporter's Great Computer Giveaway.

As many know, Wilsonville Elementary School had been working quite awhile toward the purchase of a computer. Winning your computer allowed us to use the money toward the purchase of programming materials.

It is contests such as yours that allow many to achieve over and beyond their goals.

Not only did it allow us to achieve our goal, but it also stimulated the spirit of hard work and competition among our children. Thanks to you, they are now able to reap the benefits of their hard work.

Sincerely,
Wilsonville P.T.A.

Veterinarian answers rabies questions

by Philip C. Hubbard, DVM
Shelby County
Rabies Inspector

There are few topics that generate more misconceptions and misinformation than rabies. The problem is that everyone knows about rabies, but the general public receives very little correct information about the disease.

Here are some often-asked questions about rabies, and what you should do in case of a possible exposure.

Q: If my dog or cat bites someone, can I confine it at home?

A: No. According to state law, it must be confined for ten days with a veterinarian. A vet clinic has cage facilities to prevent escape, and a veterinarian is trained to recognize the early symptoms of rabies.

Q: If a dog or cat is drooling saliva, does that mean it has rabies?

A: Possibly, but there are other more likely causes of excessive salivation. Look for other symptoms, such as aggressiveness or abnormal behavior, then consult your veterinarian before approaching the animal.

Q: What should I do if my pet is exposed to a known rabid animal?

A: If your pet's rabies vaccination is current (within the past 12 months), it should be protected. A booster vaccination should be given within 7 days, and the animal should be observed for any symptoms for 60 to 90 days. If the pet has not been vaccinated, it should either be put to sleep or be kept in quarantine four to six months.

Q: If I have a wild animal for a pet, can it be vaccinated for rabies?

A: No. Currently, rabies vaccine is recommended only for domestic animals - not for wild animals such as raccoons, skunks, and ferrets. Certain types of vaccine may actually produce rabies in these animals.

Q: What about cattle and horses?

A: Cattle and horses can get rabies, and they can be vaccinated against it. In epidemic areas, vaccination of all domestic farm animals is often recommended.

Q: What should I do in case of an animal bite?

A: If you are bitten by a dog or cat, or by a wild animal (especially a raccoon, fox, skunk, or bat), wash the bitten area with soap and water and see a doctor immediately.

Request that the doctor or emergency room notify the Shelby County Health Department at 663-7670, or the County Rabies Inspector at 665-2226 as soon as possible. If the dog or cat is a pet, have the pet owner's name, address and telephone number available for the report.

If the animal is a stray, do not attempt to catch or confine it. Notify the Health Deparment and entice the animal to stay in the area with food. If it is necessary to shoot the animal to prevent its escape, do not shoot it in the head.

Next week: The future -- what is being done to prevent the spread of rabies.

Fat cat.....

Johnny and Annie Hutchison of Wilsonville use all of their strength to hold up a 58½ lb. yellow cat they caught near the Gaston steam plant at Wilsonville. The whopper was one of two which hit their trotline. But, as the story goes, the other one got away.

Former THS head football coach Larry Simmons may or may not be a speed reader. But he wastes no time poring over a book about his 1982 Warriors. CVA Rebels come a long way

by Fred Guarino

The Coosa Valley Academy Rebels can now hang up their hopes for a state title along with Thompson's Warriors and Chelsea's Hornets.

But in spite of Monday's first round loss in the state private school baseball title tournament, there is no room for sadness.

In fact, the Rebels have much to be proud of.

Three years ago, coach Bruce Breland barely had enough ball players to field a team.

Considering the short time frame in which the Rebels have developed, the state trip to Selma was a major accomplishment.

Both Thompson and Chelsea let titles elude them earlier this season. But those teams never reached the double elimination stage at which CVA lost to Jackson.

Another reason the Rebels have to be proud is that they were the only 2A school in a 3A dominated field of crown contenders.

The event also marked a milestone in CVA history. It was their first time ever to reach the championship level of competition.

That was a fitting reward for a team which posted an amazing 17-2 regular season record.

The only previous losses came in a split regional double-header with Bessemer Faith and in a series in which CVA won two out of three games against Macon.

The accomplishment is greater considering that in Breland's first season at CVA, he actually had to ask two kids to come out for

Wildcats honor sports heroes

by Fred Guarino

The Shelby County Wildcats learned a lesson in Columbiana, Thursday night.

The occasion was the SCHS annual sports banquet and its purpose was simply good eating and the awarding of sports trophies. But with the help of former SCHS football player Charles McCombs, a message came through that made seasons of glory and disappointment seem unimportant.

That message was that winning or losing means nothing. What counts is the faith, love and hard work we put into life that makes us successful.

McCombs said, "Some people think I'm crazy to put the love in. But you have got to love the game to stay out there.

"I've watched boys bleed, sweat and break bones. If you didn't love it, you wouldn't do it. If you did, you would be defeating your purpose."

The Calera freight company owner, who played on a team that won only one football game, said, "If you work hard enough, you can do anything."

SCHS Principal Don Bulger capped the message by quoting, "There are no great people...only ordinary people who do great things."

The Wildcats of 1982-83 only won one football game like McCombs' squad.

But senior Jason Head proved to be a shining individual as he was named Most Valuable Player and a co-team captain, along with senior Ronald Benton.

Most Valuable Back honors went to junior Pat Wallace and Most Valuable Lineman recognition went to senior Jeff Jones.

Mark Armstrong, a senior, was named Most Improved Player.

Road-Eo hits Pelham

Who is the best young rider on two wheels...a bicycle that is?

That question could well be answered in Pelham, Saturday.

Children ages 4-12 are invited to participate in a Bike Road-Eo at Pelham Mall from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

The event is being sponsored by the Pelham Police Department and the North Shelby Optimist Club to teach youngsters the basics of bicycling skills.

After a test of ability, prizes will be awarded to those who prove the best in each age group, and a free bicycle safety check will be given to all contestants.

Rebels reach championship level

baseball--and they had never played the game before.

Last season, the squad worked hard just to reach a .500 season mark.

This year, according to Breland, "All that hard work paid off. We had 20 boys come out for baseball at the start of the season."

The Reporter caught Breland and his squad in a pre-tournament practice session, Friday.

Displeased with what he saw, the coach sent his boys on a four lap mile run around the baseball field. What followed in practice was much improved.

According to the coach, his squad reached the state play-offs by concentrating on four basic areas of baseball: hitting, defense, mental and heart.

The mental part is important, because as he told his charges Friday, "Physical breaks are going to happen but don't let your brains knock you out..."

The message came across because when he asked his players how bad they wanted to win they all said, "Bad... real bad."

Who are the Rebels who showed so much talent in a span of only three years?

Senior pitcher and third baseman David Mizzell is the CVA 'ace.' He went with his team to the state title match with a 7-0 pitching record, a .308 hitting average and giving up only two earned runs in 39 innings.

Breland says Mizzell could well be one of the best pitchers in the district.

Tab Strickland is another senior pitcher and third baseman. He went to Selma with a 4-2 season mark and a .468 hitting average.

Strickland leads the team in RBI's and has three home runs to his credit.

Another top pitcher is sophomore Brett Strickland who is also a second baseman.

He took the trip with a 3-0 record, a .358 hitting average and two home runs to his credit. Breland calls Bret Strickland one of the best second basemen in the state.

Tony Strickland, a junior, also plays from the mound and first base. He has two home runs this year.

Joel Richey is a senior, who plays shortstop. He hits .470, leads the team in doubles with 11, has two home runs to his credit and leads in runs scored with 28.

Breland calls Richey the most outstanding college prospect at shortstop in the league.

And, Mike Payne, a ninth grade starter, plays right field.

Breland has nothing but priase for those fellows as well.

Non-starters on the squad include Gene Duffey, a senior, at left field and Scott Joines, a senior, in right field.

The Rebels may have come home empty handed from Selma but certainly not without the knowledge they have come a long, long way in a short, short time.

Personal news notes of county interest

by Iris F. Smitherman

Well, I guess it's getting to be that time of year again when all the hitch-hikers 'hit' the highways and travel.

I've always enjoyed reading all the sometimes artistic signs they wear, while sitting on anything from luggage to paper bags. You know the ones I mean... Florida or Bust. I need a ride... Talk about originality, right?

The other day I was on I-65 and there was this guy sitting by the highway with his life's belongings bearing a sign that read 'New York City'. The funny thing is, he was in the 'Southbound' lane. He must have been having a day like my Mondays.

Anyway, a word to the wise for all ye hitchhikers... even if you're not driving, you still need to check your exits.

Davis, and their heirs or devisees, if deceased, and all parties who, unknown to Plaintiffs claim an interest in or to the above described property.

Take notice that Ella Mae Tilley a/k/a Ella Mae Davis and Robert L. Riggins have this day filed their verified complaint in said Court against the above named Defendants and against any and all persons claiming any title to, interest in, encumbrance upon the above described real estate or any part thereof or interest therein, and against all other persons, and against said lands for the purpose of establishing the title of said lands in the said Ella Mae Tilley a/k/a Ella Mae Davis and Robert L. Riggins and to clear up all doubts and disputes concerning the same and that said suit is not pending in said Court.

Plaintiffs allege in said complaint that the title to said lands stands in the name of the Plaintiffs on the records in the Office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, Alabama, and said complaint further alleges that Plaintiffs claim title to said lands through and by virtue of a deed recorded in Deed Book 156, at Page 497 from Lillie Belle Hardy, a divorced single woman dated November 22, 1952, to Andrew D. Davis and wife, Ella Mae Davis; and by a default judgment of divorce rendered by the Circuit Court for the County of Wayne, State of Michigan in the Case Andrew Davis vs. Ella Mae Davis, Case No. 611-889 dated January 21, 1963, a true copy of which is recorded in the Probate Office of Shelby County, Alabama, in Deed Book 233, in Page 34; Robert L. The Plaintiffs and their predecessors in title have assessed said real estate in the Office of the Tax - Assessor of Shelby County, Alabama, and paid the taxes on said real estate for each year and that no one else has paid the taxes on said real estate for said period of time except the Plaintiffs and their predecessors in title and that no one has been in possession of said lands or any part thereof since 1952, except the Plaintiffs and their predecessors in title.

That Plaintiffs after most reasonable and diligent search and inquiry were unable to lcoate the following named persons to determine whether or not they are living or dead, and if living, what their ages and addresses are at the present time, and if deceased, the names, ages and addresses of their heirs or devisees, and that the same are unknown to the Plaintiffs, said persons being as follows: Doss O'Neal, Mack O'Neal and Andrew D. Davis and their heirs or devisees, if deceased, and that the names, ages and addresses of any other parties who, unknown to Plaintiffs, may claim an interest in or to the above described property, are unknown.

It is, therefore, ordered by the undersigned Clerk that publication of this notice be made in the Shelby County Reporter, a newspaper published and having a general circulation in Shelby County, Alabama, once a week for four consecutive weeks, and that all those to whom this notice is addressed and any and all persons claiming any title to, interest in, or lien or encumbrance upon, the above described real estate, or any part thereof, or any interest therein, be and they are hereby required to plead, answer or otherwise defend this cause within the time required by law, and not later than June 27, 1983.

It is further ordered that a copy of this notice certified by the undersigned Clerk, as being correct, shall also be recorded as a lis pendens in the Office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, Alabama.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED
AN ACT

Relating to Shelby County; to create a license-issuing division within the probate judge's office for the issuance of certain licenses; to provide for the selection of personnel for such license-issuing division; to provide certain duties for the division; to provide for an optional procedure for the renewal of motor vehicle licenses in the county by mail; to authorize certain additional fees and cost pursuant to such system of renewal of motor vehicle licenses by mail; such fees shall be set by the county commission from time to time to pay the cost of mailing tags or decals; to prescribe more convenient and efficient procedures for assessing and collecting of certain taxes; the issuance of licenses by the probate judge's office; to transfer certain duties now performed by the tax assessor and tax collector; to provide that the probate judge shall be a member of the Association of Tax Assessors and Tax Collectors; and to provide further for the expense allowance of the probate judge.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA

Section 1. In Shelby County, there is hereby created within the probate judge's office a license division which shall issue all licenses issued through the probate judge's office, except marriage licenses. The county commission shall furnish suitable quarters and provide the necessary forms, books, stationery, records, equipment and supplies, except such stationery forms and supplies as are furnished pursuant to law by the state department of finance or the state comptroller. The county commission shall also provide such clerks, and other assistants for said probate judge as shall be necessary from time to time for the proper and efficient performance of the duties of his office. The probate judge shall have authority to employ such clerks, and other assistants, and to fix their compensation; however, the number and compensation of such clerks and other assistants shall be subject to the approval of the county commission. The compensation of the clerks and assistants shall be paid monthly out of the general fund of the county in the same manner as other county employees are paid.

Section 2. The probate judge shall perform all duties relating to the assessment and collection of taxes on motor vehicles in the county, which have heretofore been performed by the tax assessor and tax collector. The tax assessor and the tax collector of Shelby County are hereby relieved of all duties and responsibilities relative to the assessment and collection of taxes on such motor vehicles. The probate judge shall receive the commissions and fees now allowed the assessor and collector for performing these functions, and such fees and commissions shall be remitted to the county general fund. Reporting and remitting of such tax shall be made at the same time as other reports and remittances are now made by the probate judge.

Section 3. The probate judge shall keep at all times an accurate record of all licenses received by him from the state comptroller and of the disposition made of them, of all monies received, and of the licenses issued by him. He shall report to the state comptroller at the same time and in the same manner that the judges of probate are required to do under the general law. All unissued licenses and the stubs or duplicates or carbon copies of licenses issued shall be accounted for in the same manner that judges or probate are required to account for by law.

Section 4. Except as hereinafter provided, the probate judge shall be entitled to charge and collect the same fees that are provided for by law. For the performance of duties relative to the recording of the transfer of the ownership of motor vehicles as prescribed in the Code of Alabama 1975, said probate judge shall charge and collect a fee of $1.00. All such fees shall be the property of the county and shall be paid to the general fund of the county. Refunds for licenses issued by mistake or fact of law shall be made under the conditions and in the manner prescribed by the Code of Alabama 1975.

Section 5. To prevent motor vehicles from escaping taxation and to provide for a more efficient procedure for assessment and collection of taxes due on same, no licenses shall be issued to operate motor vehicles on the public highways of this state, nor shall any transfer be made by the probate judge until the ad valorem tax on such vehicles shall have been paid to the county for the preceding year as evidenced by receipt from the said judge. Every person, firm or corporation driving or owning a motor vehicle who desires to operate a motor vehicle on the public highways of Alabama shall first return such motor vehicle for ad valorem taxation purposes to said probate judge who shall issue a certificate of assessment on a form prescribed by the state department of revenue, shall collect the taxes shown thereon, and shall make a duplicate of the tax receipt and keep same on file in his office. The license tag shall be evidence of the payment of the license and ad valorem tax due as provided under this Act.

Section 6. Before any vehicle can be assessed, the probate judge shall be furnished the tag number presently on the vehicle unless such vehicle is new, in which case said probate judge shall be furnished a bona fide bill of sale from the dealer showing when the vehicle was bought new. In the case of a used car brought into the state from a state which provides that upon sale or transfer of the motor vehicle the tags are either surrendered to an appropriate authority or subsequently reissued by the seller, said probate judge shall be furnished a bona fide certificate of title properly assigned which shows when the car was sold to an individual, firm, corporation or association, living or operating in this state. If such tag number or bill of sale or certificate of title is not furnished, the vehicle will be presumed to have been in the state the entire year for which taxes are being assessed. Those motor vehicles brought into the state during any tax year and new motor vehicles for which licenses have never been issued that have been sold from the stock of a dealer during any tax year, shall be subject to taxation as if they had been held or owned in the state on the first day of October.

Section 7. The probate judge may, at his discretion, mail an application for renewal of licenses to whom such license has been previously issued, such renewal forms required to be returned prior to the expiration date of the license. Such renewal forms may be in post card form with sufficient information threon to adequately identify and process such renewal. The signature of the licensee thereon and proper remittance shall constitute sufficient authority for the probate judge to issue such license and return to the licensee by mail. There is hereby established a fee to be entitled "Mail Order Fee" which shall be set from time to time by the county governing body to pay the cost of mailing procedure herein provided, and such fee shall be collected by the probate judge at the time of issuance and paid over to the general fund of the county as are other fees and commissions.

Section 8. The probate judge shall be a member of the Association of Tax Assessors and Tax Collectors. Any fees or dues for membership in the association shall be paid for by the county commission.

Section 9. The probate judge is hereby entitled to receive an additional expense allowance in the amount of five hundred dollars ($500.00) per month. Said expense allowance shall be in addition to any and all other compensation and expenses heretofore provided by law and shall be payable out of the county general fund in the same manner as other expense allowances are paid.

Section 10. All laws or parts of laws which conflict with this Act are hereby repealed.

Section 11. This Act shall become effective immediately upon its passage and approval by the Governor, or upon its otherwise becoming a law.

Walking wing wonder

With a roar from her husband Earl's biplane, wild wing walker Paula Cherry takes to the skies over Shelby County Airport during last weekend's annual air show. The plane is a vintage '40's model Stearman. A 450 hp engine makes it go, but many people at the show wondered what makes Paula, a Louisiana stuntwoman, go and do the things she does. For more on the air show, see the other stories and pictures by Bert Seaman in the main section of the Reporter.

Alabaster annex finally gets nod from Justice Department

by Bert Seaman

Alabaster officials heaved the proverbial sigh of relief last week when the Justice Department approved all the territory the city has annexed.

Until that stamp of approval was finalized, the city had been holding in escrow that portion of ad valorem tax from residents annexed into the city last year.

Now that revenue, which amounts to approximately $50,000, can be collected.

However, the city will have to shell out more than that amount just to contract for garbage service for the 4,500 or so new citizens.

According to Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin, garbage bids are now being let and service is expected to begin in June or July.

"We're just thrilled to death over the news that the annexations have been approved and to have these new residents as part of our city," Rubin declared.

Saying he felt the new citizens would be pleased too, Rubin pointed out that they will receive fire, paramedic and police service.

He also noted that fire insurance premimums will be lower now for the new residents since the city has a class '5' fire insurance rating.

When the annexation came to a vote in May of 1982, opponents tried to call off the election. Despite their efforts, the vote was held as scheduled and passed 505 to 245.

However, in order to get Justice Department approval, the city had to go to a ward system of voting.

Federal officials had been concerned that the annexation of mostly white areas may have weakened the voting strength of black residents.

The division of the city into five wards -- one of which is mainly black -- is supposed to remedy this possible conflict, however.

Under the new system, residents voting in the 1984 city council election can only vote for the candidate from their ward.

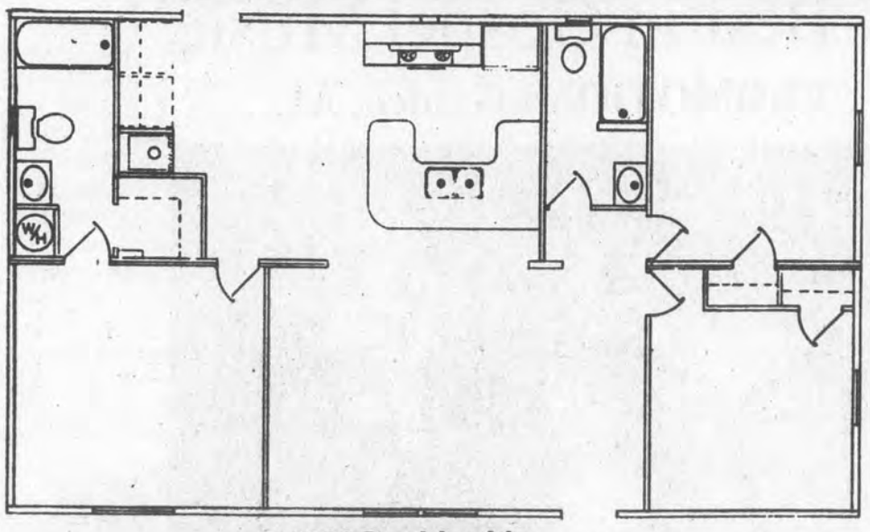

The exception, however, will be the mayor's race. That office will still be elected by the entire populace.

Expressing his optimism about the future of the city, Rubin said he has been told that Alabaster is one of the "fastest growing and most progressive cities in the state."

At least for the time being, the annexation finalization also answers a question that used to come from time to time: Who's bigger, Alabaster or Pelham?

Alabaster now has a population between 12,000 and 13,000 residents. Pelham's unofficial count is 7,200.

Abortion bill stirs issues pro and con

by Bart Slawson

Should parents be notified before their children receive abortions?

That's the question State Senator Spencer Bachus (R-Mountain Brook) and a group of legislators want answered "yes."

Bachus -- who also represents portions of Shelby County -- and seven other legislators introduced the bill in both houses of the legislature, causing a head-on collision with the Alabama branch of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Both sides claim the other side is misinformed on the issue.

Bachus said the bill is necessary because it addresses problem areas. "Most physicians and agencies wouldn't perform abortions on a child without seeking the parents advice or consideration, but some don't," he said.

Another purpose behind the bill is to notify the parent that the teenager is pregnant. "An unwed, pregnant child needs counseling and supervision," he said.

Mary Weidler, director of the Alabama office of the ACLU disagrees.

Weidler said Bachus has neglected to look at a woman's constitutional right to seek an abortion. Weidler said that right extends to minors.

The director said the bill is an attempt to cut off access to abortions.

"You can't legislate what goes on in a family. If notification is required, some parents would be so incensed they could become violent and throw the child out of the house," Weidler said.

Bachus said all confrontations are not necessarily negative. He believes most parents would want to know if someone was counseling their child on something as serious as an abortion.

"This bill is designed to let parents raise their kids as they see fit. Instead of getting counseling from some abortion mill counselor," he said.

The senator added that "abortion mills" will lose money to hospital-performed abortions. He believes they oppose the bill not on principle, but on self-interested financial grounds.

"A hospital abortion costs five times as much as a clinic procedure," Weidler said.

Bachus said the bill would also help identify incestuous relationships and abuse in a family because a judge could report such information to prosecutors.

"Abortion mills may be unwittingly covering up these incestuous situations," he said.

Weidler said she was appalled by Bachus' statement.

"I think that's an absolutely outrageous charge. The people at abortion clinics are responsible, concerned people who care about their patients. There is no cover-up," she said.

Bachus said one social worker told him they treated a child who got an abortion and she (literally) didn't know how she got pregnant.

The senator cited a study done by the Czechoslovakian Medical Society concerning the alarming frequency of sterility and miscarriage among women who receive abortions.

Bachus said the study is highly credible because it is critical of the communist goverment's sanctioning of abortion as a form of birth control.

Weidler countered, "That's absolutely not true." She cited American studies showing properly done abortions caused no lasting problems.

Diane Derzis, is director of Summit Medical Center (an abortion clinic), which handles referrals from Shelby County.

"The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta says abortion is nine times safer than childbirth. It's safer than a shot of penicillen or having your tonsils taken out," Derzis said.

"Bachus is misinformed about what happens at abortion clinics. There are careful state regulations in affect for the clinics and all counselors are state licensed," Weidler said.

Enforcement of the parental notification bill (S290 and HB481) would be handled by police and citizens informing on violators, Bachus said.

Weidler argued that Alabama Law states minors may be treated, and give consent for medical procedures without parental approval. "This law may conflict with their bill," she said.

"Seventy percent of the people in Alabama say the government should stay out of abortion decisions," Weidler said, "Bachus is forgetting these young women have the right to make a choice."

"This bill doesn't ban abortion. It bans the interference with a parent's right to know what's happening to his child," Bachus said.

An ACLU publication points out another possible point of conflict, in that the bill requires that a judge determine both that a minor is mature, and that the sought abortion will be in the girl's best interest. However, the Supreme Court holds that a mature minor must be given an opportunity for a confidential abortion regardless of a judge's view of her best interest.

The controversial bills are still in committee, and may stay there for some time, because of the large number of other issues up for consideration.

UM trustees approve new core curriculum

The University of Montevallo's new core curriculum was recently given unanimous approval by the board of trustees.

Three years of study went into the project for determining a basic course of study for all UM students.

Dr. Elizabeth Rodgers was chairman of the core Curriculum Committee and nearly every faculty member had a chance to have a say about the project.

The faculty approved the measure by a 3-1 vote, before passing it to the trustees for final approval on May 7.

Dr. Mark H. Curtis, president of the Association of American Colleges, called Montevallo's development of the program "exemplary."

He cautioned, however, that the University "must find a means to evaluate and validate the accomplishments of the students to make sure they are receiving from it what they should."

In other business at the board meeting, the trustees:

•Granted emeritus status to retiring faculty members, Julia Rotenberry, Sara Nell Lightsay and Lila Wells;

•Heard a report from Dr. Jeanetta C. Keller, director of alumni affairs and the Annual Fund campaign, that the 1982-83 drive has topped its goal of $750,000.

NSCFD elects officers

The North Shelby County Fire District has elected new officers.

Trustee Larry Dillard is the president.

Other officers are: Charlie Still, vice president for fire suppression and emergency medical services; Walter "Butch" Roberson, vice president for administration; Martha Geyer, treasurer; John Pruitt, secretary.

Dillard said the NSCFD has finalized the purchase of the one and a half acres for its second fire station, located near the intersection of highway 119 and Caldwell Mill Road. The second station should be opened within the next two or three years.

"We were surveyed in March by the Insurance Service Office of the State of Alabama to see if we can get our insurance rate lowered to lower insurance costs," Dillard said. He added that he should know the outcome of that survey by July.

In addition, the NSCFD also has on order a 75-foot ladder truck to serve the tall office buildings now being developed in the district, especially in Inverness. The truck cost $250,000.

Shelby Elementary goes international

Shelby County's smallest public school pulled off what may be it's biggest ever fund raiser last week.

Shelby Elementary held its first annual International Festival of Arts and Field Day recently. According to principal Katie Griffith, $1,900 was collected before concession and booth sales were totaled.

Most of the money came from pledges collected by students competing for the honor of King and Queen.

Second graders Travis Fox and Heather Sheffield were crowned King and Queen for the day during a special ceremony in the gym. First runners up were Mandy Willis and Jason William, followed by Amanda Horton and Forrest Davis, and Kristie Brasher and Jonathan Benson.

Griffith said all 154 students pitched in to help create the "international" atmosphere. Each grade picked a far off place from its social studies -- India, Holland, Japan, Hawaii, Australia, Scotland and Mexico -- and featured that country at a display booth. Besides the displays, student and parent-made articles were sold at the booths.

Field day added another dimension to the day's unusual activities. Students competed in broad jumps, sprints, softball throws, hurdles and team tire relays. Field day standouts included Anthony Pate (2nd), Perry Perkins (5th), Brian Cox (5th), and Aaron Bentley (6th).

Participating parents got into the act by beating the Shelby teaching staff in tug-of-war.

"It's been a different day," Griffith noted, "but we've enjoyed it. We're more tired than usual, but much happier. We'll do it again next year."

"We've been working on this for a month in the classes, making the articles. And all the parents and teachers have been in there plugging, making it work," she concluded.

Money raised will be used to purchase a new copying machine for the office.

Attention Home raises $950

A 220 pound hog has helped the Shelby County Attention Home raise $950.

The public was given the opportunity to win the porker by donating $1 to the financially troubled Attention Home and Shelby Youth Services.

Windy Hayes, an employee of Brown Moulding in Montevallo, is now the proud owner of the hog which was doanted by Mike Perry from Pell City.

The two agencies which help young people with a variety of problems, are trying to make up a $10,000 deficit in this year's budget.

Director Brenda Lee and her staff are also looking ahead to next year when $40,000 in federal funds will be lost.

Another fund raiser will be held in August when the annual golf tournament is played at Inverness Country Club.

North Shelby group strives for library

by Bart Slawson

Citizens who live in the Northern Shelby County area have learned to take care of themselves.

When fire protection was needed to help keep their homes safe and their insurance rates down, they banded together and created the North Shelby County Fire District.

Now the citizens want a library.

With the help of county library director Phil Clark, a non-profit organization called Friends of the North Shelby Library, Inc., is working on forming a library district.

Clark said the plan calls for a 7,000 square foot building with a meeting room, stacks, children's section, study area, periodical section and reference area.

The 20,000 volume library will cost about $500,000, Clark said.

Although President Reagan's Jobs bill could provide $300,000 toward that goal, the rest must be raised locally, Clark said. The group is also seeking donated land.

The organization plans to move a bill through the legislature, seeking an election to form the library district, much the same way the fire district was formed.

The district would cover the Beat 13 and Beat 12 areas including boxes 1,3, and 4, Clark said.

Tentatively, the organization wants to assess a $10 annual membership per family to fund the library.

Library officers include Lynn Stockum, president; Lauren Barrett, vice president (Barrett is also chairman of the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission); Louise McKean, secretary; and Katie Arnold, treasurer.

"We've served that area for a long time with bookmobiles but we need a permanent branch up there," Clark said.

Two titles twirl better than one title

Shelby Academy majorette Dana Johnson has won the "Miss Majorette of Alabama" title two years in a row.

In 1982, the Alabaster twirler walked off with the trophy in the intermediate competition for 10-12 year olds.

This year she claimed the top award in the 11-12 preteen division of the contest.

In the three and a half years of competition, Dana has won approximately 145 trophies.

Some of the recent titles she has won are: "Miss April Majorette," and "Miss Spring Twirling Queen."

Dana is also listed in the volume, "Who's Who in Baton Twirling."

At Shelby Academy, the 7th grader is a feature twirler and also excells in academics.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Michael W. Shuler of Alabaster.

Putting on Long Pants
During the past twelve years the MMI Agency has been like a 'little brother' of Marketing Management, Inc. The bigger they have gotten and the more national in scope they have become, the harder it is for us to work in their shadow, keep our own identity, and improve our local service.

Moving Out of the Shadow
We are still next door to MMI, and we will always have their 'family' support. But, Alabama Insurance Exchange is breaking ground very soon for our new office building on Valleydale Road in Pelham. We plan to move this September, and send you an invitation to attend our Open House celebration.

The Better Way
Until now we have served you well as the MMI Agency, but on April 1, 1983 we became ALABAMA INSURANCE EXCHANGE. The main changes are: a new name to establish local identity; more diversified services and products; increased competitive savings for you . . . our client; and continued competent, professional, local service.

Our Philosophy . . .
. . . is that company/client relationships, like good friendships, should always stay in a state of repair. We are doing this by serving you THE BETTER WAY.

Antique store opens in Genery

Echo's of the Past, a new antique store in the Genery's Gap Community, is stocking up for its grand opening in June.

The store is owned by Earl Baggett of the Turner Community, and Deborah Headley of South Shades Crest Road.

The store is located on highway 52, west of Helena, across from Hoover Sanitation.

According to Dalton Baggett, Earl's husband, the 2,000 square foot, Butler type building will be packed with antiques and collectibles.

"We'll have quite a variety of antiques," he said. "I think people will be surprised."

He said the location was picked because of amount of traffic through the area.

Baggett said the store stocking would begin this week so everything would be ready for the Sunday, June 5 grand opening. The event runs from 1-6 p.m., Baggett said.

Pelham majorettes

The new squad of majorettes at Pelham High have already started drilling for the 1983-84 football season. Members of the new squad are (from left): April Howard, Susan Kline, Beth Ballard, Melinda Emanuel (head), Jodie Roy, Misty Coshatt, Julie Johnson, and Sheri Game. (Photo by Bart Slawson)

Massive distribution center will help flow of goods

Wal-Mart officials in Pelham are anticipating an even better flow of merchandise, now that the chain's massive distribution center has opened in Cullman.

The facility boasts over 900,000 square feet and is longer than five football fields. Total investment in the center exceeds $20 million.

Besides the Pelham store, the new distribution center will eventually cater to 175 stores in five states.

Wal-Mart employs more than 3,200 Alabamians in 40 stores, with a statewide payroll of some $22 million.

Nursing service holds open house

Supportive Home Care is moving its home in nursing service to the Medical and Dental Arts Building in Alabaster.

An open house will be held at the new location from 4-7 p.m., Friday, May 20.

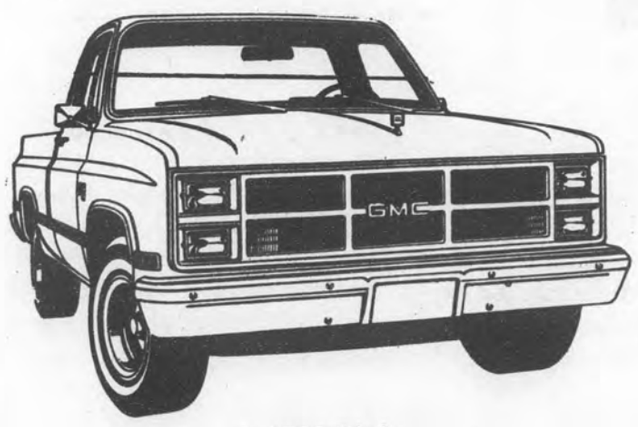

The firm was previously located on 1st Street in Alabaster.

Shelby County business summary

Helena salesman tops $4 million

Helena is the home of one of the top salesman in the country, according to Whirlpool Corporation.

His name is Gerry Cornelius and in 1982 he sold more than $4 million in major appliances (refrigerators, stoves, etc.) in the Birmingham area.

That's a pretty good trick considering he was selling in an area with almost 16% unemployment and in some areas as bad as 30%.

Cornelius came in second the recent Whirlpool National Achievement Club Finals in Chicago. The contest honors the company's top salemen.

A Houston man won first place after selling $7 million worth of appliances. But Cornelius pointed out Houston has an unemployment rate of only 5%.

"Oh well, I want to go up next year and give it another shot," Cornelius said.

To get to the finals Cornelius had to be nominated from his Atlanta regional office, then win a contest for the Southeastern United States.

The company flew him to Chicago where a hotel room was waiting, filled with gifts like wine, binoculars, a radio, a half-carat diamond ring, and a plaque.

Later, his company arranged for the finalists to be picked up in a chauffered horse-drawn carriage. They were driven in grand style to a noted club for a night on the town.

"That made it all worthwhile. Recognition is sometimes more important than money," he said.

"I felt like a Nobel Prize winner. It was really first class," he added.

New fitness outfit opens shop

A new fitness outfit has opened shop in Pelham.

Fitness South has moved into the old T&L guns shop on U.S. 31, south of Acton Hill. The company is owned and operated by Robin and Susan Ruby, and Robert Burgett, of Bessemer.

"We feel like there's a lot of young people from Riverchase and Pelham who are concerned with fitness," says Ruby. "We're still doing a lot of little things to get the place shaped up, but think we have something to offer."

He said they've invested some $20,000 in top line weight lifting equipment, including a full set of Olympic dumbell and rack barbells, as well as a multi-station fitness unit.

The outfit is offering programs and facilities for both men and women, and is currently taking memberships, Ruby says.

Ronnie opens

Alabaster's newest fast food restaurant opened for business on May 18.

When the restaurant's grand opening is held on June 4, Ronald McDonald will be on hand for the cutting of a ribbon made of $1 bills.

The money will be contributed to the Red Cross.

Tables and benches are available for outdoor dining and there is an indoor seating capacity of 97.

The restaurant is located on Hwy. 31, and will be open daily.

Name change

The Pelham based Marketing Management, Inc., has changed its name to Alabama Insurance Exchange.

Firm president Ken Williams says another change is slated for September when the firm moves from Oak Mountain Office Park to Exchange Office Park. The new location is part of a 13-acre complex being developed on Valleydale Road, just east of U.S. 31.

Williams said the company will keep its same personnel.

Thompson moves

Hall W. Thompson, owner of Thompson Tractor Co., Inc., has relocated his offices at Shoal Creek, off the Dunnavant Road.

He will direct the preparations for the PGA Championship set to be played there in 1984.

Thompson is the Caterpillar dealer in North Alabama. He also owns an industrial supply service, and has offices in Birmingham, Anniston, Tuscaloosa, Decatur, Opelika, and Scottsboro.

Sale completed

Blue Circle, Inc. of the United Kingdom officially took over its purchase of Martin Marietta Cement on Wednesday, May 18.

Martin Marietta's Southern Division president John Bourdeaux said that service staffing remains the same for the old firm's customers.

The purchase agreement includes the plant located on highway 25 between Calera and Montevallo.

In case you wondered....

If you saw some Phi Kappa Phis from UM pushing a wheelchair around Montevallo recently, you may have wondered what was going on. No one was crippled. Instead, fraternity members were holding a 50-hour push-a-thon. Their efforts earned $1,000 towards play units for the severely handicapped.

MHS grad directs play at UA

Regina Harbour, daughter of Dr. Charles C. Harbour of Montevallo, recently directed 'A Couple of White Chicks Sitting Around Talking,' at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa. The play is written by John Ford Noonan.

Miss Harbour is a graduate student at UA, and is a member of the Southeastern Theater Conference and the Alabama Theater League.

She is a graduate of Montevallo High School.

WalkAmerica is hot on heels of $8,400

Battered boots were the tokens of appreciation presented to three hard working individuals for their efforts in the recent WalkAmerica event.

Held recently at Oak Mt. State Park on a rainy Saturday, the walk to raise money for the March of Dimes Foundation brought in $8,400.

Boots went to Walk Chairman Susan Coyne, Co-chairman Tommy Snowden, and Ken Williams, who was in charge of prizes.

Thompson Middle School also got a boot for having the most walkers.

The team raising the most money, $1,700, was composed of Sue Attaway and Dixie Snowden. Their prize was two Eastern Airline tickets for a round trip to any point in the United States.

A television set was presented to Teddy Brasher as the top individual money raiser. His total was $1,451.

Among the 140 walkers who registered to hike the 12 miles were: Superintendent of Education elect Ellie Glasscox; Representative Don Murphy, Sheriff Buddy Glassgow, MMI employees, members of the Valley Elementary School faculty and Pelham and Montevallo High School students.

Anyone who collected donations but did not get to the Walk is asked to mail the official envelope and money to the March of Dimes office at 2164 Highland Ave. South, Birmingham, AL 35205.

PLYMOUTH RELIANT K: THE HIGHEST MILEAGE...LOWEST PRICE 6-PASSENGER CAR AND WAGON IN AMERICA.
To outstanding mileage and price, add Reliant's standard value features like rack-and-pinion steering, Power Brakes, Halogen Headlamps, Maintenance Free battery and more. They're all part of our American way to get you your money's worth.
PLUS GREAT RESALE VALUE. Keep this in mind, too: according to recent NADA Used Car Guides, '81 and '82 Reliants retain more of their original selling prices than similarly equipped Fairmonts and Citations. You keep getting your money's worth with Reliant.

RELIANT IS BACKED BY CHRYSLER'S 5 YEAR/50,000 MILE PROTECTION PLAN.
Nobody can be more certain of the quality of their cars than we are and our Chrysler 5/50 Protection Plan proves it! Plan covers the engine/power train and outer body rust-through on all new American-built cars for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first. Limited warranties. Deductible may be required.
5/50 PROTECTION PLAN

*Base sticker price excluding title, taxes and destination charges. WSW tires $58 extra. Use EPA est. mpg for comparison. Your mileage may vary depending on speed, weather and trip length. Highway mileage probably lower. California estimates lower.

Calera detour

State Highway Department crews and State Troopers pitch in to close off Interstate 65 near Calera May 18. A truck carrying dangerous industrial chemicals leaked, creating a hazardous situation. Traffic was backed up for miles and rerouted through Calera on Highway 31 for six hours while state officials supervised a clean up. (Photo by Bart Slawson)

Computer bids rejected, but options left open

by Fred Guarino

Shelby County's Commission short-circuited a decision Monday to purchase a new computer system.

The body was considering to change its reportedly limited use Burroughs system to a mini system that can handle all departments.

The change would have been the fourth for the county in nearly 12 years.

However, after a month of meetings and even taking bids for a new system, the commission failed to make a clear cut choice.

Commissioners voted to reject all bids received on a new system, but they did vote to hire a computer consultant to determine if the county needs a change or not.

That action, which left the situation unresolved, was based on uncertainties about the Burroughs system.

Commissioners John Ames and Harold Davenport believed that the Burroughs could be made to do everything the county wants.

In the meantime, to prevent delays in the opening of the Pelham license branch office, commissioners voted to spend $14,000 to tie that office to the Burroughs.

Further keeping the spectre of a new computer aloft, Ames and Comissioner Jake Morris made it clear that any equipment used to modify the Burroughs must be applicable to any future system.

Ames opened discussions of a new computer by pointing out that the Burroughs is capable of serving all needs.

He also reminded commissioners that the county still owes $87,000 for the Burroughs system. And, he reported, the system could be modified to serve the Pelham office.

Davenport agreed with Ames and stated, "It's been my feeling all along to find out what we had first."

Davenport said he also understood that all county departments were not on line with the current system but he thought they could be put on line.

A Burroughs representative stated that it was the county which decided not to put all departments on line in the first place.

In light of that situation, Davenport moved that all bids for a new system be rejected and that the county take a close look at what it had.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden showed his frustration over past problems with the Burroughs system... such as not being able to get needed information.

Snowden was also upset because he had not been made aware of what the computer's capabilities were.

"The thing that bothers me is we found out we've got twice as much as we thought we had...," Snowden said.

"Seems like representatives of Burroughs would have looked at that... They've just been gouging us, taking our money for something we weren't using, selling us equipment we didn't need."

Davenport told Snowden that someone has to be able to tell computer people what the county wants.

He stated, "I don't believe any computer company can come in and tell you what you need."

Ames said that Burroughs people told him they offered the county a budgetary system for $22,000, but that the data processing manager did not like it and said he would write his own.

He said that in the time he has been on the commission over $22,000 has been spent toward writing a budget program.

Morris reported that in the last seven years the computer issue had been "beat to death" and he said that the last programmer was hired on the recommendation of Burroughs.

He said it is not hard to figure out that a $350,000 one time cost (for a mini system) would be better than $250,000 per year being spent now.

Acid spill closes I-65

by Bart Slawson

Hydro-fluorosilic acid and hydrogen peroxide are dangerous by themselves, but a combination of the two is deadly.

A small mixture of these two dangerous irritant chemicals gave off poison gas last Wednesday during an acid spill near Calera. A three-mile section of I-65 had to be closed, backing up traffic for miles.

A truck owned by Industrial Chemicals Corporation was enroute from Montgomery to Birmingham at 2 p.m. when the driver discovered chemicals leaking under his truck, said Earl N. Miller, a transportation-enforcement officer with the Alabama Public Service Commission.

The driver, who was not identified, pulled over and found a hole eaten in the truck bed and highly corrosive hydrogen peroxide solution leaking out.

A half-cup of acid also leaked out, mixed with a pint of hydrogen peroxide creating a foam that gave off poison gas.

"It was leaking on the passenger side of the truck, away from traffic. I don't know what would have happened if the leak was on the driver's side with all those people driving by," Miller said.

State troopers were summoned and blocked off I-65 at highways 25 and 31 and rerouted traffic through Calera.

Officials from the State Department of Environmental Management, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Hank's Ambulance Service, the Calera Police, Fire and Rescue Departments were also called to assist with the spill.

The actual clean-up of the spill was handled by Industrial Chemicals, the company responsible for the spill. The chemicals were intended for use in water treatment facilities.

The team poured soda ash over the contaminated parts of the ground. They removed the leaking 500-pound barrels from the damaged truck and loaded them on rental trucks and company vehicles to be taken to Birmingham.

Parts of the contaminated ground had to be dug up and carried away.

Miller said no one was injured and the cleanup was handled well by Industrial Chemicals. "We were lucky all the way around. They were not violating any regulations concerning carriers for hire and chemical transportation regulations. I think it was a freak accident," he said.

Traffic was blocked off for six hours troopers said.

If the entire 2,790 pounds of hydro-fluorosilic acid and 4,000 pounds of hydrogen peroxide 35% solution had mixed, it would have been disastrous, Miller said.

Calera Police and Fire Department were allowed to respond to the emergency for mutual aid because state troopers requested their assistance.

Bulger remains at Shelby County High

by Bert Seaman

Shelby County High School Principal Don Bulger will remain at that school's helm although he will be required to make improvements in six areas.

Bulger's case was discussed during an executive session at last week's called Board of Education meeting, but the board didn't announce its decision until the regular meeting Tuesday night.

The details of the improvements, or corrective measures that will be required of Bulger are not to be made public, Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles said.

After analyzing information presented by 20 individuals, Knowles said the evidence supported allegations of: 1. Using profanity in the presence of students; 2. not selling admission tickets to school events; 3. personal use of a publicly owned vehicle; 4. inadequate supervision of and failure to report personnel problems; 5. failure to keep detailed financial records; and 6. improper maintenance and cleanliness of the facility.

At last week's meeting, the board voted not to renew the contracts of five non-tenured teachers and proposed cancelling the contracts of two teachers who are tenured.

In the case of Viola Peoples, it will be the second time the board has tried to cancel her contract.

After a public hearing in February, the board voted to fire

It's graduation time

Over 800 students are graduating from high schools in Shelby County this season.

Graduation ceremonies for 666 of them will occur Thursday evening when the Shelby County public high schools hold their commencement exercises.

Calera High lists 50 students as prospective graduates. Services will begin at 7:30 in the auditorium.

At Chelsea High, diplomas will go to 57 students in the stadium where friends and relatives will gather to view the ceremonies at 7:30.

Montevallo High's 67 seniors will walk across the stage in Palmer Hall, following ceremonies that begin at 7:30.

At Pelham High, the gymnasium will be the scene of commencement for 164 seniors, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Shelby County High School will conduct its graduation at the football field at 7 p.m. for 102 seniors.

Thompson High, with the largest number of prospective graduates of any county school, will begin its services at 8 p.m. at the stadium. There are 167 in the graduating class, topping Pelham High's class by only three students.

At Vincent High, activities will begin at 8 p.m. in the gym for 59 graduating seniors.

The private academies held their commencements earlier this week. Coosa Valley Academy awarded diplomas to 28 students on Monday night, while Shelby Academy distributed 21 diplomas Tuesday night.

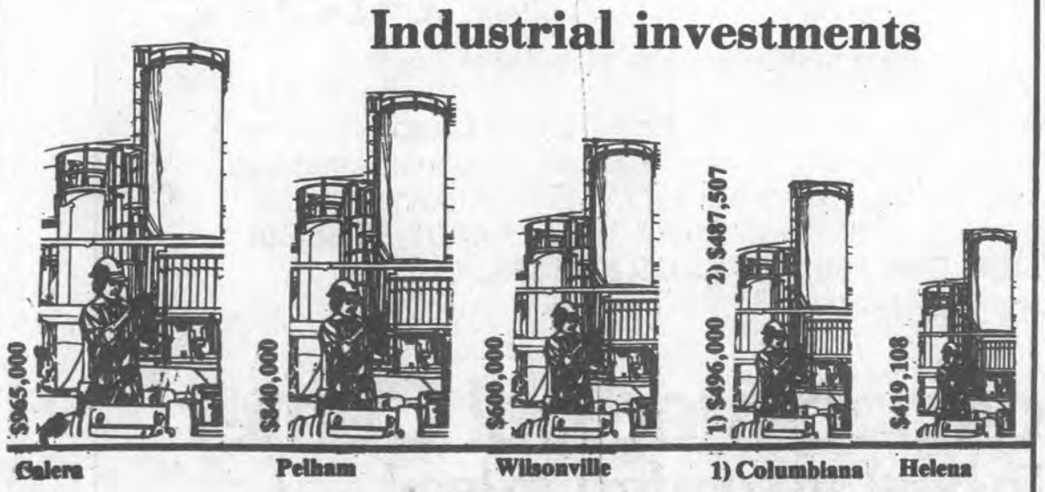

Briarwood Christian High School will hold its commencement on Friday, May 27 at 7 p.m. when 68 students are expected to receive diplomas.

Indian Springs School traditionally awards diplomas the first week in June, and this year the date is June 3 at 10:30 a.m. The ceremonies will be held "on the green" if weather is cooperative. ISS lists 45 students in its graduating class.

Industrial investments

Calera leads industrial growth

by Bart Slawson

Although the Pelham-Helena area together led the county in 1982 in industrial investment, Calera attracted almost $1 million in new industrial activity.

Calera persuaded industries to announce investments of $965,000 during 1982, according to a study released by the Alabama Development Office.

The study lists companies that have announced plans to invest money in Alabama cities and counties during 1982.

Southern Foundry Corporation announced plans to invest $650,000 in producing gray iron castings in Calera. The investment would create 15 jobs.

Central Alabama Paving announced plans to invest $300,000 to mix asphalt near Calera. Unique Industries Inc. said they will spend $15,000 to produce threaded steel fasteners.

Pelham was close behind Calera with $840,000 in capital investment.

Pelham officials managed to attract five major industrial investments to their city. The largest announcement came from Bethea-National Corp. to invest $600,000 to produce custom ductile iron castings.

Second was M.D. Henry Company Inc., which announced plans to invest $100,000 to produce electric power substation equipment. The investment would create two jobs.

Third was Industrial Heating and Finishing Inc., which announced it plans to invest $60,000 to build industrial process ovens. The investment would create two jobs.

Other investments include fabricated steel and and compression packing.

Helena attracted five major industrial investments.

The largest was an announcement by Vulcan Engineering Company Inc., which plans to invest $180,000 to produce bucket elevators.

The second largest was an announcement by Combustion Engineering Inc., which plans to invest $160,000 to produce electro-static precipitators.

Top citizen

After getting the Central Civitan Club's award as the Outstanding Citizen of the Year, Sheriff Buddy Glasgow chats with past recipients of the award, (l-r) Ned Bearden, Leon Barton, and Hershel Meadows.

Civitans laud sheriff as Citizen of Year

The man chosen to be the Central Civitan Club's Citizen of the Year was described as a winner by the keynote speaker at Thursday's award banquet.

This year the Civitans honored Shelby County Sheriff Buddy Glasgow.

Speaking to the audience gathered in the Thompson Middle School cafeteria, Bobby Timmons called the sheriff a winner, "not just in politics, but in life as a whole."

As Executive Director of the Alabama Sheriff's Association, Timmons has worked closely with the sheriff, especially when he was president of the state association.

In his talk on faith, Timmons brought out the sheriff's philosophy by telling the crowd that Glasgow would say, "I know it can't be done, but let's go ahead and do it anyway."

"Buddy," he concluded, "keep on being a doer."

Civitan President Roy Thomas presented the award to the sheriff as Glasgow's family, Civitan District Governor Betty O'Barr, members of the county Civitan clubs and other guests looked on.

UNDO replacement

New drug fight brews

by David F. Moore

Top ranking law enforcement officers in Shelby County are developing new means to combat local drug problems.

Previously, much of the fight against drug trafficking here has been waged by UNDO (United Narcotics Detail Operations). UNDO work, however, has recently been disbanded locally, leaving the various police departments on their own in the push to curtail drugs.

The Shelby County Chiefs Association is moving to fill the gap left by UNDO.

Three proposals were discussed at the chiefs' monthly meeting last Wednesday in Alabaster.

•Have every department ante up $500 to start up local, county-wide operations. The money would be used to pay personnel and make undercover drug buys.

•Establish a 24-hour, hot-line to take tips from citizens.

•Establish educational programs to be implemented in the schools.

District Attorney Billy Hill said he viewed personnel as being the key obstacle in starting up any and all of the programs.

Manning the hot-line with trained people and having departments provide officers to speak to the schools would be just part of the problem, Hill indicated.

Although the sheriff's department has a deputy who had extensive experience with UNDO, Chief Deputy James Jones said personnel would probably need to be recruited from outside the area to make undercover buys.

Montevallo Chief Allen Needham said money is the ultimate obstacle facing any such operations. His department is under tight funding now, and $500 for any new operations just wasn't budgeted.

Jones said Sheriff Buddy Glasgow might be able to come up with funds for the hot-line, and that was the course the officers decided to pursue first.

Hill said money would be available from possibly several county sources, and Chief Bull Carter said his mayor had indicated that Alabaster would be supportive of the cause.

Hoover Chief David Cummings said his department would have no problem assisting in the program if it proved to beneficial to the south Jefferson area as well as Shelby County.

Cummings suggested using volunteer officers to do public relations and educational work. This would build public recognition for the overall drug program, he said.

"Every day we're not enforcing these laws, there's some kid going down the drain," said Needham.

"Every department has enough going on to handle," said Helena Chief Ray Rollan. "We just can't get to it."

Jones said that most drug dealers are no longer localized, working in only a given community. For that reason, he stressed the necessity of honest communications between the various departments.

Jones, Hill and Pelham Chief Dave Watson are working as a committee to develop various avenues through which to approach the issue.

Wednesday night, Carter and Sgt. Larry Rollan asked the county mayors association and Probate Judge Tommy Snowden and Commissioner Jake Morris, for financial support for the anti-drug program.

"They indicated that they'd budget it for next year," Carter later said. "It's just a matter of tight finances right now."

County computer

Commissioner Leon Archer amended Davenport's motion to reject all bids to include the hiring of a consultant for six months.

The consultant would write the programs the county needs and report back to the commission.

In the interest of getting the Pelham branch office opened sometime this year, Snowden asked that the consultant be hired for only three months.

The motion was approved with the three month consultant included.

After Snowden said he did not know how to hire a consultant, he appointed Archer and Davenport to do the job.

Although Snowden was uncertain of the adequacy of putting the Pelham branch on the current computer, commissioners voted to take the action anyway.

Airport plans draw flak

Shelby County residents lobbed some anti-aircraft fire in the direction of the county's airport authority, Monday.

Though the appointment of board members to the county's newly incorporated airport authority did not come up at Monday's county commission meeting, opposition to the board did.

Bill Knowles showed up with several residents and a petition he claimed had been signed by over 300 residents to oppose airport expansion and the formation of an airport authority.

According to Knowles, if he had time, he could have gotten 1,000 names.

One reason expressed for opposition to airport expansion was the location of Shelby Academy close to the airport.

Knowles said that while it is not likely, "Any plane could crash killing any number of students."

Another reason was noise pollution.

Knowles spoke of the "golly hole" sinkhole near the airport. He stated that vibrations of increased air traffic could cause more sink holes in the area.

"We've got too beautiful of a valley to see any more destruction," he said.

About increased corporate use of the airport, Knowles said, "We are only 30 minutes from the airport in Birmingham. They've got a good airport and good highways.

"I don't see any reason for our airport to start with. We could put an... inn or a shopping center out there."

Knowles and his group of supporters were also upset that the first they knew of the airport authority was when they read about it in the Reporter

He asked commissioners how many times county residents would have to fight the airport? And, he reported, he has fought the issue three or four times before.

Residents spoke of decreased land value which would result from airport expansion and he reported that some people had already moved away.

Commissioner John Ames tried to calm residents by telling them that the airport authority has no control of the county's facility and will not get that control until the county gives it to them.

Ames had to explain, however, that the appointment of a board of directors is mandated by state law since the authority has already been incorporated.

When Ames suggested that the authority might come up with recommendations to the liking of county residents, Knowles asked, "Do you believe that?"

The commissioner found himself having to admit that once a board is appointed, the airport authority can do what it wants.

After further discussion, Knowles retorted, "It is just a matter of clockwork before those people have full control (of the county airport).

Ames indicated that he was in favor of legal notice of decisions.

However, no further mention was made of appointing an airport board of directors during the meeting.

Teachers transferred to Inverness School

Work continues on Inverness Elementary School. But even though the new school in north Shelby County is still unfinished, it now has a principal, maintenance technician, secretary/bookkeeper and a staff of 18 teachers.

And the board of education also gave the school some "seed money," on which to operate.

The recommendation to open a checking account with $3,000 in it for Inverness School was approved at board's called meeting Wednesday.

Elizabeth Smith had been previously approved as principal. Wednesday the board voted to hire Terry L. Browning as maintenance technician.

Both employees assume their duties at June 1.

Valley teachers who are transferring to Inverness are: Loretta Kimbrell, Kathy Acton, Barbara Sims, Jane Hampton, Vanessa Flowers, Jan Young, Cynthia Hill, Dorothy King, Margaret Pflasterer, Kay Dummier, Kathryn Richardson, Joy Scurlock, Linda Deaton, Helen Owens, Joyce Bonovitch, Paulette Brasher, Teresa Tice.

Janice Moody, secretary/bookkeeper at Valley, is also transferring to Inverness.

One of the new teachers is transferring from Chelsea since that school is losing two teaching units. Virginia Nash, is going to Inverness; Cheryl Beckham, is transferring to Riverchase.

Columbiana eyes annexation of surrounding 30 square miles

by Bert Seaman

Columbiana may break the circle which now bounds its city limits, and form new boundaries in a rectangular shape.

The city is proposing to annex approximately 30 square miles of surrounding areas in hopes of improving its pull for industrial development.

Last Thursday, the city council approved a resolution for a legislative bill to be introduced, calling for an election.

Councilman Lewis Walker said there are approximately 700 residents living within the boundaries of the proposed annexation.

"The people who have talked to me said they wanted to come in," reported Mayor Buck Falkner. In addition to giving the city room for industry, the new lines would also clarify who is eligible to vote.

Because of the circular pattern, Walker said he knows of an individual living within the city limits who doesn't vote because they don't know where the line is.

In another case he cited, a person whose home is actually outside the boundaries takes part in city elections beliving he's within the city limits.

At the present time, the city encompasses about seven square miles, which includes several knots on the east side of the circle where subdivisions have been developed.

The new boundaries have been drawn along section lines (see legal description in this issue of the Reporter).

If the annexation passes, Columbiana will have more territory within its boundaries than any other municipality in the county.

Turning to the subject of grants, the council learned from Councilwoman Jessie Jones that the deadline is rapidly closing for a $10,000 grant.

Jones asked if the council wanted to apply for the money which would be used to build ballfields and tennis courts in the vicinity of the middle school.

After receiving the go-ahead on that grant, the councilwoman announced plans to go after a larger grant to build a recreation complex after discussing the matter with a city landowner.

City prisoner pay hike nixed

Shelby County's mayors do not think much of the county's idea to increase charges for housing city prisoners.

The Shelby County Mayors Association met with two members of the County Commission last week to discuss the proposal. The mayors quickly decided they did not want to see the per diem cost increased, and Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden mellowed at once, not pressing the issue.

The meeting was called at the request of the commission, who was looking for ways to ease the county budget.

The county currently charges the cities $1.75 per day to house and feed their prisoners. Snowden had suggested a new rate of $15.

Mayor Ralph Sears, president of the mayors' group, said that cities are in the same financial difficulties as the county, and Montevallo "is on the verge of proration."

In other action, the two groups decided to meet quarterly to discuss county and city cooperation on any problems or opportunities that may arise. The meeting of the combined groups is tentatively set for July 20.

Mayors attending the meeting, in addition to Sears were: H.A. "Doc" Rubin, Alabaster; Charles Penhale, Helena; Burk Dunaway, Pelham; Don Greene, Vincent; and Mickey Henson, Wilton.

Snowden and Jake Morris were the only commissioners present.

Vincent clerk faces charges

Prosecutors were preparing their prescription forgery case Monday against the city clerk of Vincent who is also a registered nurse.

According to Billy Hill, Shelby County District Attorney, Frances Spates, 67, was indicted by a Shelby County grand jury and charged with passing a forged prescription for narcotics in a Vincent drug store.

She is accused of writing a prescription for codeine and Tylenol-4 at the Vincent Clinic Pharmacy in the name of a Mountain Brook physician, Hill said. The doctor was not identified.

Spates is a registered nurse at Brookwood Hospital caring for patients in their rooms, a hospital spokeswoman said.

She has been the Vincent city clerk for about 50 years, said Mayor Don Greene. She is still working as part-time city clerk as usual, the mayor said.

Spates was arrested May 18 at 11:30 a.m. and released on $5,000, police said.

Her trial is expected in August.

Spates was unavailable for comment.

Seniors stand at crossroads

An open letter to graduates:

Tinker, tailor, soldier, sailor.
Richman, poorman, beggarman, thief...

Some 800 Shelby County students are graduating this week from high school. Others have or are about to graduate from college.

Graduation. The event marks an ending to many things. Moreover, it marks a beginning. A symbol, if you will. Like caterpillars crawling out of cocoons and flying off later as butterflies

When you graduate -- like it or not -- society more or less forces you into what is fondly referred to as the "real world." And along with graduation and the real world, generally comes The Big Question: "What are you going to be when you grow up?"

Call it the crossroads syndrome -- "Where do I go from here?"

Some people know the direction they (think they) are going after graduation. Many will opt for college or post-grad work, a move considered to be either a cop-out on the "real world," or self improvement -- depends on whom you ask.

Others have jobs lined up, maybe in Shelby County, maybe elsewhere. Some grads are heading for the armed services, others for trade school.

Still others will stand at the crossroads, backs to the wind, thumbs in the air, waiting for the ride that may or may not come.

Tinker, tailor, soldier, sailor...

Even from the ancient pinnacle of 31 years, I remember what I went through when I graduated from high school and college. I didn't have the answer to The Big Question and that can be a little scary because it seems as if you're supposed to know.

I remember too the misty morning of April 4, 1981, when a buddy and I set out across the foggy mountains of northern Georgia, starting a hike to Maine on the Appalachian Trail. I had a thousand different feelings rushing through me -- one of them was fear. The fog was so thick we couldn't see a dozen trees in front of us -- much less 2,000 miles.

It was scary. We were leaving behind a familiar part of our lives. Taking on something new. But one step at time, we finally got to Maine.

Today's graduates will get somewhere, too. One or two steps at a time. Finally.

Tinker, tailor, soldier, something...

In looking back at all the decisions and indecisions, I've come to this conclusion about The Big Question:

"What do you want to be when you grow up?" A better question to ponder is "What you are now?" What are you today?

For what you are today is the stuff of which all tomorrows are built.

Tinker, tailor...

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Joe Smith works with his Pop at Smith-Smith Supply Company in Columbiana. Joe is the perfect example of what happens to a boy if his Pop is a good provider and his Mom is a good cook.

I was in the store today to buy a ball of twine. It was time to stick my beans and I had to have something to tie the canes to a wire I had stretched from one post to another. In the back of my mind was the memory of Herman Strong and his mess of beans that had cost him a nickle a bean. I guess that's why I planted two extra rows and, because of this, needed a little more twine.

Joe was as busy as two bees in one jug and, since it was halfway between 11:30 and 12:00 o'clock, hungry enough to eat half an ostrich. We talked about eating beans, okra, corn and tomatoes, while Joe worked and I waited, and Joe's eyes lit up like a candle in the dark.

He told me where the twine was and I went and got it, past the televisions and refrigerators and screws and bolts, nestled in a corner next to some trotline cord. It was a tiny ball but it cost over a buck and I came back up the aisle toting it like a young mother would carry her first baby.

Joe was still there, still busy, and I said: "It's ten minutes till twelve."

His eyes came out and sparkled again. "I know," he said. He waited a minute and added: "I'm ready."

Outside, in little trays, they had marigolds. They came six to a tray and cost 89 cents a tray. They looked like a bundle of yellow wet socks, drooped as they were, but still alive.

"What you get for the marigolds outside?" I asked.

"Eighty-nine cents."

"They look mighty old and feeble," I added.

"They looked good yesterday when I noticed 'em," Joe said.

"You know something, Joe."

"What?"

"When a guy gets my age and marigolds get as old as those look, one day can make a whale of a difference."

Singapore is Mobile magnified

Editor's note: Southeast Asia was the destination of a recent tour sponsored by the National Newspaper Association. The purpose was to get firsthand information on the five countries that make up the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) and how this affects the U.S.

by Marcia M. Sears

Singapore is a booming success story. In the mid-1960's it was a slum. Today it is one of the most modern cities in the world. Its busy and industrious citizens have nothing in common with the old image of decadence and of British colonists lounging around the Raffles Hotel.

Lee Kwon Yu, the president of the country since its break with Malaysia in 1965, gets all the credit. He built the city-nation the way he wanted it, and the people went along with him, because they saw it was creating a better life, at least in material benefits.

Lee purposely introduced programs to break up old cultural patterns that had Malay and Chinese ethnics groups opposing each other.

One of these was to build high rise apartment buildings and force mixed ethnic and racial groups to move into them.

He took the enormous natural advantage of Singapore's deep-water port, and channeled energy and funds into building up international trade. Soon multi-national companies and banks were building headquarters there. It is now rivaling Hong Kong as a financial center.

The Chicago-sized nation has no natural resources except the port. Yet Singapore is a major oil center, because it has built the largest oil refineries in that part of the world.

Everything is imported, manufactured or processed, then exported.

It is in adding value to raw materials that Singapore has taught its citizens to excel, even with water. Singapore imports it from Malaysia, purifies it, uses part, and sells the rest back to Malaysia.

The airport and several housing projects were built up from swamps. Fifty square kilometers have been added by reclaiming land from the sea. The Raffles Hotel used to be on the shore -- now it is several blocks inland. Heavy equipment, cranes, trucks, and construction are everywhere.

Singapore boasts another distinction: The McDonald's restaurant there sells more hamburgers than any other McDonald's in the world.

The people accept a strict birth control policy. The first baby is all right. The second is frowned on. If a third one appears, so do extra taxes.

A strict immigration policy also keeps the population from growing too much, although people are eager to immigrate there. The nation has 2.4 million people in its 224 square miles.

Schools follow the western pattern, and education is strongly encouraged by government policy.

People get tickets for jaywalking and littering. The penalty for illegal drugs is hanging. Communists are not welcome. There are 15-20 long term political detainees in prison. Government officials told us these hard core detainees would be let out if they would promise not to go back to their pro-Communist activities.

The press is far from being as free as in the U.S. or England, but is freer than in most third world countries.

Singapore is such a sophisticated city that even the famous can travel about without being.badgered. On a habor tour boat that held about 60 passengers, Sophia Loren came aboard with her sons. No one bothered her or sought an autograph, assuming she wanted to be able to enjoy the excursion like everyone else. She never even knew there were four newspaper editors on board.

So what does all this have to do with Alabama and specifically Shelby County? The Port of Mobile could learn much from the Port of Singapore, thereby improving the economy of the entire state. Shelby County could take a page from Singapore's book on attracting industry. This part of Asia is running circles around us and many other parts of the U.S.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Everyone has probably had the experience of getting the wrong order at a restaurant.

But there's one particular eating place that makes a habit of surprising me and my family every time we go there.

Driving there recently to get a take out order, my daughter told me about the last time she and her husband were there.

Instead of getting the food they'd ordered, the bag they were given at the pick-up window contained nothing but drinks.

But this time there seemed to be no problems. Not until we got home, that is.

After my son-in-law dumped the sugar in what he believed to be his iced tea, he discovered that the cup contained coke.

Then fate struck again the other night. When everyone at the paper decided to get supper at this particular place, I tossed caution to the wind and went along with the crowd.

After all, I reasoned, they couldn't mess up my order if they didn't realize who it was for.

When the food was delivered, however, my order was missing.

I couldn't believe it. How did they know that was my order?

Since the food had been paid for, it seemed the easiest solution for getting something to eat before going to the meeting I was supposed to cover, was to make a trip to the restaurant.

Someone had called ahead, so my order was already in a paper sack when I arrived.

Deciding not to take any chances though, I checked the contents before leaving.

As I unwrapped the paper, I couldn't believe that what I had ordered could be that small.

It turned out that I was wrong though. Apparently they do make this particular item in very small sizes.

But I discovered the trimmings were missing from my dinky piece of food, so it had to go back for the additions.

After returning to the paper, I polished off my supper in two or three bites and was on my way out the door going to my meeting when I heard someone call my name.

My order had been found sitting inconspicuously beneath an order of french fries at the bottom of one of the sacks of food.

Because of its size, I could understand why it had been easy to overlook.

So the restaurant hadn't treated me as badly as I thought.

Of course the trimmings were missing from the original order too. But when you take into account our past experiences at this place, I guess I shouldn't complain.

Memorial day recalled

Each year, for more than 100 years, we have gathered on Memorial Day to pay tribute to those men and women who have fallen in battle, sacrificing their lives to preserve our freedom and world peace. In doing this, we are reminded that neither peace nor liberty is guaranteed, and that our national ideals remain threatened by global conflict, economic crises, violence, and aggression.

Throughout our history, America has been a symbol of hope for all people. We must always accept the many responsibilities that this requires. Thus, we are prepared to assist other nations in their struggle for economic progress; to help those in other lands who suffer from political repression and injustice; to deter aggression by strengthening democracy around the globe; and to work tirelessly toward a world without war.

Those who have sacrificed their lives for our country serve as a reminder that our work is unfinished. With vision and purpose and a prayer in our hearts, let us dedicate ourselves to their memory.

In recognition of those Americans to whom we pay tribute, the Congress, by joint resolution of May 11, 1950, has requested the President to issue a proclamation calling upon the people of the United States to observe each Memorial Day as a day of prayer for permanent peace and designating a period on that day when the people of the United States might unite in prayer.

Now, therefore, I, Ronald Reagan, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Memorial Day, Monday, May 30, 1983, as a day of prayer for permanent peace, and I designate the hour beginning in each locality at 11 o'clock in the morning of that day as a time to unite in prayer, I urge the press, radio, television, and all other information media to cooperate in this observance.

I also request the people of the United States to display the flag at half-staff from their homes for the customary period.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 4th day of April, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and eighty-three, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and seventh.

Sheriff's report

Thefts and burglaries were the most commonly reported crimes between May 11 to May 24 on the Shelby County Sheriff's Department blotter.

But the number of reports for the two crimes is down from last week with only three burglaries and three thefts reported.

Richard Neal Moore of Pelham was indicted by the grand jury, arrested, and charged with child abuse, according to records.

Edward Eugene Cross of Leeds was indicted by the grand jury, arrested May 18, and charged with attempted murder in connection with a shooting last fall.

Ralph Robinson of Vincent was arrested May 19 and charged with first degree theft in connection with a dispute over the ownership of cattle.

Burglaries included the Valleydale Pharmacy, a Montevallo residence, and a new house belonging to Gilbert Homes Company.

A 1971 Ford F-250 was stolen from a Wilsonville man and a stolen truck was recovered on Highway 280 after it reported missing in Tarrant.

Thefts included a stolen money box from the office at Shelby Elementary School, 45 cans of motor oil from McManus Shell and three tires and wheels from a truck in Montevallo.

Reported arrests:

Drugs: Carmen Brasher of Leeds and two juveniles.

Escape: James Edward Lee of Montevallo.

Burglary: Johnny Ray Johnson of Siluria.

Drunk Driving: Michael D. Brooks, address unknown.

Theft: Michael George Ledbetter of Auburn.

Probation violation: William Harold Gay of Pensacola and a juvenile.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

Apparently out of fear of voter retaliation in this fall's special legislative elections, Alabama legislators are reluctant to do anything about raising the legal drinking age from 19 back to 21.

Sen. Spencer Bachus of Birmingham, sponsor of the measure, has expressed the fear that his measure will be so loaded down with amendments that it will never pass. He said the big fight will come on whether the 19 and 20 year olds who now have the right to buy and consume alcoholic beverages should have that right stripped from them.

In fact, Sen. Chip Bailey of Dothan has offered a measure which would allow those young people to be exempt from the higher age requirements and would apply only to those who reached 19 after the law was changed.

Actually all of the debate may be moot. Sen. Earl Hilliard of Birmingham... who is dead set against raising the drinking age... said the measures will never reach the Senate for debate. He is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, where the bills have been assigned.

* * * *

Odds and Ends - The Wallace administration took a whipping in the House last week when the members of that body overwhelmingly rejected a bill raising the state franchise tax on Alabama corporations. The revenue this tax increase would produce is vital if the administration's General Fund budget is to be funded. The 60-to-35 vote against the bill suggests that business/industry leaders in Alabama have won a few converts in their fierce struggle with the organized labor/AEA coalition...

Mrs. Lisa Wallace, Alabama's first lady, wouldn't win any popularity contest among legislative wives. A coffee had been scheduled at the Mansion for the wives of the lawmakers, and most of them understood that the hostess would be Mrs. Wallace. She was no where to be seen. Reportedly she was vacationing at the summer mansion near Gulf Shores.

Hears problems

Montevallo hires prosecutor

Montevallo attorney Jim Standridge has been hired as prosecutor for the city.

The action was taken at Monday's Montevallo Council meeting after the Public Safety Committee recommended him for the position.

Before starting his practice in Montevallo nearly a year ago, the new prosecutor had been with the district attorney's office in Dallas County.

Standridge will begin his duties at the June 1 session of municipal court. His salary was set at $150 a month.

City Administrator Don Hughes noted that the employment of a prosecutor should make the municipal court system more effective.

Another piece of good news reported to the council was the decrease in the price of gas.

Councilwoman Catherine Smitherman said that the 37 cent decrease from Southern Natural will be reflected on July bills.

Although it is welcome, Hughes mentioned that the reduction will probably not be permanent.

A note of criticism for the city was sounded by Evansville resident Andy Coleman.

Appearing before the council for the second time, Coleman reported that the fines (small rocks) put in potholes by the city had been washed out by recent rains.

When he charged that the Evansville area was being neglected, Mayor Ralph Sears reminded Coleman that the city had built the road there at no cost to residents.

"We haven't done that anywhere else in the city," Sears declared.

Hughes explained that the road could not be resurfaced until the city could borrow the necessary equipment.

Estimating that the work can be done this summer, Hughes said the city will continue to fill the potholes until then.

Another sour note at the meeting was news concerning the University of Montevallo's wood chip burner.

It had been hoped that a housing around the equipment would cut down on noise from the boiler that disturbs nearby residents on Cardinal Crest Road.

Hughes reported however, that the housing will have to be redesigned since construction bids for it were in the $70,000 range.

Columbiana pulls plan from moth balls

With school ending this week, the city of Columbiana is bringing their street building plans out of moth balls.

Trustees and school officials at Elvin Hill began a push more than a year ago to have a new street built leading to the school.

But those plans were scrapped in favor of widening Washington Steet and building a sidewalk.

Although the council approved the project, it has never gotten off the drawing board.

Weather has been one of the hold ups. "Winter is no time to build roads," observed Mayor Buck Falkner.

Several proposals had been presented to the council by County Highway Director Gary Ray. But the plan he recommended was to widen the street from 18 feet to 22 feet and to build one six foot sidewalk.

His estimate of the cost was in the neighborhood of $40,000.

The city already has $10,000 set aside for the project which came from an appropriation obtained by Representative Sonny Moore.

The council agreed to have Ray present plans for final approval and then send out bids.

A turn-around for buses going into the school is to be built by the Shelby County Board of Education.

After mulling over the cost presented by an engineering firm to do the engineering for new sewer lines, the council decided to let the Street Department do the work.

It was agreed however, that Street Superintendent James Palmer could hire someone to assist him with laser beam reading.

The new pipe is to be laid from the lagoon to the Hwy. 25 bypass.

In other business, the council approved the sale of $1.5 million worth of industrial bonds for an expansion at the Elastic Plant.

Although the bond sale is handled through the city's Industrial Development Board, a new law makes council approval necessary.

Rabies could spread this summer

by Philip C. Hubbard, DVM
Rabies Inspector of Shelby County

Life Magazine calls the present rabies outbreak in the U.S. the "greatest threat of human infection in 30 years."

Presently a serious problem in the Georgia-Florida area, Texas, Michigan and Washington DC, the problem is expected to spread this summer.

Prospectively, it appears that rabies in Alabama wildlife will continue to be a public health problem of major concern during 1983 and beyond. Skunk and raccoon populations remain high and spill-over of rabies into other species is inevitable.

Increasing numbers of human exposures are quite likely.

Members of the medical community -- doctors, veterinarians, researchers -- have an obligation to do everything possible to prevent human death due to rabies. With the threat of a possible nation-wide rabies outbreak, this obligation becomes an absolute necessity.

So, what are we doing to protect you, your family, and your pets from this menace?

Veterinarians continue to push for pet vaccinations. This is our first line of defense.

Unfortunately, we don't seem to reach or convince a lot of people to vaccinate their pets. We will increase our efforts this year to promote public awareness about rabies, and to provide more opportunities for low-cost rabies shots at vaccination clinics throughout the county.

Dates for "make-up" clinics will be announced later. We will continue to work with the health department in handling bites and other exposures, and to confine or submit for testing all suspect animals as necessary.

Your family physician or the emergency room doctor should be your first and best source of advice if you are exposed to a rabid animal. He will tell you that post-exposure treatment no longer means up to 23 painful shots in the abdomen, but rather one shot of rabies immune globulin plus 5 shots of a new, improved human rabies vaccine -- all given in an arm or hip muscle.

He will also tell you that if you occupationally deal with animals and may be subjected to rabies exposure, you should be innoculated against the disease. This requires only 3 initial shots given at weekly intervals, and a booster shot every 2 years.

Research has produced better vaccines for pet animals and humans. But a suitable vaccine for wild animals has yet to be developed.

Scientists are, however, working on an oral vaccine for raccoons, to be hidden in food scattered in the wild. Scientists are also investigating the use of crows to determine the incidence of rabies in wild animals in a given area.

Recently, congress was urged by the American Public Health Association to appropriate funding for a 10-year anti-rabies campaign -- but such a program has not yet been approved at this time.

Unfortunately, despite all our efforts, there is no way to halt the epidemic, short of a nation-wide drive to vaccinate all pets and their owners.

Once again, a rabies vaccination for your dog or cat costs very little. If you have missed our clinics this month, please take your pets to a veterinarian near you and have them vaccinated.

You may be glad you did.

TES Field Day

Thompson Elementary students dash off the line in a foot race during recent Track and Field Day activities. Among the other exciting events of the day were the crowning of Andra Simmons and Scott Bailey, voted by the student body as Queen and King.

Shelby County agent selected for national service award

Grant Gober is receiving a national award for his work with the Shelby County Extension Service.

Gober, Shelby County Agent-Coordinator, was nominated by the Alabama Association of County Agricultural Agents to receive the National Distinguished Service Award.

Selection was based on his 22 years of exceptional service with Extension, said Jerry Parker, president of the agent's organization.

The award will be presented this fall by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents in Wichita, Kansas, at the group's annual meeting.

Gober is one of three Alabama Cooperative Extension Service agents selected for the award, considered among the highest honors available to county agents. Others are Jerry Hanks of Dadeville, and J. Cash Howell of Clanton.

Gober was cited for outstanding educational programs in agriculture and community resource development. He has done work with farmers to diversify their production, and developed marketing practices to improve profits.

Since Gober became coordinator in Shelby County, he has worked to establish a Beef Cattle Improvement program.

Gober joined the extension in 1960 in Lamar County. He also served in Hale and Sumter counties before coming to Shelby in 1977.

A native of Nauvoo, Gober holds a BS degree in agricultural education and an MS degree in agricultural science, both from Auburn University.

Gober lives in Columbiana with his wife Melita and their two children, Lee, age 21; and Spain, age 18.

Wildcats taste victory, win baseball title

by Fred Guarino

Last year the Shelby County Wildcats suffered a snake bite in the jungle of county baseball tournament competition.

This year, the snake bit the favored Thompson Warriors and the Wildcats escaped with the county baseball title unscathed.

Bill Reid's Wildcats marched bravely into the thick of battle last season, favored with an impressive 18-4 record.

That record netted them nothing as they lost out on the county title.

This season, Thompson's Warriors marched into battle with an impressive record and lost out on the county title as well.

While the 1983 county champion Wildcats finished the year with a record of 10-7, the Warriors ended an 18-6 season in the county semi-finals.

The Wildcats took a direct route to the county baseball throne and stole the sceptre from Vincent in a 5-4 contest.

The tournament began with Thompson defeating Pelham 6-4 behind the pitching of ace Ronnie Rasp.

The Vincent Yellow Jackets advanced in play by defeating the Chelsea Hornets 8-3 with Blaine Shaw on the mound.

Shelby County advanced by beating Calera 10-6 with the pitching of Kenneth Jones.

The Wildcats continued to advance on the heels of a tight 6-5 contest with Briarwood, with Cecil Wood hurling the winning horsehide.

The Yellow Jackets jumped on the strong Warriors and stung them to death for a 6-4 semi-final upset win. Blaine Shaw was the winner on the mound.

Those contests set up the final match between Shelby County and Vincent for the title.

Vincent was still emotional about its upset victory over Thompson when the championship contest began.

Shelby County coolly took a three run lead and the Yellow Jackets had to put Shaw back on the mound again.

The effort didn't work for Vincent as Shelby County rolled on to victory 5-4 behind the throwing of Ronald Benton.

Vincent Coach Kenny Wright called his second place finish better than not being in the hunt at all.

But according to Wright, his team was so overwhelmed by its win over Thompson that it took them three innings to wake up in the final match.

He said, "We had no pitching left and brought Shaw back in. If Shaw had been fresh we could have been in it.

"But SCHS did a good job and they deserved to win."

Shelby County's Reid was no braggart about his team's win.

"We were just lucky. We played as well as we could play, made some good catches and had breaks that went our way.

"It was a surprise with the ball club we had... an icing on the cake. Monday, we just reached a peak."

Winning effort

Ronald Benton of Shelby County High School scores a run on the way to a Wildcat county baseball championship title. Shelby County defeated Vincent 5-4, Monday night to claim county honors.

Will soccer return to Pelham?

Does soccer have a future at Pelham High School?

At this writing, the answer to that question is not clear. But if the success of Pelham's first soccer team -- under volunteer coach Jim Samudio -- is any sort of indicator, good things should lie ahead.

This year Pelham fielded a soccer team through the formation of a club and without "official" school sanction.

That team, which included only one senior starter among its 26 players, won 11 of 14 regular season games, tied two contests, and lost only one.

The soccer club also participated in the Vestavia High School Invitational tournament and lost by only one goal in the quarter finals to Huffman, which went on to win the 12-team event. Three Pelham players were named MVP's in that tournament.

But the direction Pelham High School soccer takes next year will depend upon whether the Alabama High School Athletic Asosocaition sanctions the sport. It currently does not, though requests have been made.

According to coach Billy Tohill, if the AHSAA sanctions soccer, Pelham will include it in its official sports program.

The coaching of the sport would then be carried out by the school's athletic department.

Pelham will not officially participate without state sanction.

According to Samudio, if the sport is not sanctioned, finances will bear heavily on attempts to continue the sport under the auspices of a club.

The coach, who studied soccer under state licensed coach Ray Woodard, and who served as an assistant coach at Birmingham-Southern under John DeGaris, said, "The kids must pay their own way."

Samudio stated that last year the players bought their own uniforms, paid for use of the high school football field and donated money to PHS for the purchase of a paint machine to mark off the playing field.

However, he was quick to say, "We would make sure that kids would play if they wanted to."

Samudio pointed out that Birmingham City Schools are offering letters in soccer already, that UAB and Birmingham-Southern offer scholarships for soccer players, and that Riverchase Middle School has a school sponsored team.

He stressed that Pelham will have kids coming from Riverchase who will want to play the game.

Samudio's son played for Pelham this year, but the coach said he did not take on the job at Pelham for that reason.

He commented, "I wrote Dr. Edward Belue, PHS principal, last year before my son started playing, and it took a full year to get the first season underway."

But once the team cranked up, talent was quick to surface. Thirty-eight students tried out for the team, and 26 made it.

Samudio said a national soccer coach observed Pelham in action against Homewood and rated Panthers Hal Youngblood, Garrick Stone and Shawn Casey as the best soccer fullbacks he had seen in the entire state.

If the team plays again next year, Youngblood, Stone and Casey are all expected to return. Casey was a junior captain and voted an MVP in the Vestavia tourney; Youngblood played as a sophomore. Stone as a freshman.

Other strong talent that emerged to help the Pelham Soccer Club start off with a winning season this year were:

Greg Hoffman, a senior captain who was voted an MVP in the Vestavia tournament; Billy Curtis, senior; Frank Cicio, Tim Chapman, both juniors;

Gary Howard, a junior who was voted an MVP in the Vestavia tournament, also led the team in scoring with a dozen goals; Pat Nola, junior; Chris Cull, senior; sophomore; Randy King, a sophomore goalie who gave up only six goals during the regular season;

Sophomores: Keith Smith, Paul Sumners, Vick Vetrano, Mitch Mace, a captain; Doug Petty;

And freshmen: Dough Petty, Todd Tropeano, David Beaurgard, Samudio, Jeff Smith, David Derbyshire, and Tom Wolsoncroft.

Hall of fame coming

When the chips are down:

•Someone slaps a base hit to score the needed run...

•Someone makes the key block, key tackle, winning touchdown...

•Someone gets that last second bucket...

•Someone turns on that extra spurt of speed to pass an opponent just before the finish line...

It takes an outstanding athlete to do these things.

And, no matter where a high school finishes in sports -- first or last -- every school has at least one athlete who stands out.

This year, we want to honor the top senior athlete who proved most outstanding according to his or her fellow classmates.

We're calling it the first annual Shelby County Reporter Sports Hall of Fame.

To pick our honorary inductees into the Hall of Fame, we asked the students at each school to vote on the senior which they think has best represented them and their school in sports events. Once we get everything tallied up, we'll run interviews and pictures of the winners.

It's something new. We're sure our student-readers and sports fans alike will like it.

Look for it in the Reporter... coming soon.

County honors athletes

Top Shelby County athletes and coaches met at Chelsea School Saturday night for a meeting that's rare in Alabama... an all county sports banquet.

Ricky Seale, outgoing president of the Shelby County Coaches' Association, told the crowd that this county is one of the very few which holds a countywide sports award banquet.

Both Seale and former Thompson football coach Larry Simmons appealed for continued support of the association and its banquet.

Simmons took support of the event a step further by showing his disappointment over the fact that not all honored students attended.

In addition to the all county football and basketball teams, which have been previously announced in the Reporter, the following athletes were officially recognized.

Boys Cross Country

Kevin Colley, Montevallo; Lester Gaitors, Thompson; Phillip Bruno and Earl Lawson, Vincent.

Girls Cross Country

Jennifer Wilder, Montevallo; Tracy Norwood, Carol Abernathy and Melissa Davis, all of Vincent.

Girls Volleyball All County

Tracy Dorough, Chelsea; Dee McCall and Wendy Adams, Pelham; Tabatha McCary of Montevallo;

Cynthia Cunningham, Angie Harris, Becky Ward and Ashley Sargent of Thompson; Luretta Perkins, Sharon Peterson, Teresa Peterson and Wanda McCrimon of Vincent.

Girls Basketball All County

Janine Stover and Sheila Howard of Briarwood; Sandy Brasher of Chelsea; Denise Heislen and Charlotte Olds of Pelham; Tootie Scoggins, Monica Swaggart and Angie Harris of Thompson; Sharon Peterson and Shirley Russell of Vincent.

Boys Track All County

Peter Clemons and Scott Engel of Briarwood; Lester Gaiters, Don McKnight and Zae Merchant of Thompson; and Philip Bruno of Vincent.

Girls Track All County

Mitzi Harper and Candi Engle of Briarwood; Veronica McKnight and Tammy Griffin of Thompson; Teresa Peterson, Wanda McCrimon and Sabrena Kidd of Vincent.

Baseball All County

Ricky Dailey of Montevallo; Steve Holler of Pelham; Ronald Benton and Kevin Crumpton of Shelby County; Buddy Cofer, Richard Brasher and Ronnie Rasp of Thompson; Mark Kelow and Blaine Shaw of Vincent.

Athletes were not the only ones to receive recognition.

Vincent coaches Harold Garrett (football) and Richard Crumpton (basketball) received late awards for being coaches of the year last season.

Thompson High School reaped a mansized share of coaching honors with Larry Simmons being named 1983 football coach of the year, Lynn Rushing being named volleyball coach of the year, Thomas Johnson being named basketball coach of the year and Billy Woodham being named baseball coach of the year.

Bill Campbell of Briarwood was named coach of the year for girls basketball and Bobby Scott of Briarwood was named coach of the year for boys track.

Jim and Debbie Barnes were named co-coaches of the year for girls track at Vincent;

Pelham recognizes top cagers

Dave Toner is Pelham High School's Most Valuable basketball player.

The senior who helped lead his Panther teammates to an 18-11 season, won the honor Thursday night at the PHS Basketball Honors Banquet.

The nod to make Toner the school's most honored cager came as little wonder...

He was named co-captain of the squad, as well as best defensive player, earned a senior letter in the sport and has signed a scholarship to play for Jeff State.

Other seniors receiving awards and letters were: Bob Patrick, who was also named co-team captain; Geoff Kennum, named Mr. Hustle; and, Devin Tubert, named best offensive player and who has signed a scholarship to play for Vol State.

Also receiving a senior letter was Ken Hansen.

Junior earning letters were Eddie Reeves, Kyle Hutchison and Bryan Hughes.

The most improved junior high player was Riley Powell and the most improved B team player was Doug Patton.

A poster could prove worthwhile

A Shelby County created poster could be worth a $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond.

That is, if the poster by a 5-12 grade student proves to be the grand prize winner in the 1983 National Hunting and Fishing Day Poster Contest.

Fifty other students will receive prizes ranging from $50 to $500 savings bonds.

The bonds will be awarded to the students who best illustrate the theme "Sportsmen and Conservation".

To be eligible for a national award, posters must have been chosen as winners in a locally sponsored National Hunting and Fishing Day Poster Contest.

The contest may be sponsored by schools, sportsmen's clubs, conservaton or civic groups and newspapers. Local prizes may be awarded by sponsoring organizations.

Contests should be held and entries displayed and judged on September 25.

Winning posters would be sent to NHF Day Headquarters for national judging by November 1.

For information on how to sponsor or participate in a local NHF Day contest, write NHF Day Poster Contest, P.O. Box 1075, Riverside, CT 06878.

Safety saves lives on Lay Lake

Two Birmingham men owe their lives to the vest-type life preservers they were wearing at Lay Lake.

The fishermen were about a quarter-mile below where Waxahatchie Creek empties into the lake when their boat sank.

When the transom broke loose from the boat, both non swimmers were kept afloat by their life preservers.

Marine police officer Raymond Webster reported that wood in the stern of the vessel had rotted, and the weight of the motor actually pulled the transom loose from the boat.

"This is a good example of life preservers preventing two fatalities because both men could not swim," Webster said.

The marine police division has recorded 13 boating fatalities since January 1.

Orioles win first half

Wayne Bunn's Orioles took the first half season championship in Alabaster Major League action, recently.

The Orioles defeated the Royals 19-7 for a 6-2 season record and to squeeze the Reds out of first place.

Alan Barefoot pitched the winning game.

See Oak Mt. by night

Oak Mountain State Park is a beautiful place by day for hiking, swimming, golf and fishing.

But what about a night when the stars are bright overhead and the moon is shinning.

If you would like the opportunity to see the park by night, the Vulcan Trail Association has an offer you can't refuse.

Friday, June 24, the organization will sponsor a night hike from 7:30 p.m. until.

All you will need is a flashlight and some goodies to snack upon as you walk the park's trails.

Last year the association sponsored a night hike near Green Springs which drew 40 participants.

To participate at Oak Mountain, all you have to do is call 942-6730 or 669-4717 to notify the club of your intentions to join them on the hike.

UM to host tournament

The first Alabama Junior College Conference All-Star baseball game will be held June 1 at the University of Montevallo.

The first annual event will begin at 7 p.m. at Kermit A. Johnson field.

The head coach for the north all-stars will be B.R. Johnson of Chattahoochee Valley with Don Green of Jefferson Sate and Bob Browning of Gadsden State serving as assistants.

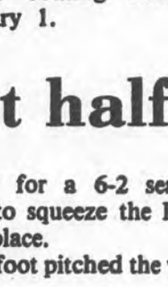

The south all-stars will be directed by Sammy Frichter of Wallace of Dothan assisted by Ronnie Powell of Enterprise, Julius Wison of Faulkner State and Lothian Smallwood of Wallace of Selma.

Scholarship signed

Andre White, a 6'1" guard from Mobile has signed a basketball scholarship with the University of Montevallo.

White averaged 18 points, five steals, nine rebounds and three blocked shots per game for McGill-Toolen High.

Special congratulations to all ye graduating seniors.

Yes, you finally made it... after all those years of sticking your nose in the books, and sticking your tongues out at teachers, you have achieved the honor of receiving your high school diploma.

Believe it or not, I received one of those things 5 years ago. I still flash it around every chance I get.

Have a good time in Florida, or Georgia, or Mobile, or wherever the wind takes you on vacation. And remember to drive carefully.

DID YOU KNOW?

It takes a smaller portion of your Social Security check to buy 750 kilowatt-hours today than it did in 1965.

In 1965 it took 16.5% of the average monthly benefit check in Alabama to buy 750 kilowatt-hours of electricity. In 1982 it only took 13.3% to buy the same amount. But it's still mighty hard to live on a fixed income. Our free Centsable Budgeting plan can help you keep your monthly electric bills from sharply going up and down. It's a good way to budget for electricity usage. Call us today for more information about Centsable Budgeting.

"Our low prices and personal service make us more than just another drug store."

We work hard at keeping prices down for you. In fact, our average prescription price is substantially lower than you'll find anywhere else around. That's true whether you compare our prices with discount store prices or with special senior citizen discount prices.

And our computer remembers every prescription we fill. That's a big help when you need facts for tax and insurance records.

We try to keep up with your needs. Since 1965, we've been renting and selling home health care supplies like hospital beds, wheelchairs, canes and walkers.

No wonder people say we're more than just another drug store.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Confession?

Matt. 10:32-33 "Everyone therefore who shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my Father who is in heaven. But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father who is in heaven."

Rom. 10:9-10 "because if thou shalt confess with thy mouth Jesus as Lord, and shalt believe in thy heart that God raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved: for with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation."

Acts 8:36-37 "... Behold here is water; what doth hinder me to be immersed? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thy heart thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God."

Conclusion: Jesus teaches, that confession is a must, that it is with the mouth, example: "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God", and that confession is unto Salvation.

Yes, you finally made it... after all those years of sticking your nose in the books, and sticking your tongues out at teachers, you have achieved the honor of receiving your high school diploma.

Believe it or not, I received one of those things 5 years ago. I still flash it around every chance I get.

Have a good time in Florida, or Georgia, or Mobile, or wherever the wind takes you on vacation. And remember to drive carefully.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Confession?

Matt. 10:32-33 "Everyone therefore who shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my Father who is in heaven. But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father who is in heaven."

Rom. 10:9-10 "because if thou shalt confess with thy mouth Jesus as Lord, and shalt believe in thy heart that God raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved: for with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation."

Acts 8:36-37 "... Behold here is water; what doth hinder me to be immersed? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thy heart thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God."

Conclusion: Jesus teaches, that confession is a must, that it is with the mouth, example: "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God", and that confession is unto Salvation.

DID YOU KNOW?

It takes a smaller portion of your Social Security check to buy 750 kilowatt-hours today than it did in 1965.

In 1965 it took 16.5% of the average monthly benefit check in Alabama to buy 750 kilowatt-hours of electricity. In 1982 it only took 13.3% to buy the same amount. But it's still mighty hard to live on a fixed income. Our free Centsable Budgeting plan can help you keep your monthly electric bills from sharply going up and down. It's a good way to budget for electricity usage. Call us today for more information about Centsable Budgeting.

"Our low prices and personal service make us more than just another drug store."

We work hard at keeping prices down for you. In fact, our average prescription price is substantially lower than you'll find anywhere else around. That's true whether you compare our prices with discount store prices or with special senior citizen discount prices.

And our computer remembers every prescription we fill. That's a big help when you need facts for tax and insurance records.

We try to keep up with your needs. Since 1965, we've been renting and selling home health care supplies like hospital beds, wheelchairs, canes and walkers.

No wonder people say we're more than just another drug store.

Notice is hereby given that a bill substantially as follows will be introduced in the Legislature of Alabama and application for its passage and enactment will be made, to-wit:

A BILL
TO BE ENTITLED
AN ACT

Relating to Shelby County; to create a license-issuing division within the probate judge's office for the issuance of certain licenses; to provide for the selection of personnel for such license-issuing division; to provide certain duties for the division; to provide for an optional procedure for the renewal of motor vehicle licenses in the county by mail; to authorize certain additional fees and cost pursuant to such system of renewal of motor vehicle licenses by mail; such fees shall be set by the county commission from time to time to pay the cost of mailing tags or decals; to prescribe more convenient and efficient procedures for assessing and collecting of certain taxes; the issuance of licenses by the probate judge's office; to transfer certain duties now performed by the tax assessor and tax collector; to provide that the probate judge shall be a member of the Association of Tax Assessors and Tax Collectors; and to provide further for the expense allowance of the probate judge.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA

Section 1. In Shelby County, there is hereby created within the probate judge's office a license division which shall issue all licenses issued through the probate judge's office, except marriage licenses. The county commission shall furnish suitable quarters and provide the necessary forms, books, stationery, records, equipment and supplies, except such stationery forms and supplies as are furnished pursuant to law by the state department of finance or the state comptroller. The county commission shall also provide such clerks, and other assistants for said probate judge as shall be necessary from time to time for the proper and efficient performance of the duties of his office. The probate judge shall have authority to employ such clerks, and other assistants, and to fix their compensation; however, the number and compensation of such clerks and other assistants shall be subject to the approval of the county commission. The compensation of the clerks and assistants shall be paid monthly out of the general fund of the county in the same manner as other county employees are paid.

Section 2. The probate judge shall perform all duties relating to the assessment and collection of taxes on motor vehicles in the county, which have heretofore been performed by the tax assessor and tax collector. The tax assessor and the tax collector of Shelby County are hereby relieved of all duties and responsibilities relative to the assessment and collection of taxes on such motor vehicles. The probate judge shall receive the commissions and fees now allowed the assessor and collector for performing these functions, and such fees and commissions shall be remitted to the county general fund. Reporting and remitting of such tax shall be made at the same time as other reports and remittances are now made by the probate judge.

Section 3. The probate judge shall keep at all times an accurate record of all licenses received by him from the state comptroller and of the disposition made of them, of all monies received, and of the licenses issued by him. He shall report to the state comptroller at the same time and in the same manner that the judges of probate are required to do under the general law. All unissued licenses and the stubs or duplicates or carbon copies of licenses issued shall be accounted for in the same manner that judges or probate are required to account for by law.

Section 4. Except as hereinafter provided, the probate judge shall be entitled to charge and collect the same fees that are provided for by law. For the performance of duties relative to the recording of the transfer of the ownership of motor vehicles as prescribed in the Code of Alabama 1975, said probate judge shall charge and collect a fee of $1.00. All such fees shall be the property of the county and shall be paid to the general fund of the county. Refunds for licenses issued by mistake or fact of law shall be made under the conditions and in the manner prescribed by the Code of Alabama 1975.

Section 5. To prevent motor vehicles from escaping taxation and to provide for a more efficient procedure for assessment and collection of taxes due on same, no licenses shall be issued to operate motor vehicles on the public highways of this state, nor shall any transfer be made by the probate judge until the ad valorem tax on such vehicles shall have been paid to the county for the preceding year as evidenced by receipt from the said judge. Every person, firm or corporation driving or owning a motor vehicle who desires to operate a motor vehicle on the public highways of Alabama shall first return such motor vehicle for ad valorem taxation purposes to said probate judge who shall issue a certificate of assessment on a form prescribed by the state department of revenue, shall collect the taxes shown thereon, and shall make a duplicate of the tax receipt and keep same on file in his office. The license tag shall be evidence of the payment of the license and ad valorem tax due as provided under this Act.

Section 6. Before any vehicle can be assessed, the probate judge shall be furnished the tag number presently on the vehicle unless such vehicle is new, in which case said probate judge shall be furnished a bona fide bill of sale from the dealer showing when the vehicle was bought new. In the case of a used car brought into the state from a state which provides that upon sale or transfer of the motor vehicle the tags are either surrendered to an appropriate authority or subsequently reissued by the seller, said probate judge shall be furnished a bona fide certificate of title properly assigned which shows when the car was sold to an individual, firm, corporation or association, living or operating in this state. If such tag number or bill of sale or certificate of title is not furnished, the vehicle will be presumed to have been in the state the entire year for which taxes are being assessed. Those motor vehicles brought into the state during any tax year and new motor vehicles for which licenses have never been issued that have been sold from the stock of a dealer during any tax year, shall be subject to taxation as if they had been held or owned in the state on the first day of October.

Section 7. The probate judge may, at his discretion, mail an application for renewal of licenses to whom such license has been previously issued, such renewal forms required to be returned prior to the expiration date of the license. Such renewal forms may be in post card form with sufficient information threon to adequately identify and process such renewal. The signature of the licensee thereon and proper remittance shall constitute sufficient authority for the probate judge to issue such license and return to the licensee by mail. There is hereby established a fee to be entitled "Mail Order Fee" which shall be set from time to time by the county governing body to pay the cost of mailing procedure herein provided, and such fee shall be collected by the probate judge at the time of issuance and paid over to the general fund of the county as are other fees and commissions.

Section 8. The probate judge shall be a member of the Association of Tax Assessors and Tax Collectors. Any fees or dues for membership in the association shall be paid for by the county commission.

Section 9. The probate judge is hereby entitled to receive an additional expense allowance in the amount of five hundred dollars ($500.00) per month. Said expense allowance shall be in addition to any and all other compensation and expenses heretofore provided by law and shall be payable out of the county general fund in the same manner as other expense allowances are paid.

Section 10. All laws or parts of laws which conflict with this Act are hereby repealed.

Section 11. This Act shall become effective immediately, upon its passage and approval by the Governor, or upon its otherwise becoming a law.

Davis, and their heirs or devisees, if deceased, and all parties who, unknown to Plaintiffs claim an interest in or to the above described property.

Take notice that Ella Mae Tilley a/k/a Ella Mae Davis and Robert L. Riggins have this day filed their verified complaint in said Court against the above named Defendants and against any and all persons claiming any title to, interest in, encumbrance upon the above described real estate or any part thereof or interest therein, and against all other persons, and against said lands for the purpose of establishing the title of said lands in the said Ella Mae Tilley a/k/a Ella Mae Davis and Robert L Riggins and to clear up all doubts and disputes concerning the same and that said suit is not pending in said Court.

Plaintiffs allege in said complaint that the title to said lands stands in the name of the Plaintiffs on the records in the Office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County, Alabama, and said complaint further alleges that Plaintiffs claim title to said lands through and by virtue of a deed recorded in Deed Book 156, at Page 497 from Lillie Belle Hardy, a divorced single woman dated November 22, 1952, to Andrew D. Speech therapist

Montevallo speech therapist Shirley Harrington moved out of her "closet" this year and into a room in the new wing built at Montevallo Elementary School. Here she works with Jimmy Grayson, Joy Lucas, Jeff Lutz and Jeff Vernon.

Students lead courthouse drive

Shelby County school students are the first contributors to a $50,000 fund raising drive to restore the 1854 courthouse in Columbiana.

With six schools giving more than 100%, Columbiana Middle led the way with a $200 contribution.

In all, twenty one public schools and three private schools are taking part in the effort which will enable the Shelby County Historical Society to complete repairs on the historic building.

Jessie Butler Jones, who is serving as fund drive chairman, reported that the goal for students is $1,000.

In order to match federal funding in the amount of $50,000, Jones said that money will also be solicited from municipal and county government, service clubs, professional personnel, voters, business, and industry.

The courthouse will be used as a museum, for archives, as a place to preserve historical records, as an art gallery, and as a public meeting place.

Results of the schools fund raising drive is as follows: Columbiana Middle, 482%, $200; Elvin Hill, 250%, $100; Shelby County High, 222%, $100; Wilsonville Elementary, 222%, $40; Shelby Elementary, 159%, $25; Vincent Elementary, 108%, $47.40; Helena Elementary, 71%, $26.48.

Vincent Middle, 64%, $18.50; Chelsea, 57%, $92; Montevallo Middle, .51%, $17.87; Montevallo Elementary, 48%, $30.80; Calera High, 35%, $16; Vincent High, 35%, $10; Calera Elementary, 27%, $9.85; Montevallo High, 26%, $10.; Thompson Middle, 13%, $10.30; Thompson High, 10%, $8.02; Thompson Elementary, 8%, $10.

Drives are in progress at Pelham High, Riverchase Middle, Valley Elementary and Briarwood Christian High.

Coosa Valley Academy and Shelby Academy will hold their drives in September.

Fund raisers

Vincent Elementary students Kerrie Carver, Sarah Swain and Ted Spencer contribute their dimes to the fund raising drive for restoration of the old county courthouse.

Therapists focus on language

by Bert Seaman

When a student tells the teacher about seeing a "punny pat pog," it's time to consult the school's speech therapist.

The substitution of letters, in this case a 'p' for an 'f,' is the signal that the student has an articulation disorder.

During the past school year, 450 students in the Shelby County School system spent part of the school day with a speech-language pathologist at their school.

Their problems range from voice disorders -- which might relate to pitch or quality -- to stuttering or having problems with language.

According to Shirley Harrington, speech therapist for the three Montevallo schools, the program is now focusing more on language disorders.

The reason, she explained, is because so many students are having problems with vocabulary and in many cases are unable to give appropriate answers to questions.

Although youngsters entering school have been screened for both speech and hearing, Harrington reported that only hearing will be tested in the future.

She said that the stimulation of kindergarten often helps youngsters overcome problems they might have with language.

"If the kindergarten teacher really feels that a child needs help," Harrington added, "we'll pick them up right away."

When the speech pathologist discovers that a student hasn't been screened for speech and hearing, she does the testing so the information can go in their cumulative file.

An interesting result of the speech and hearing tests given to 6th graders, Harrington reported, was finding a significant number of Vincent students with hearing impairment.

The tests were given this year, she explained, to identify older children with speech and hearing problems.

She said the hearing tests would be repeated next year for 6th grade students.

There are only two locations in the county with programs for the hearing impaired. They are at Riverchase and the University of Montevallo.

Since May was designated as Speech and Hearing month, schools focused on that theme with bulletin board displays and posters in hallways and classrooms.

The untenured teachers whose contracts were not renewed were: Jane Darden, Montevallo Middle School; Regina Newton, Calera Elementary School; Barry McGee, Pelham High School; Rhett Vick, Shelby County High School; Michele Fina, Calera Elementary and High School.

'Learn to learn' UM graduates told

It is important that you learn how to learn.

That was the crux of the message delivered to 250 University of Montevallo graduates by commencement speaker Dr. Mark Curtis.

Forty-two Shelby County students were among the graduates receiving bachelor and master degrees during the traditional outdoor ceremony on Flower Hill Saturday, May 7.

Two local students were among the elite group recognized by their deans for achieving the highest grade point averages in their respective schools. They were Joan Garrett of Columbiana, and Janet Lynn Lucas of Calera.

During the ceremonies, Curtis, who is president of the Washington DC-based Association of American Colleges, lauded UM for its adoption of a new core curriculum that emphasizes lifelong skills rather than training for specific vocations.

The person who has learned how to learn, can pick up the skills needed for doing new jobs, Curtis said. All too often, colleges today churn out graduates for jobs that may deadend in 10 years, he said.

The national Algernon Sidney Sullivan awards went to Pam Wilkerson of Stevenson, and Bill Murphey of Decatur, Georgia. James R. Rogers, Sovereign Grand Inspector General in Alabama of the Scottish Rite, received the President's Award for Exemplary Citizenship.

Shelby County graduates included:

Alabaster: Deborah Allen, BBA; Joey Wayne Martin, BBA.

North Shelby: Keil Etherington, BBA; Stephen Huggins, BBA; Jennifer Snell, BBA.

Calera: Stephanie Cowart, BBA; Mary Douglas, BS; Janet Lucas, BBA.

Columbiana: Richard Crosby, BS; Joan Garrett, AB; Anna Murphree, BS; Kenneth Spearman, BS.

Harpersville: Regina Alexander, AB.

'Learn to learn' UM graduates told

It is important that you learn how to learn.

That was the crux of the message delivered to 250 University of Montevallo graduates by commencement speaker Dr. Mark Curtis.

Forty-two Shelby County students were among the graduates receiving bachelor and master degrees during the traditional outdoor ceremony on Flower Hill Saturday, May 7.

Two local students were among the elite group recognized by their deans for achieving the highest grade point averages in their respective schools. They were Joan Garrett of Columbiana, and Janet Lynn Lucas of Calera.

During the ceremonies, Curtis, who is president of the Washington DC-based Association of American Colleges, lauded UM for its adoption of a new core curriculum that emphasizes lifelong skills rather than training for specific vocations.

The person who has learned how to learn, can pick up the skills needed for doing new jobs, Curtis said. All too often, colleges today churn out graduates for jobs that may deadend in 10 years, he said.

The national Algernon Sidney Sullivan awards went to Pam Wilkerson of Stevenson, and Bill Murphey of Decatur, Georgia. James R. Rogers, Sovereign Grand Inspector General in Alabama of the Scottish Rite, received the President's Award for Exemplary Citizenship.

Shelby County graduates included:

Alabaster: Deborah Allen, BBA; Joey Wayne Martin, BBA.

North Shelby: Keil Etherington, BBA; Stephen Huggins, BBA; Jennifer Snell, BBA.

Calera: Stephanie Cowart, BBA; Mary Douglas, BS; Janet Lucas, BBA.

Columbiana: Richard Crosby, BS; Joan Garrett, AB; Anna Murphree, BS; Kenneth Spearman, BS.

Harpersville: Regina Alexander, AB.

Helena: Ronny Cook, BBA; Mary Grimes, BS; Rebecca Harkins, BBA.

Montevallo: Johnathan Baker, BM; Rebecca Beaty, BS; William Buchanan, BFA; BSA; Duncan Draper, BBA; Kimberly Funderburg, MS; Nelson Garcia, BS; Carole Harrison, BBA; Michael Johnson, BBA; Debra McClendon, MED; Kevin McCoy, AB; Deryl Owens, BBA; Helen Perkins, MA; Howard Potts, AB; Theresa Pritchett, MED; Robin Alonso Rogers, BS; Gisela Scruggs, MED; Phyllis Shirley, BS; Judy Smith, MS; Kathy Sukut, BS.

Sterrett: Alfred Jones, BS.

Wilsonville: Rhonda Foster, BS; Felicia Wright, BBA.

Valley students bring DC memos back

Valley Elementary students brought back some surprises from their recent visit to Washington D.C..

The students brought a trio of flags for the Pelham police and firefighters, and the Inverness School. The flags previously flew over the Capitol Dome, and came complete with certificates to prove it, said Pelham Police investigator Sgt. Donnie Guyer.

Marcelle Phillips, office assistant at Valley Elementary School said the PTO had the idea and Senator Howell Heflin supplied the flags.

The police, firefighters and principal were honored in a ceremony last week at the school with songs, speeches and presentations.

Inverness principal Elizabeth Smith accepted the flag on behalf of the school and Fire Chief Bill Bryars accepted for the fire department. The police department also received a flag, plaque and certificates.

"They made us feel real good about it," Guyer said.

"Everybody in the police and fire department got an award. That was real thoughtful of those kids," Bryars said.

"The police and firemen have just been so helpful, they come everytime we need them," Phillips said.

A very large group of police and firefighters were on hand for the event.

Anchor club makes splash

Eighteen new members were recently initiated into Pelham High's Anchor Club. They were later "re-intiated" during a car wash held at Loehman's Village, where besides getting a bit wet with the other 13 members, they helped raise $100 to pay for Thursday's graduation reception. New members to the service club are: Staci Bearden, Leslie Coble, Missy Fishman, Kristie Hicks, Candice Holly, Susan Kane, Andre Lindenburg, Katie McAlevy, Mary Moody, Yonna Nobles, Jennifer Redding, Kristie Schaber, Kelly Smith, Kay Southerland, Windy Wallace, Sandy Weatherly, Ginger Wells, and Cheryl Wynne. Club sponsor is Susan Payne. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Dancer got start in dark at UM

by Sally Sears

The University of Montevallo brought a famous alumnus to the campus recently to receive an award for outstanding achievement in the performing arts.

Donlin Foreman, class of 1974, has now been honored at the White House and at the University of Montevallo, and on the whole, he said Montevallo is the higher honor.

That should please his former dance and theater teachers. They gathered with graduating seniors Saturday at the Alumni Association luncheon to listen to Foreman outline his path from Palmer Auditorium to national attention as a feathered dancer with the Martha Graham company. He has danced at Lincoln Center, the Metropolitan Opera, and on Public Television's dance series. This spring he even danced for the President at the White House.

He says his interest in dancing all began in the dark in Montevallo. As a freshman, he tried marine biology, flunked a pop test and was moved by the professor to consider other choices. He says he took to the sidewalks, walking around the campus and all over Montevallo late at night, looking and thinking.

What he found was his interest in the study of movement.

In the ten years since he took those walks, Foreman says he's learned to commit himself completely. He advises the graduating seniors to do the same.

As a dancer, he says he cannot take a place on a stage and not be committed to it. The point, he says, is to take the movement, take your life, and move it somewhere.

If you do anything, do it with complete commitment. If you don't, Foreman says, you'll never be able to make the tiny corrections necessary for a well-lived life.

UM President James Vickrey gave Foreman a plaque for outstanding achievement in the performing arts. He and his wife Jacqulyn Buglisi will both be dancing with the Martha Graham company in New York when the fall season begins.

Calera theatre takes auditions

The Calera Community Theatre is getting a foothold in the Shelby County drama world by selecting their first production and launching a poster contest for auditions.

Director Darrell Revel helped the group select a musical comedy to take advantage of the available musical talent.

"Anything Goes" -- with music and lyrics written by Cole Porter -- will be the first performance. Auditions are set for June 6 and 7 at 7 p.m. at the Calera Elementary School.

In the past, Revel has directed "Bye Bye Birdie" and "Our Town" at Jemison. He also wrote two scripts used by the Blue and Gold at the University of Montevallo. He most recently appeared in the UM production of "Camelot."

Revel was also busy as a member of the UM Pod Squad, appearing in "A Time to See!" in April. He also wrote and published a book, "Smaller than a Bread Box."

The director is a native of Hueytown and will receive his Bachelors Degree in Fine Arts from UM in August.

The Community Theatre recently sponsored a poster contest to publicize their auditions with $5 as the prize. The winners were Jamie Dunaway, third grade and Shawn Lemley, fifth grade.

Persons interested in trying out for a part in the production, should call 668-0304, 668-1950, 668-1995. Singers, dancers, actors, stage hands, lighting people and publicists are needed.

Officers for the group are: Gayle Farris, president; Peggy Dyer, vice president; Paula McLendon, secretary; and Charlotte Patrick, treasurer.

Use the buckle; save your child

One out of every 60 children born will become the fatal victim of an automobile accident. Over 90% of these deaths could be prevented, according to figures from Shelby Medical Center.

As a community service, SMC and the Shelby County Health Council initiated an Infant Restraint Program to help counter this statistic.

For a small deposit--refundable upon return of the seat--a family may use an infant restraint for six months, or until the baby weighs 20 lbs., according to Joan Woski of the Obstetrics Department. Over 150 seats are available to anyone who delivered a child at SMC within the past six months, Woski said.

Parents will be given step-by-step instructions for properly placing the infant in the seat and then properly placing the seat in the automobile.

For more information on the program call 663-8196 or 669-4551.

Pioneers thanked for help in county

The Pioneers Club of South Central Bell Telephone Company was recognized last week and presented with a plaque. Susan Treadwell, Director of the County Department of Pensions and Security (DPS) presented the award to the organization that has been helping needy Shelby County residents since 1974.

The Pioneers is a community service group that works with DPS to provide residents with items they need when "something isn't provided by the state," said Bill Lammert, a member of the County Council of The Bell Pioneers.

A special Pioneer interest is delighting children with gifts of Christmas presents, Easter baskets, and toys.

Ill county residents have also benefited from the Pioneers who spend $1500 a year above DPS budgets on such items as walkers, wheelchairs, pads, and bandages. One elderly man was able to have a telephone installed with the help of the Pioneers and others sponsored children at Partlow have received clothing and pajamas. However, the Pioneers have shown an interest in everyone in the county.

Selling cookbooks and phone company souvenirs and holding bazaars have helped pay for items given out by the Pioneers, said Lammert.

This dedicated group of volunteers has helped each time a county social worker has made a request for assistance and has and Bryce Hospitals. Club members never meet the people they sponsor in order to preserve the personal integrity of the needy.

All members of the Pioneers Club are Bell employees who have had 18 or more years with the company. This membership, consisting of 600 employees, is divided into councils, each serving specified areas. The Riverchase Council serves Shelby County, for example.

MHS students train at UM

Eight Montevallo High School students received computer training this spring, even though the school doesn't have a computer.

Thanks to an offer from the University of Montevallo -- conveniently located across the street -- the high school students were able to venture into the world of computer technology, despite the handicap.

"We really appreciated the college giving us the opportunity to use their computer," said principal Norman Payne.

The six weeks of special biweekly classes were taught by UM professor of education, Robert Lightfoot.

Participating in the classes were seniors Jim Davidson, Sally McMillan and Joy Williams; juniors Susan Hardin, Larry Readal and Erin Spicer and sophomores Bert Lott and Michael Martin.

Red Cross seeks holiday blood

Volunteer blood donors are needed for Memorial Day. Therefore, Shelby Medical Center is hosting a community blood drive Tuesday, May 31 that will be crucial in meeting Alabama's blood needs after the long Memorial Day weekend.

The drive will be held on the first floor of the Medical Center from 11 a.m. - 5 p.m. and it will be open to the public.

The American Red Cross is depending on the Medical Center's bi-annual blood drive to supply life saving blood to hospital patients throughout Alabma. Blood drives are not held on Memorial Day, but the need for blood does not take a holiday.

Red Cross representative Kathy Shackelford said that most healthy adults between the ages of 18 and 66 weighing 110 pounds can be blood donors. With parental permission, 17-year-olds can also donate.

The entire donation, including a medical screening, takes less than one hour.

UAB graduates local nurses

Three Shelby Countians were among the 68 men and women in the spring 1983 class at the University of Alabama School of Nursing at UAB honored at recent convocation cermeonies.

They are Sharon M. Kwater of Helena; and David H. Threet and Elizabeth York, both of Montevallo.

All three received a Bachelor of Science in nursing.

Parents honored

Montevallo's Parnell library opens; rain proves no obstacle to patrons

In spite of rain, 150 people signed in at the open house at Montevallo's Parnell Memorial Library last week.

Business was reportedly brisk the following day too, when the library offically opened.

Sunday's crowd wandered through the building admiring all the changes that had taken place, related library board member Dr. Lucille Griffith.

The new library was once a telephone company switching station.

There is a public reading room in the new facility in addition to an adult reading room, donated by the late Josephine Eddy and named in her honor.

The first phase of renovating the interior of the building has been completed. Now the library committee is trying to raise funds for work on the exterior.

Griffith reported that the amounts donated have ranged from $5 to $2,000. She noted, however, that most donations have been in the $100 range.

Materials and in-kind services have also been donated by the city and individuals, she said.

Refreshments for Sunday's open house were provided by the Centrala Garden Club.

ISS students win French nationals

A strong-hold for the French language exists in Shelby County.

Eight students from Indian Springs School who placed in a statewide French contest, all went on to place in a southeast regional meet.

And if that's not enough, six of the ISS French students claimed six of the top seven places in national competition.

In level 1-A competition, Jonathan Truelove finished 2nd nationally, 2nd regionally, and 1st in the state. Patricia Alarcon finished 4th nationally, 3rd in the region, and second in the state. Robert Weaver and Eric Clary tied for 7th place in the national standings, after advancing from the regional and statewide competition.

In level 1-B competiton, John Currington finished 7th nationally, 3rd in the region, and 1st in the state.

At level 3, Bill Oliver finished 5th in the nation, 2nd in the region, and 1st in the state.

Other regional and state winners were Joel Shin (6th and 1st, respectively), Stacy Donohue (7th and 2nd, respectively), and Jeremy Erdreich (7th and 6th, respectively).

French teachers at the north Shelby private school are Rick McConnell and Helen Payne.

Thompson Middle wins recognition

The eighth grade boys home economics class at Thompson Middle School has won first runner-up in a national "Share the Health" contest.

Class efforts were directed by Phyllis Horrell.

For entry, participants were required to design and implement a community-based project in nutrition education.

The contest was open to junior and senior high school home economics and health related classes throughout the United States.

The 16 boys chose 35 senior citizens of Alabaster as subjects for their class nutrition project.

Held in conjunction with the Shelby County Program on Aging, the 6-week program consisted of lectures by specialists in problems of aging, developing a nutrition bingo game for the Seniors, preparing a week of breakfasts and dinners at the Senior Citizen Center, and preparing and serving a meal to the Seniors at the school.

The winning class will be awarded a check for $300 in scholarship funds, and a pizza bash.

For her participation, Mrs. Horrell has been awarded an expense-paid dinner for two, at a restaurant of her choice.

The contest was sponsored by Fleischmann's in conjunction with Nabisco Brands, Inc., both of New York, NY.

A report on the project was published in the April 7 edition of the Reporter.

Area grads top average in seeking college bids

by Bart Slawson

The percentage of high school graduates from Shelby County seeking admittance to college is higher than the state average.

From a throng of 763 graduating high school seniors in Shelby County, 451 said they plan to attend college or ordered transcripts sent to universities, according to counselors at each school.

Overall, 59% of this year's graduates intend to go to college.

According to the latest state figures, 37% of Alabama's high school graduates are attending college.

Out of all the high schools in Shelby County, Indian Springs School of Rt. 1, Helena, is sending the largest percentage of students to college. Out of a class of 42, all plan to attend institutions of higher education.

Briarwood Christian High School has the second highest percentage of prospective college students, with 66 from the class of 68 (97%) who want to attend college.

Third is Pelham High with 131 of the graduating 160 (82%) seniors planning on higher education.

The lowest percentage came from Vincent High School, with 12 of the class of 54 (22%) planning for more schooling.

Figures were not available from Coosa Valley Academy and Shelby Academy.

This county's percentage of prospective college freshman exceeds the state average of 37%.

That percentage, however, is based on the 48,434 graduates in 1980 -- the most recent figure available from the Alabama Council on Higher Education. The only 1980 college attendence figures available from the agency -- 17,284 -- accounts for the number of freshmen enrolled in colleges in Alabama.

The same state figures reflect a 3% increase in college attendance since 1976.

Even without the high percentage of college bound graduates from ISS and Briarwood, 52% of the seniors from county public schools are planning to further their education.

College attendance figures for past years were not readily available from the individual schools in the county.

School's OUT!

Building permit bill for county introduced in state legislature

State Senator Spencer Bachus has introduced a bill giving Shelby County authority to issue commerical construction permits and inspect commercial buildings.

Bachus introduced the local bill -- which applies the Southern Building Code and the National Electrical Code to Shelby County -- last Thursday.

Tuesday, in an interview from Montgomery, Bachus said "Shelby County is wide open. I think it's has been fairly lucky in the sense that it has not had a major disaster without a code."

The state senator reported that there have been cases of shoddy construction in Shelby County, but that the county is powerless to do anything about it.

Bachus said his legislation "recognizes that Shelby County is becoming an urbanized area."

"Progress brought the need (for the bill) and it will be of financial benefit to the county," he said.

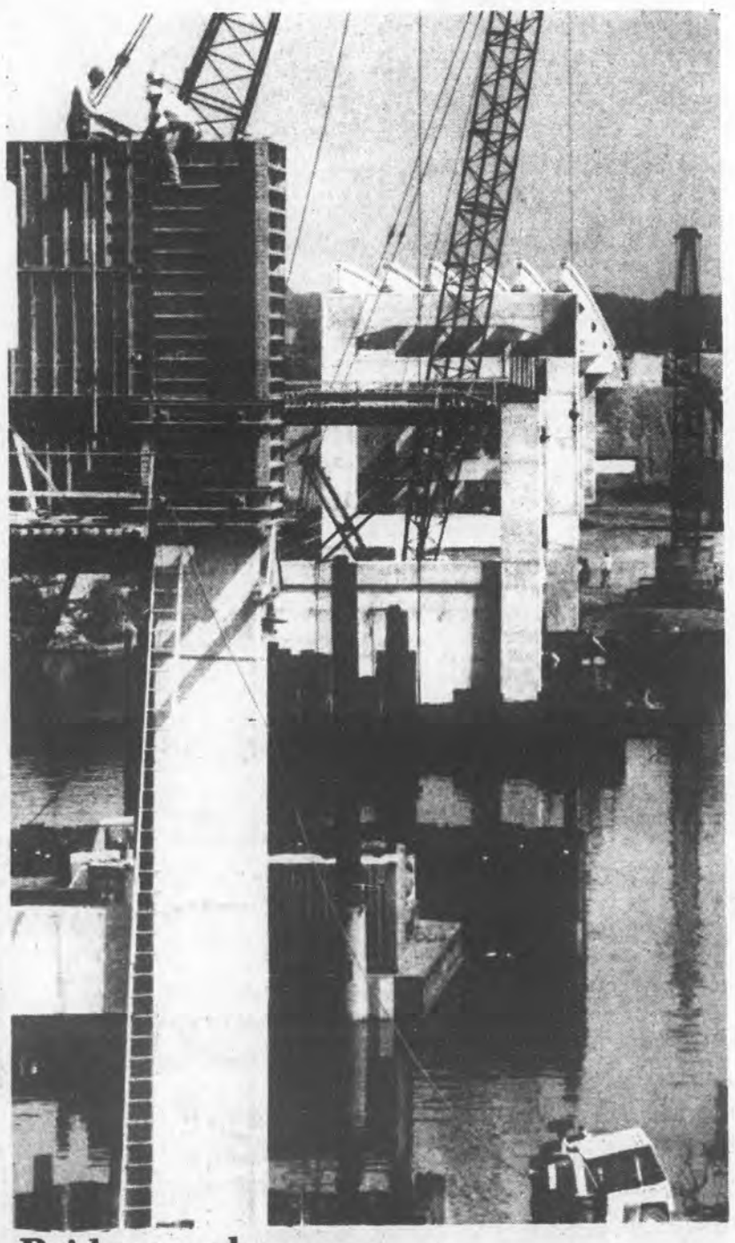

However, he stressed that financial benefit is not the only positive side of the legislation. "It will protect the individual who wants a building constructed, as well."

"When you do not have a code, you not only have unsafe buildings but substandard construction," he continued. "If this bill is adopted, it will prevent fly by night builders and shoddy operators from building a pile of junk."

According to Bachus, the bill has been assigned to the local legislation committee and will be considered within the next week. The bill should come to a final vote in the senate within a month, he predicted.

The idea of the bill has already met the approval of the Shelby County Commission and it was introduced by Bachus after he held discussions with County Commissioner John Ames.

While the state senator does not expect trouble, local bills usually require the unanimous approval of local legislative delegations for passage.

Bridge work

While the state highway department and residents in Harpersville haggle over right of way prices, nearby construction work continues on the new U.S. 280 span across the Coosa River. The state expects to finish four-laning 280 through Shelby County in about two years. (Photo by David F. Moore)

280 hits bumps in Harpersville

by Fred Guarino

After the state spends some $3 million to widen U.S. 280 through the Harpersville bottleneck, traffic is expected to flow smoothly.

But before the work is ever finished, both the state highway department and property owners appear to be in for a bumpy ride in Harpersville.

According to Jesse McGill, fourth division enginner for the state highway department in Alex City, bids are expected to be let for the highway work this month.

Before any grading on the four-laning project is done, rights of way must first be secured. According to information in the county property maintenance department, the state is acquiring land from 27 individuals for this purpose.

However, there's a hang up with some of the property owners.

According to Pat Sewell, chief clerk in the county probate office, several land condemnations for state right away are now being appealed. The properties in question were previously assessed by the county.

Both the state highway department and the land owners have 30 days to appeal the values.

Information provided by circuit court chief clerk Judy Davenport indicates that at least one of the land condemnations in Harpersville is set for trial in August. Four are set for pre-trial hearings -- which means at least five condemnation cases have reached the circuit court level.

According to McGill these cases will be settled by agreement or in the courts.

McGill told the Reporter that the state can simply pay front money to the court, and then can begin work on the land, before the legal questions are settled.

McGill expects road work to begin in the next two or three months. The project will take some two years to complete.

A project map in the county maintenance department shows that not only will U.S. 280 be widened, but work will be done at its intersection with Alabama 25.

The four land condemnations waiting appeal are:

The State of Alabama vs. Ralph Darby et. al.; the State of Alabama vs. Mary Ann Jones, et. al.; State of Alabama vs. Kathlene Elizabeth Wyatt, deceased, et. al; and the State of Alabama vs. Billy Baker, et. al.

The land condemnation cases awaiting pre-trial hearing include:

Sterrett Church of Christ; Walter M. McCrainie, Nellie Grace McCrainie; Clyde M. Wyatt, Margaret L. Wyatt; and Harpersville Mayor J. W. Donahoo.

The Reporter was unable to contact Mayor Donahoo, from whom the state intends to purchase .05 acres of land.

Walter McCranie has .35 acres being sought by the state and Mrs. Clyde M. Wyatt has .48 acres.

When asked why he was going to court over his .35 acres, Walter McCranie said the project would damage his home, and take away land that he farms.

As a result of the highway's being widened, McCranie said, "I'm going to be in a hole next to a new viaduct."

He said the state was not offering him enough money for the inconveniences.

"I wouldn't give you a dime for the four-lane. That's for people at Auburn (traffic flow to ball games)," he told the Reporter. "What is progress to some, is damage to others."

Margaret Wyatt said, "We don't feel that they are offering enough...We know of a place about the same size the state paid a lot more for."

She added that the widened highway will, "take some of our big trees and shrubs and get close to the house... It will get oaks that have been here 30 years. We couldn't begin to grow another one."

"We would all rather it had been somewhere else," Wyatt said. "I don't know if it's good for the town or not."

McGill, however, noted that the 280 project through Harpersville would have required much more land -- and money -- had the state planned to include medians through the town. As it is, he said, the highway will simply be widened to four lanes.

He said that Spegel Construction Company has been awarded the contract to relocate the Vincent owned gas lines through Harpersville for the project.

According to the map in the Shelby County property maintenance department, the state wants to purchase acreage for the U.S. 280 project in Harpersville, from the following individuals:

T. W. Snider, .41; Carl E. Bird, 1.02; Church of Christ, 1.44; Brenda J. Riddle, .09; C. E. Watts, .60; Harvey R. and Violet Crocker, .59; Fred Jones, 1.29;

Foundry worker dies in electrical accident

by Bart Slawson

A Columbiana man was killed and a co-worker badly burned Friday in an industrial accident.

According to Columbiana Police Chief Howell Horn, the accident happened when one man touched a highly charged electric circuit at the Simsco Foundry. The foundry is located in the city's industrial park.

Stephen J. Joiner, 26, was working with James Garner, 23, also of Columbiana, at about 8 a.m. in an area of the foundry where electric circuits for the plant's machines are kept, Horn said.

Apparently, Joiner accidently bumped into a circuit inside a cabinet with 1,500 volts running through it. A flash fire killed Joiner instantly and badly burned Garner, Horn said.

Fellow workers at the plant saw Garner's clothes ablaze, pulled them off, and cared for him until emergency crews arrived.

Shelby County Coroner Billy Thompson said Joiner died from severe electric shock. He was the father of three small children, one of whom was about a month old.

Garner was taken to the University Hospital's Burn Center in Birmingham. He was listed in satisfactory condition Monday.

Pat Flanagan, area director for the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) in Birmingham, told the Reporter that the accident is under investigation by that agency.

Quiet wait

Lack of cash stymies Montevallo leash law

No one spoke against the proposed leash law at the May 16 meeting of Montevallo's city council.

But there was no definite decision on what action the council would take after almost an hour of discussion on the subject.

Approximately nine people showed up to express their feelings at the public hearing preceeding the council meeting.

"I like dogs," declared May Mekeel, "but not the people who let them run loose."

She reported that dogs congregate in her yard in the middle of the night, creating a disturbance.

Police Chief Allen Needham mentioned the difficulty of determining ownership. Steve Sears' answer to that was to pick up the dog if the person whose yard it was in didn't claim ownership. people's attention."

At the present time, the only way Montevallo residents can take action against a troublesome dog is to swear out a warrant against the owner.

"And nobody wants to do that," remarked City Administrator Don Hughes.

He observed that residents who favored a leash law wanted to place the responsibility on the city. "Instead," he said, "it will actually place more responsibility on the individual."

Mayor Ralph Sears noted that no municipality has been able to find a satisfactory solution to the problem of dog control.

"But we can take steps to do the best we can," he told the council and audience.

Sears stressed, however, that an ordinance concerning dogs could not go into effect until the city could find the necessary funding.

Hughes estimated the annual cost at $14,000.

The Mayor said the matter will now be turned over to the Public Safety Committee and they will bring a recommendation back to the council.

SMC breaks ground for office building

by Marcia M. Sears

Shelby Medical Center breaks ground next Tuesday morning for its new medical office building in north Shelby.

Invitations, printed in gold, went out last week for the 8 a.m. ground breaking.

The building will be located near the intersection of Cahaba Valley Road (county 119) and U.S. 280, near where SMC hopes to build a hospital in the future.

The architects are scaling down the plans this week, so the building will cost no more than $600,000, according to SMC administrator Roland Bradford.

Low bid for the project was $737,700, submitted by Mann Construction Company. Other bids went up as high as $809,999.

Bradford said negotiations are also underway with the low bidder to see if savings can be made by changing some of the building materials. It is possible the project may be re-bid, he added.

The reason the price must be under $600,000 is because the State Health Planning Development Agency must approve any structure that costs more than that. To get that approval, the hospital must prove there is a need for the building.

Proving need can be a lengthy process, and several other hospitals are anxious to obtain a toehold in the growing north Shelby County area.

The new building will provide space for four to six physicians, Bradford said, but he expects that only one or two will occupy it when it opens.

A drug store and space for other health-related services are included in the plans, Bradford said. If all goes well, the building should be ready on March 1, 1984. All furnishings will be provided by the physicians who use the space.

Bradford said the building will be paid for out of SMC's reserves. There will be no need for financing it, he indicated.

In addition to the county hospital in Alabaster, SMC owns two doctors' office buildings; one in Alabaster, and another in Montevallo.

Burro assailants found guilty

The two men found guilty of dragging a burro behind their pickup truck said they were trying to get the animal off the highway.

But testimony given by witnesses in Shelby County district court last Wednesday convinced Judge Jim White that Johnny Mack Brown of Vincent, and Glenn Edwards of Harpersville were guilty of animal cruelty.

The burro suffered permanent injuries as a result of the incident which occurred May 7 on U.S. 280 near Harpersville.

Veterinarian Lynn Hall told the court the animal's hide couldn't have been stripped to the bone without being dragged a considerable distance.

Brown, who had purchased the animal for $55 earlier in the afternoon, was fined $500 and court costs, and given a 60-day jail sentence which was suspended for six months.

The judge also ordered him to pay veterinary bills in the amount of $156.

Edwards was fined $250 plus court costs, and given a 30-day jail sentence which was suspended for six months.

Defense attorney Sonny Conwill contended there could have been a serious accident if his clients hadn't acted as they had.

He filed notice of appeal in the case.

Brown, the driver of the truck, and Edwards, both 27, said the burro was in the back of the pickup with its feet bound, when it broke loose and jumped out.

They claimed they stopped and tried to get it back on the truck but were unsuccessful because it was kicking and jumping around.

The men said they drove on approximately 75 yards and found a place to pull off the road, where they were able to hoist the burro onto the truck.

The two said they were assisted with their task by the driver of a blue pickup truck.

But witnesses gave a different version of the incident.

Pat Etress of Chelsea said the defendants were laughing as she and her husband drove past them pulling the burro.

Glen Campbell, who lives on U.S. 280, testified he saw the men kick the animal when they couldn't get it up.

Both men denied that they had ever kicked the burro.

The injured animal is in the custody of the Shelby County Humane Society and is being cared for at the farm of chief deputy James Jones of the sheriff's department.

Suspect jailed

Two men shot at launch

A Memorial Day shooting at Beeswax Creek boat launch sent two men to Shelby Medical Center and one man to the county jail.

Sammy O'Neal Benson, 42, from Shelby, was arrested Monday and charged with two counts of assault. A sheriff's spokesman said Benson is being held on $30,000 bond at the Shelby County Jail.

Albert Joseph Jackson, 20, of Harpersville, and Charles Robert Roberson, 18, of Columbiana, were both wounded during the incident.

According to Roberson, contacted Tuesday in his room at SMC, Jackson and two other men got into a fight that afternoon at the public boat launch.

During the fighting, Benson drove up in a truck and aimed a gun at Jackson's neck, Roberson said. The shot that was fired hit both boys.

Roberson said he had his left arm around Jackson's neck when a single gunshot was fired. Apparently, the same shot that hit Roberson in the left elbow, passed through his arm and lodged in Jackson's left arm.

The cause of the argument is not known.

Roberson said it "wasn't none of his business," when asked why the gun was shot during the argument.

Jackson was released early Tuesday from SMC. Roberson said he might be released sometime Wednesday.

A hospital spokesman listed Roberson's injury as a "gunshot wound to the arm."

Roberson said he was in little pain.

Calera seeks opinion on expanding fire calls

The City of Calera is seeking legal advice on the provision of limited services within its police jurisdiction.

The city is seeking the advice because of a recent proposal by Councilman Mark Jones to provide only fire and rescue service in an area within a mile and a half of the city limits.

Jones proposed that a charge for the service be billed on an individual basis.

An individual within the mile and a half jurisdiction would be billed only for services rendered, based on the amount of equipment, manpower, and time used to answer his or her call.

"The city should consider the emotions of its jurisdiction residents who are bewildered by the city's stance," Jones has publicly stated.

He added that the city has received no benefit from its city limit cutoff of services.

However, the newest member of council was opposed to a blanket re-instatement of all services (police, garbage, etc.) because that would dilute the attractiveness of future annexation.

Mayor Carl Prichard told the Reporter Monday that the city has not yet received a legal opinion on the proposal.

Montevallo deals in gas

The City of Montevallo has been trying to reach an agreement with the University of Montevallo on a price for maintaining gas meters and equipment.

After the installation of a wood chip boiler last summer, UM only uses city gas to heat and cool two off-campus buildings.

However, the university wants to keep the system operational to use as a backup.

The university said the city's proposed monthly fee of $1,100 was too high.

So the city came up with a lower figure following last week's council meeting. The new proposal is for $750 a month.

Although it's expensive to maintain the meters and large gas lines going to the university, the city would like to get the school's business again.

Before the wood chip boiler was used to provide fuel for heating and cooling, UM was the city's number one gas customer.

UM chip issue burns

by Bert Seaman

The wood chip boiler at the University of Montevallo is saving the university money.

Nearby residents, however, insist they're on the losing end of the stick.

Homeowners living on Cardinal Crest Road have complained of noise and pollution caused by the boiler ever since it was installed last summer.

Although state pollution control agents previously approved the operation of the equipment, they will make another inspection June 6 when the boiler is restarted for the summer session.

The university installed a muffler to cut down on the noise and city attorneys have said there is no evidence of noise law violation.

But Cardinal Crest Road residents say they are still bothered by racket from the machinery.

The pollution agents were called in by the City of Montevallo.

One proposal to cut down the boiler's noise has been delayed for financial reasons. After receiving bids on the construction of two 60x70 foot walls with a roof that would have covered the chips and loading equipment, the university decided to modify the plans and rebid.

The bids were reportedly 50% higher than the university had planned to pay for the work.

According to reports, the wood chip burner has helped the university save some $200,000 on its natural gas bill.

The unit has been in operation about six months.

What's up in Vandiver?

by David F. Moore

A lot of people in Vandiver have three things on their minds right now: making money, the fire department, and having loads of fun.

All three of these matters are related. Anyone who doesn't know the connection needs to make a trip to Vandiver Saturday to find out -- especially if they like country music, clogging and barbeque.

It's the day when the Vandiver Volunteer Fire Department is holding its annual fund raising barbeque and country music festival at the community center.

Community activists will be cooking some 350 pounds of pork for plates and sandwiches. Also available for day-long consumption will be chicken fingers, burgers, corndogs and other concessions.

The outdoor concert begins at 6 p.m. (rain or shine). Headlining the show will be the Smith Band from Bessemer -- the same bunch of boys who'll be fronting Ricky Skaggs the night before at the Central Alabama Music Park.

Also playing will be Southern Sounds, as well as the Brasher Brothers and Country Wonder. Adding to music will be the popular Southern Belle Cloggers and the Apple Jack Cloggers.

Reasonably priced tickets for individuals and families will be available at the gate.

Between the barbeque, which goes on sale at 10 a.m., and the four hours of music, the day promises to be full of activities for the entire family.

A four-mile Vandiver loop run will be held at 8 a.m. Trophies will be awarded for the most fleet of foot, and for the winner of the dash races which will be held later in the day. For more racing information and registration, call Larry Parker at 672-7980.

At 11 a.m. the Mount Pisgah Little People will put on a puppet show -- rated for young and old alike.

"Kiddie Games" will be held all day long "to keep the little-uns out of trouble," according to Pat Brasher, who is helping organize the event. One of the games is a water balloon battle.

A softball tourney will be played during the day, and trophies awarded. Eight teams have signed up so far, and Joe Hyde is looking for a couple more. Call him at 672-7680.

Other competition includes a horseshoe tourney, headed by Elgin Isbell. There will also be a drawing for an Auburn and an Alabama quilt.

The big competition of the day will be the fire department water battle, set for 2 p.m. Dorman Lynn and other volunteers have already accepted challenges from Chelsea, Dunnavant and Cahaba Valley fire departments. They're still looking for more takers...

That's the fun side of matters in Vandiver. "We're looking for a good turnout," said Brasher, who's one of the board members with the VVFD.

On the money side, all proceeds from the day will go towards helping the fire department raise the $8,000 it needs to operate on this year, she said.

"The fees have been slow this year, and now we've taken on the rescue operations, too," Brasher said. "That's why we need the turnout."

'Trustys' break out of jail

by Bart Slawson

Two Shelby County Jail inmates escaped early Friday after kicking out a window and fleeing through the jail's front door.

The pair were captured a few hours later on Highway 25 between Columbiana and Calera, said Lt. Wayne Lucas of the Shelby County Sheriff's Department.

The inmates are Michael Eugene Skinner, 27, of Chelsea, and James Lloyd Smith, 26, of Alabaster, Lucas said. Both men have now had escape added to their previous charges.

Skinner is serving a 40-year sentence for robbery and kidnapping. Smith is serving six months hard labor on a Shelby County burglary conviction. He will later serve sentences for attempting to commit a crime while armed and two other burglaries, Lucas said.

Because the men are good painters, Lucas said they were granted "semi-trusty" status in order to paint the non-contact visitors area on the ground floor, Lucas said.

The area is normally closed and locked. Since it was being painted, however, it was unlocked at the time of the escape.

Lucas said the two apparently kicked out a window, climbed through the opening, and dashed out the jail's front door.

At about noon, officers picked up the two along the highway and returned them to jail without incident.

Under The Courthouse Dome

by Fred Guarino

The Shelby County Commission has placed its stamp of approval upon a study of the U.S. 280 corridor.

The commission approved a resolution at its last meeting to seek $10,000 in matching community development block grant funds to make a study of the county's portion of the corridor. So far, however, no money has been appropriated.

The study was requested by Leo Karpeles and Gary Cooper, representing the Horizon 280 Association.

The men indicated that although matching funds must come from the county, their association is willing to help have the study done.

Cooper also told commissioners that Horizon 280 is willing to pay up to $2,500 of the $10,000 required to match the grant, which would leave the county obligated to pay only $7,500.

However, according to Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden, the county's resolution did not commit it to providing any matching funds.

He said that the commission will reach a decision on the matching funds once it knows if the grant will be approved.

Cooper told commissioners that the county needs background information for development of the corridor.

That information will include where businesses plan to locate, and how they will come to together. This, Cooper said, will give the county a clear picture of any problems.

He said the information will also help in developing a plan for the area.

Cooper reported that the highway department is conducting a $500,000 study of the corridor on its own.

He stressed that a locally sponsored study could put the county ahead of highway planning, as well as allowing it some input in the matter.

Cooper added that such a study would help develop standards, and fill a void where now there is no county plannning.

"U.S. 280 has a chance to become one of the quality areas in the country for offices and high tech," Cooper said.

He stated that the development of U.S. 280 in Jefferson County is the "now" but Shelby County is the "future".

The application for grant money must be filed by June 9.

An escape from the Shelby County Jail by two inmates serving time for kidnapping, robbery and burglary was the main event during the period between May 24 and May 31. (See related story.)

Sheriff's deputies worked on one theft and one burglary during the time. An attempted burglary was reported on North Broken Bow Drive May 23.

A log skidder was reported stolen from a Montevallo resident. It was later recovered.

A burglary was reported at a residence near Cahaba Valley Road where a stereo system and speakers were taken.

Two juveniles got into a fight at Riverchase Middle School May 26. One participant had to be taken to Shelby Medical Center Emergency Room.

The following person were arrested on felony charges:

Escape: James Loyd Smith and Michael Eugene Skinner, inmates at Shelby County Jail.

Theft by deception: Shirley T. Stricklin of Columbiana.

Robbery charges have been dropped against two Calera men.

Charges against Wayne McDonald and Milton Brogden were dropped May 23 in Chilton County after a judge determined there was not enough evidence to prosecute them, according to court records.

District Court Judge Marise Mims heard evidence from prosecutors and defense attorneys during a preliminary hearing and ruled there was insufficient evidence to proceed with the case.

Justice demands executions

by Billy Curtis

My opinions and proposals on Capital Punishment, and crime in general, may seem harsh to some, or over-simplified. I am well aware of the divided opinions on this issue; indeed, there is no middle of the road. People are either for or against capital punishment. I will not try to convince anyone of my beliefs. I will instead present my "Doctrine". With precious few exceptions, I believe that anyone who has taken the life of another human being has forfeited his right to live.

BILLY CURTIS

It is well documented throughout history that the death penalty is an effective deterrent to criminals. The thought of "getting the chair" or "the gas chamber" is an excellent way of striking fear into the hearts of these social parasites. Indeed, we must turn the tables and make them fear the law-abiding populace. If all of our efforts save just one innocent human life, are they not worth it?

Who among us can honestly show sympathy for a criminal who has killed someone? That someone could easily be 'your' wife, mother, or sister. Is it justice for the convicted criminal to have access to a complete legal library as required by law so that they can clog our already overloaded, antiquated court system? Wouldn't this money be better used in our schools where it is desperately needed? Aren't our children infinitely more important than a repeat felon mocking our criminal justice system?

I consider myself a reasonably good Christian, but I would not hesitate to pull the switch, give the injection, or pull the trigger on a convicted murderer. In light of the record of our court system, I am surprised at the lack of "Frontier Justice" and "Lynch Mob" activity.

It seems to me that our court system has lost its set of priorities. Granted, the rights of the accused must be protected, but there is also the right of the victim to see justice done. I believe the principle of "innocent until proven guilty" is essential, but upon a guilty sentence, no time or money should be wasted before the swift fulfillment of the sentence. Why should the taxpayers be burdened with having to pay eighteen-thousand dollars a year to delay the inevitable?

In my middle-class suburban paradise, relatively free from crime, it would be easy to take a liberal stance and call for leniency. But what if you or myself were victims of a capital crime? What if a close friend or member of your family was killed? What would be your attitude then? I believe in preventive action, and as a citizen, taxpayer, and future voter, I will stand up for my beliefs until my days on earth are over. I believe a large majority of Americans feel the way I do, and perhaps someday soon 'Justice will be done'.

Letters to the editor

Some lobbyists pervert theory for money

Letter to the Editor:

Long enough. That's how long I've waited... before feeling compelled to respond publicly to the apparent repeated mis-analysis of Alabama higher education's basic funding problem by a certain representative of one of our State's largest universities.

And compelled is the feeling, for, given the potential for misunderstanding inherent in what follows, I would not otherwise be writing this.

What so compels me is the following example (one of a number taken from recent newspaper accounts) of the mis-analysis being repeated publicly here and there in Alabama: In connection with the effort to secure special funding for his university, a certain official "said the Legislature had to choose between dividing funds among many institutions to develop mediocre programs and 'being less even handed' and giving the majority of funds to one or two institutions (guess which one or two?) to create excellent research programs."

The trouble with that analysis of the problem is two-fold. First, it's divisive, pitting one segment of higher education against another, and so, ultimately, is doomed to failure. But, more importantly, it's diverting, i.e., it diverts attention from the actual problem: Alabama's continuing reliance on enrollment-driven "funding formulae" that make it all but impossible to fund the State's universities on a programmatic basis that takes mission into account (an approach we at UM have consistently and persistently proposed for the last six years). And, that is what makes this situation so ironical.

Ironically, Montevallo supports the mission-related pleas of UAB, AU and UA for "special consideration" of their unique research and service programs. But, in return, we'd like to receive support -- in particular, public support -- from those quarters for our pleas for "special consideration" of our mission, which State Statutes say is even more "unique" in Alabama higher education.

Given such a state of affairs, is it any wonder that we've been irritated by the recent calls for special, non-formula funding at the admitted expense of most of higher education?

Sincerely,
James F. Vickrey, Jr.
President,
University of Montevallo

Writer questions petitioners; supports county airport cause

Letter to the Editor:

As a recent graduate of high school, the speaker of our Baccaleaurate service spoke to the class of '83. He said the world was on its tiptoes, watching God's sons and daughters coming to maturity, taking responsibility.

While the world is on tiptoes watching and listening, I feel it my duty to voice my opinion on the issue of the Shelby County Airport.

Frankly, I'm very disappointed in the petition by the group that keeps fighting the airport, just because it is there.

I'm very proud that Shelby County has an airport. I feel that it is very important to the growth and success of this county.

As a member of the Explorer's Club, the Shelby County Airport offered school students, ages 15-18, training and classes in aviation. This was an opportunity that not many young people get, and I'm very fortunate that I got this opportunity. At the age of 15 it started me towards serious thinking in life. The instructors took time to train young people, and most importantly, in the safety of aviation.

I think the Shelby County Airport has played an important part in the training and education of students in Shelby County.

I was puzzled with some of the people that signed the petition, and asked why they did so. Their reply was that the petitioners were so aggressive, they signed to get them off their backs.

Yes, you can talk a lot of people to your side, if they haven't investigated the whole situation. You can always find something wrong with everything.

South East Shelby rescue squad thanked

Letter to the Editor:

I am writing this letter to state my appreciation and thanks to the South East Shelby County Rescue Squad. I have personally had need of their emergency services on two separate occasions. In both instances, the response was rapid and I believe the care given was professional.

I would like to thank Randy and Cheryl Moore and the squad for serving Columbiana and the surrounding area with emergency medical service.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Remember -- what they said about a wet May in the days when a man and a mule and a few acres of ground and a sunhat tried to fight weeds that reached halfway to the sky.

Did You Ever -- see some folks try so hard to look ugly and succeed so beautifully, beards and hair-dos what they are.

Have You -- got in a hurry and took the stairs instead of the elevator and climbed three floors and got out and waited ten minutes to catch your breath and get your legs working again.

Were You There - the day Ray Cardwell and Birmingham beat Dizzy Dean and Houston before a crowd of around ten thousand that turned into a crowd of two hundred thousand when they counted everybody who said they were there thirty years later.

Remember -- the crowds who went to the baseball games in the 1930's in every little town around and the fun they had with things like worry and hurry and tension so far away you almost forgot 'em.

Do You Suppose -- that was why we made it through a great depression without going raving mad.

Were You The One -- who caught a fish that might have weighed two pounds when you got to the bank with 'im, and weighed close to ten pounds when you were telling the boys about it two days later at the coffee table.

Did You Ever -- just stand there remembering the dance and the ride home afterward as if it were only yesterday while the name that went with the face was half a lifetime away, hidden in past.

Remember -- how funny the picture looked from the very front row at the picture-show when you carried a young friend to see a shoot-em-up, fifty years after you sat on that same front row with Marcus Polk and Cotton Lester and Frank Ellis and Karl Harrison and watched William S. Hart shoot holes in the ace of spades at fifty feet.

I Just Hope -- I find down the road somewhere, between here and wherever I'm heading, another Henry Joiner. I hope I do. And I hope you do too. Whoever you are.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I've never gone down as many dirt roads as I did the other day.

And if you're thinking I was lost again -- you're absolutely right.

Halfway to an interview, I realized my directions had been left behind in the office.

Since I was already late, I didn't dare turn around and go back for them.

At last I reached a fork in the road and I remembered that one of my instructions had been to bear to the left, so I did.

And then around the curve was first one landmark and then another.

"I almost have it made," I thought.

Since I was in the area where my subject lived, I supposed that I could get directions at the post office.

And in a way, I did.

However, the postmaster hadn't been out that way in a long time, and wasn't exactly sure which dirt road to turn on.

But at least I got turned in the right direction.

The second dirt road I came to looked like a pretty good bet. It was in fair condition and I was moving right along when all of a sudden a rickety old bridge loomed in front of me.

Over I went, holding my breath.

It held me up all right, but as I drove on, I seemed to be on a journey to nowhere.

Getting back to the highway again, I stopped at the first house I came to and made inquiries.

The only dirt road that had any houses was about a half mile on down the road, I was told.

There was a dirt road just about that distance from the house, so I turned down it.

One house looked like it might be the one I was looking for. So I went up to the door with a pack of dogs from across the road yapping at my heels.

No one answered.

Just as the trees seemed to be closing in on me as I traveled on down the road, I came to a trailer.

As I slowed down, a woman stuck her head out the door and I called out to her, asking if she had ever heard of the party I was looking for.

Her barking dogs made conversation difficult, but after shouting back and forth a few times, I discerned that she did know of the family and I thought her directions were clear.

But the next dirt road I turned on was a dud, too.

When I was just about ready to give up, I saw a truck unloading something at a house. And it was set back on a dirt road.

So I buzzed in there. And lo and behold -- no, it wasn't the place where my family lived, but it was the place they had moved from.

Where do you think the people I was looking for lived?

If you guessed down the next dirt road, you were right.

And they did!

Yet another member of the Wallace Administration Cabinet has been scorched by the press for his work schedule. James White of Montevallo, the Commissioner of the Department of Revenue, reportedly has been spending more time at his accounting firm office in Birmingham than he has on the job as the state's tax collector.

White, the first black appointed to head a major state agency by Gov. Wallace, didn't help matters when he was quizzed by the press about his short work week. His response was that he saw no reason for such a question to be asked.

Earlier in the new administration it was revealed that Jeff Mims, administrator of the ABC Board, was also working only a couple of days each week in Montgomery and spending the remainder of the time in Mobile. Both officials are paid $48,000-a-year for what are supposed to be full time jobs.

The vote was close. So Alabaster-Pelham Rotarian Ken Williams drew this distinction in choosing a winner in the club's essay contest.

"There's a fine line between success and failure -- both in this contest and in all of life," Williams told the essayists, who read their work at the club's midday meeting Thursday in Alabaster.

Ending up on the winning side of the line was Pelham senior Billy Curtis, who spoke on the topic of capital punishment. Two winners of $1,000 scholarships, however, were kept secret for the time being.

Groups of students from Pelham and Thompson have competed in the essay contest for six years now.

Speakers from Thompson were: Jennifer Corn, Michael Brantley, Traci Spencer, Elizabeth Stell.

Pelham seniors who presented essays were: Kelly Brasher, Curtis and Destiny White.

It wasn't until Thursday's graduation exercises that the club revealed the winners of two $1,000 scholarships.

They went to Kelly Brasher of Pelham High School and Jennifer Corn of Thompson.

Participation in the essay contest was one of several requirements for obtaining the scholarship.

Seniors were given 28 topics on which they could write an essay of 500 words or less.

Topics chosen included: What My High School Education Means to Me; How the Breakdown of the Family Unit in the U.S. Effects Our Social and/or Political Structure; The Rise and Fall of the American Educational System; and, Being Successful in Today's Business World.

Montevallo Jaycees help city library

A Montevallo service club organized in May didn't waste any time getting involved in the community.

The first service project for the Montevallo Jaycees was to assist the city library in moving into a new building.

With the Parnell Memorial Library now open, the club plans to hold their future meetings in the public meeting room there.

Anyone interested in joining the organization is invited to attend meetings on the first and third Thursday of the month at 7:30 p.m.

For the club's next service project, it has agreed to help with the Montevallo Band Boosters' upcoming horse show. The Jaycess are looking around for other projects as well.

If anyone has a suggestion, they can call club president Kirk Lightfoot at 665-1466, or any of the other club officers.

Michael Byars is internal vice-president; Billy Vann, external vice-president; Carl Thigpen, secretary and Scott Lane, treasurer.

A chartering banquet will be held June 19 at the University of Montevallo.

Also, YMCA will have exclusive access to Oak Mountain's "Top of the Barn," conference center, which will be used for movies and arts and crafts.

All day camping activities will take place at Oak Mountain, using the picnic area as central headquarters.

Boy and girl day campers are broken up into the following groups: Kinder Kampers, 4-5 years; Pathfinders, 6-7 years; Adventures, 8-10 years; and Pioneers, 11-12 years.

Dates of the day camp are as follows: June 13-24; June 27-July 8, July 11-22, July 25-August 5, and August 8-19.

A new business is opening this week in Columbiana.

Carol Linn's Consignment Center will hold its grand opening Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at its location across from the courthouse.

Store owners are Linda Kelley of Shelby Shores, and Carol Yacko of Shelby.

According to Yacko, the store specializes in good name brand, used clothing. It also carries an assortment of furniture, antiques and collectibles.

"What makes this a different store," she said, "is that we accept consignment goods. People bring their goods to us, and they don't have to worry about selling them. We send them a check at the end of the month."

She said this creates a constantly changing array of merchandise, since new shipments are expected almost every day.

During the grand opening, door prizes will given away.

A girls softball homerun slugger comes home to the delight of fans and parents in a recent battle between Calera and Montevallo. The contest was played on Columbiana's girls only field.

Girls softball finds home field

When Bill Dobbins wants to get something done, he gets it done.

The president of the Columbiana girls softball league wanted a ballfield strictly for use by girls.

He got it -- and at a price less than the City of Columbiana expected.

And, he got it inspite of the fact it caused a furor among nearby property owners and Girl Scouts.

Property owners near the field located across from the SCHS football stadium said the field was located on a dedicated street.

The city agreed that it would have to be moved off the street.

And, while Girl Scouts objected to their being moved out of a meeting room to make space for a softball field concession stand, nothing was done on that account.

'Why should boys have everything?' Dobbins asked.

'Why should girls have to play on a field designed for Little League?' he asked again.

Softball does not require a mound as does baseball. Also, there were too many boys' teams in Columbiana for girls to make adequate use of previously existing facilities.

When Dobbins appeared before the city council, he was told that a softball field would cost $50,000 to build.

But he nixed that idea and only asked for $5,000 and a plot of land.

That plot of land, along with the city's approval to use the Columbiana Girl Scout Hut, were recently dedicated as a Columbiana girls' softball field.

The facility makes Columbiana the only city in Shelby County with a field for girls softball only.

However, beyond the original objections, the work wasn't easy.

Donations had to be sought for the infield and outfield dirt, lighting, making a concession and press box out of part of the Scout Hut, and to purchase a scoreboard.

According to the league president, the city's $5,000 and land only accounted for 20% of what was needed.

Girls now using the Columbiana field play in three age groups, 7-9, 10-12, and 13-15.

Apart from Columbiana, teams playing at the facility include Calera, Wilsonville, Montevallo, Chelsea and Jemison.

Dobbins said that until this year, girls had to play on Little League Fields and it was starting to hurt their action.

But they've come a long way. Now, the girls have a place of their own.

Waxahatchee means big fish

by Fred Guarino

Waxahatchee Creek is not only a good fishin' hole but if you're there at the right time, it's a good fish eatin' place as well.

Saturday, Lillian and Ivy Hyche of Camp Waxahatchee hosted a bass fishing tournament and fish fry at their place.

And, there were plenty of good eating fish both on stringers and plates.

The combination event was held to treat fishermen who had fished during a previous week's tournament to help the Diabetes Research Hospital in Birmingham.

Ken and Bob Grimes took first place in that event, co-sponsored by Jack's of Columbiana, with a catch of 27 pounds.

Pete McDow, fishing his first tournament, brought in a whopper which weighed four pounds and 14 ounces.

For the tournament, over 200 pounds of bass were caught and Mrs. Hyche cooked all of them Saturday.

Entry fees brought in $260 for diabetes research.

But except for the good eating, that tournament was history Saturday.

In Saturday's 12 hour tournament, a total of 111 pounds, eight ounces of fish were caught.

That, of course, does not include the bream caught by yours truly on a pier in front of the Camp Waxahatchee store.

However, the honor of the day belonged to Ricky Byars and Gordon Burdett who caught a total of 24 pounds of fish.

Burdette's big catch of the day was a three pound, ten ounce whopper which was good enough for a trophy.

Second place went to Mike and Gene Bullock and third place went to Steve Wells and Ronald Land.

With the chance to talk to some really big time fishermen, I could not let Byars and Burdette get away from answering some "honest" fishing questions.

"Where do you like to do your fishing?" I asked innocently. Others had the nerve to say, "He really wants to know where your fishin' hole is."

The two men looked at each other and then replied, "The lower part of the Coosa River near the dam."

They reported that the bass are really hitting now and on a previous trip they caught over 30 pounds of fish.

"How do you fish?," I again asked innocently.

This time there was no hesitation and the men informed me, "We go from point to point and weed bed to weed bed, just chunking...spinner bait and buzz bait."

I got some good tips out of the fishermen as well.

Bass are reported to be hitting near the top of the water and in the shallows now. But, by the end of the month they are expected to move out to deeper waters.

Sheeny Masters, who fished second in the recent diabetes tournament, had some philosophical comments to make about fishing.

He said, "A lot of people who don't like to fish, just don't fish at the right time."

Masters remembered Pete McDow's efforts the week before.

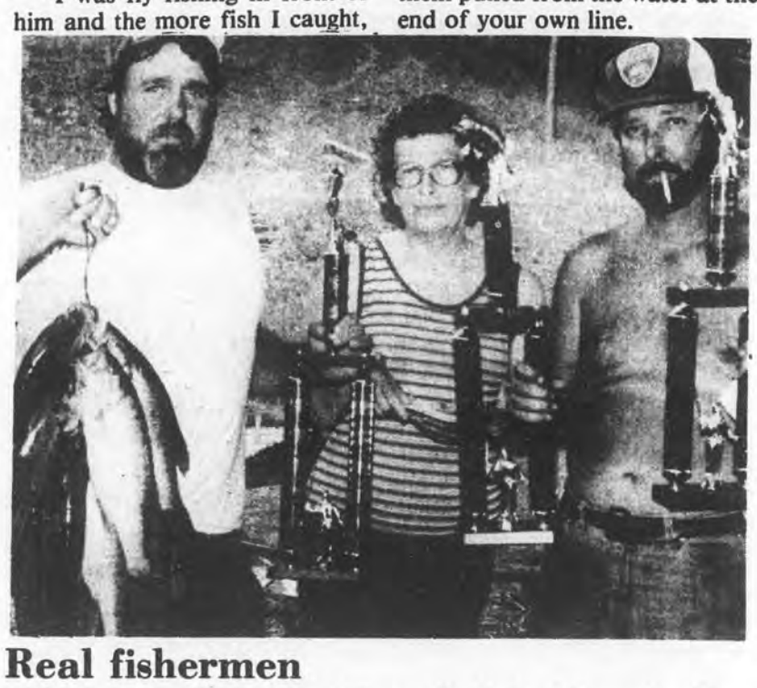

"I was fly fishing in front of him and the more fish I caught, the more disgusted he got. He was really depressed. Then he caught the big fish of the day. It was like someone had given him dope; his spirits lifted so much."

Masters also had a tip about how the fishing is going to go in the next few weeks.

He said, "It's good now but next week it's going to get better. A lot of those fish caught today had bloody tails. They are just coming off the beds."

One would hope that Masters, Burdette and Byars are right concerning their fishing predictions.

Bass are good eating fish and they are even better when you see them pulled from the water at the end of your own line.

Real fishermen

Ricky Byars and Gordon Burdett proudly display 24 pounds of bass they caught Saturday in a Camp Waxahatchee bass fishing tournament. Presenting first place trophies to the twosome and the prize for the big fish of the day, 3 lbs. 10 oz. is Lillian Hyche.

Classification vote taken

Changes loom for AHSAA

Some big changes appear to be in the wind for Shelby County members of the Alabama High School Athletic Association (AHSAA).

The central board of control of AHSAA was expected to meet yesterday (Wednesday) morning to approve or disapprove the changing of the current 4-A classification system into a 6-A system.

Public schools voted on the change Friday, May 27.

J.B. McCaslin, AHSAA administrative assistant, told the Reporter in a phone interview from Montgomery Monday that the vote was unofficially running 3 to 1 in favor the change.

If the central board follows that vote, Shelby County schools will see their classifications change as follows:

Calera High School will go from a 1-A class to 2-A, and Chelsea will remain 2-A.

Montevallo and Vincent will both go from 2-A to 3-A competition.

SCHS will be classified 4-A, up from 3-A.

Pelham and Thompson, now both 3-A, will be bumped up to 5-A competition.

Running may not be for everyone, but to Judy McCafferty it is a must

by Fred Guarino

To some people, reaching the "big four-zero" (40) age means over the hill.

But, the pot-bellied life isn't for everyone... nor does it have to be...

A 41-year-old Alabaster businesswoman is action proof of the fact.

She runs four miles every day. Three times a week she works out with weights.

And, while all of that might seem well and good, it's not the bottom line on Judy McCafferty.

Last year -- at age 40 -- she ran the Houston Marathon in a time of three hours and 22 minutes.

That's a 26-mile long foot race!

If you are mathematically inclined, that means McCafferty was clipping off a paced speed of one mile every seven minutes and 40 seconds. It was good enough to finish third in her age group.

She has also run in the 26-mile New York and Boston Marathons.

How has she managed these feats -- at any age? Exercise, she says.

Besides her weight lifting and daily jogs, she runs an exercise dance studio near U.S. 31 in Alabaster. Twice a night she hold exercise classes.

As proof that exercise has kept McCafferty fit, her marathon times have actually improved with her age.

To qualify for the Boston Marathon, a woman has to run 26 miles in three and one half hours.

McCafferty had never met that speed requirement until the 1979 Houston Marathon.

At the age of 37 she ran the event in three hours and 27 minutes. Now, three years later, she's chopped five minutes off that time.

She was also the first female member of the Houston Harrier Running Club, which is helping train women for the 1984 Olympics.

"I think physical fitness is great," McCafferty attests." "I know what it has done for me."

Physical fitness, however, does take committment, and, she warns, it's hard work.

"But I can eat anything I want without having a weight problem," she says. "It builds self confidence; it eliminates depression; and, you feel better about yourself."

She also says that running is the best thing for your heart, and adds that it helps to eliminate body fat.

But the dance exercise instructor does not recommend running for everyone. Instead, she recommends the kind of activity to which a person can dedicate himself or herself.

She says of consistent exercise, "It's real hard. There is no use in going out to hit tennis balls one time a week. People want instant results and its not that easy. You need to find whatever event suits you, then stick with it."

McCafferty says she doesn't want to push an exercise plan on anyone, but she does hope they will do something consistently.

McCafferty's dedication has left her a number of memories to reflect upon:

•Getting up at 4:45 a.m. every day and running 12 miles, while she worked for an oil and gas company in Houston.

•Friends she's made from the time she attempted her first three-mile run at a park in Houston to the Boston Marathon.

•Traveling to participate in an experience required run in Austin with country singer Willie Nelson.

•Running 70 miles per week to train for marathons.

The 70 miles a week brings up a question McCafferty is not shy about discussing.

Running can be an addiction, she says.

McCafferty says some people become so involved in running that they suffer injury and don't know when to stop.

She says that some people even let running take up so much of their time that it becomes all they do. They even miss important appointments because of it.

How do you prevent such addiction?

McCafferty says, "I listen to my body."

But she notes that exercise doesn't mean you have to forfeit all worldly pleasures.

McCafferty likes drinking beer, taking a little wine and eating anything she wants.

She only draws the line at smoking and hard liquor.

She encourages people to do the kind of exercise they enjoy. But for her, exercise is a must.

"I have to run!" I'll always run," she says, "because it's good for me."

Falcons sizzled then fizzled in baseball

The University of Montevallo Falcons jumped to a fast start this year in baseball. They earned national rankings.

But when it got down to the brass tacks of the distrcit tourney, the team fizzled from injuries.

After spending most of the season ranked among the top NAIA teams, the Falcons lost their first and second games in the double elimination District 27 tournament in Pensacola, to end the season.

The UM squad started the year off with a 6-4 win over Vanderbilt University and didn't lose a game until a 1-5 Livingston University team broke the spell with a crushing 11-4 defeat on March 14.

Despite the disappointing finale, the team produced three All-Conference and All-District selections, a number of new records and a very respectable 32-19 season tally.

The three honorees included the team's top two pro-prospects, David Bailey and Steve Smitherman of Alabaster, as well as Gerry Rivero.

Bailey, the Falcons' first basemen and a left-handed power hitter, batted .418 with 14 home runs.

At 6'4" and 224 pounds, Bailey is considered a likely candidate for professional baseball and has been heavily scouted by the pros.

Smitherman was named to the All-Conference and All-District teams as designated hitter, although it is his pitching arm which most likely will enable him to play for pay, according to Falcons Coach Bob Riesener.

Smitherman batted .365 on the year with 19 home runs -- a school record.

As a pitcher, Smitherman set a new season strikeout mark, fanning 90 batters while tallying an 8-6 record and a 2.05 ERA. The former Thompson High star not only hits with power, he's a canny hitter, earning 36 walks while striking out only 18 times in 148 trips to the plate.

Rivero, the Falcon second baseman, batted .311 and posted a .977 fielding average. He's a junior, 5'8" and 150 pounds.

Another Falcon southpaw, Tim Eberhart, set a school record for striking out 13 batters in one game.

When the season ran out on the Falcons, the tale could be told by the injury list.

Smitherman finished up with a sore arm -- a factor which probably helped eliminate the Falcons from the post-season contest.

Mark Lisenby, a Midfield sophomore who turned out to be an unexpected ace, also had an ailing arm at season's end.

Todd Kuhn, the top pitcher last year, had been considered a likely candidate for the pros, but a bitter, early-season bout with a virus got slowed his start.

THS grad honored

Thompson graduate Jimmy Grubbs has won a $1,000 scholarship from the National Honor Society Scholarship Program.

Grubbs was one of the 250 winners named last week for the national honor. Some 15,000 students from across the nation competed for the scholarships, according to the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

"Grubbs has demonstrated outstanding ability in academic work and school service," said Scott Thomson, executive director of the NASSP. "He's a fine example of the outstanding calibre of young people in America's high schools."

Each high school chapter of the National Honor Society was allowed to nominate two seniors for the competition.

Grubbs was valedictorian for the class of 1983, president of the THS National Honor Society chapter, top scorer in the Shelby County Scholars Bowl, and a scholastic award winner for his accomplishments in algebra, English, biology and chemistry. He was also captain of the tennis team.

Grubbs plans to attend Vanderbilt University and study chemical and mechanical engineering.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thad Grubbs of Route 1, Montevallo.

Study Club adjourns

The Montevallo Study Club held its final meeting of the year recently, at the home of its president Mrs. J. A. Brown, Jr.

The main focus of this year's program has been the study of several outstanding books. These programs were led by Mrs. T.E. Watson, Mrs. M. Thornton, Mrs. Sanford Colley, Eleanor Lewis, Mrs. Don Lovelady and Mrs. A.C. Jeter.

President Elect Mrs. Eugene Sledge led a discussion to formulate plans to celebrate the club's "Golden Anniversary" in the early fall of 1983.

The club was organized and held its first meeting in October of 1933 and has functioned continuously since that time.

Mrs. Brown announced to the club that Mr. and Mrs. Pat Wyatt and family, owners of Times Printing Co. in Montevallo, had made their collection of Montevallo Times Newspapers available to the club. The newspapers were published in Montevallo many years ago.

The club voted to investigate the possiblities for binding and preservation of the collection, and plans to donate them to the Parnell Memorial Library.

Other officers include Mrs. Justin Fuller, vice president; Mrs. Howard Best, secretary, and Mrs. Charles Binion as treasurer.

Classes meet daily at 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. at Thompson Middle School.

For more information, call 663-7796.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Baptism?

Mk. 16:16 "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned."

Acts 8:36-38 "and the eunuch saith, Behold, here is water: what doth hinder me to be immersed? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thy heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they both went down into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he immersed him."

Acts 22:16 "And now why tarriest thou? Arise, and be immersed and wash away thy sins, calling on his name."

I Pet. 3:20-21 "wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved enough water: which also after a true likeness doth now save you, even immersion."

Brookwood Medical Center

To heal, to comfort, to lead.

Birmingham, Alabama 35259

A health care center of AMI

Lakeshore hospital reaccredited until 1986

Lakeshore Hospital recently underwent a survey by the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals.

The hospital received a three-year accreditation according to Michael Stephens, executive director.

Accreditation by the JCAH is recognition of Lakeshore as a hospital that strives to provide high quality health care for its patients.

The survey is a voluntary evaluation of performance against national standards developed by leaders in the health care field. Accreditation shows that Lakeshore is in compliance with these standards.

Lakeshore is a privately owned, non-profit center that specializes in the rehabilitation of the physically disabled. Located in Homewood, it serves the Shelby County area.

The hospital provides services with the goal of assisting the patient to maximum function while fulfilling the needs of that person.

"During Lakeshore's nine-year history, it has developed both services and facilities to meet the needs of the severely physically disabled. Achieving accreditation is but another indicator of Lakeshore fulfilling its mission as being a comprehensive rehabilitation facility of the people of Alabama," said Thomas Yardley, chairman of the Board of Directors.

Notice is hereby given that a bill substantially as follows will be introduced in the Legislature of Alabama and application for its passage and enactment will be made, to-wit:

A BILL
TO BE ENTITLED
AN ACT

Relating to Shelby County; to create a license-issuing division within the probate judge's office for the issuance of certain licenses; to provide for the selection of personnel for such license-issuing division; to provide certain duties for the division; to provide for an optional procedure for the renewal of motor vehicle licenses in the county by mail; to authorize certain additional fees and cost pursuant to such system of renewal of motor vehicle licenses by mail; such fees shall be set by the county commission from time to time to pay the cost of mailing tags or decals; to prescribe more convenient and efficient procedures for assessing and collecting of certain taxes; the issuance of licenses by the probate judge's office; to transfer certain duties now performed by the tax assessor and tax collector; to provide that the probate judge shall be a member of the Association of Tax Assessors and Tax Collectors; and to provide further for the expense allowance of the probate judge.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA

Section 1. In Shelby County, there is hereby created within the probate judge's office a license division which shall issue all licenses issued through the probate judge's office, except marriage licenses. The county commission shall furnish suitable quarters and provide the necessary forms, books, stationery, records, equipment and supplies, except such stationery forms and supplies as are furnished pursuant to law by the state department of finance or the state comptroller. The county commission shall also provide such clerks, and other assistants for said probate judge as shall be necessary from time to time for the proper and efficient performance of the duties of his office. The probate judge shall have authority to employ such clerks, and other assistants, and to fix their compensation; however, the number and compensation of such clerks and other assistants shall be subject to the approval of the county commission. The compensation of the clerks and assistants shall be paid monthly out of the general fund of the county in the same manner as other county employees are paid.

Section 2. The probate judge shall perform all duties relating to the assessment and collection of taxes on motor vehicles in the county, which have heretofore been performed by the tax assessor and tax collector. The tax assessor and the tax collector of Shelby County are hereby relieved of all duties and responsibilities relative to the assessment and collection of taxes on such motor vehicles. The probate judge shall receive the commissions and fees now allowed the assessor and collector for performing these functions, and such fees and commissions shall be remitted to the county general fund. Reporting and remitting of such tax shall be made at the same time as other reports and remittances are now made by the probate judge.

Section 3. The probate judge shall keep at all times an accurate record of all licenses received by him from the state comptroller and of the disposition made of them, of all monies received, and of the licenses issued by him. He shall report to the state comptroller at the same time and in the same manner that the judges of probate are required to do under the general law. All unissued licenses and the stubs or duplicates or carbon copies of licenses issued shall be accounted for in the same manner that judges or probate are required to account for by law.

Section 4. Except as hereinafter provided, the probate judge shall be entitled to charge and collect the same fees that are provided for by law. For the performance of duties relative to the recording of the transfer of the ownership of motor vehicles as prescribed in the Code of Alabama 1975, said probate judge shall charge and collect a fee of $1.00. All such fees shall be the property of the county and shall be paid to the general fund of the county. Refunds for licenses issued by mistake or fact of law shall be made under the conditions and in the manner prescribed by the Code of Alabama 1975.

Section 5. To prevent motor vehicles from escaping taxation and to provide for a more efficient procedure for assessment and collection of taxes due on same, no licenses shall be issued to operate motor vehicles on the public highways of this state, nor shall any transfer be made by the probate judge until the ad valorem tax on such vehicles shall have been paid to the county for the preceding year as evidenced by receipt from the said judge. Every person, firm or corporation driving or owning a motor vehicle who desires to operate a motor vehicle on the public highways of Alabama shall first return such motor vehicle for ad valorem taxation purposes to said probate judge who shall issue a certificate of assessment on a form prescribed by the state department of revenue, shall collect the taxes shown thereon, and shall make a duplicate of the tax receipt and keep same on file in his office. The license tag shall be evidence of the payment of the license and ad valorem tax due as provided under this Act.

Section 6. Before any vehicle can be assessed, the probate judge shall be furnished the tag number presently on the vehicle unless such vehicle is new, in which case said probate judge shall be furnished a bona fide bill of sale from the dealer showing when the vehicle was bought new. In the case of a used car brought into the state from a state which provides that upon sale or transfer of the motor vehicle the tags are either surrendered to an appropriate authority or subsequently reissued by the seller, said probate judge shall be furnished a bona fide certificate of title properly assigned which shows when the car was sold to an individual, firm, corporation or association, living or operating in this state. If such tag number or bill of sale or certificate of title is not furnished, the vehicle will be presumed to have been in the state the entire year for which taxes are being assessed. Those motor vehicles brought into the state during any tax year and new motor vehicles for which licenses have never been issued that have been sold from the stock of a dealer during any tax year, shall be subject to taxation as if they had been held or owned in the state on the first day of October.

Section 7. The probate judge may, at his discretion, mail an application for renewal of licenses to whom such license has been previously issued, such renewal forms required to be returned prior to the expiration date of the license. Such renewal forms may be in post card form with sufficient information threon to adequately identify and process such renewal. The signature of the licensee thereon and proper remittance shall constitute sufficient authority for the probate judge to issue such license and return to the licensee by mail. There is hereby established a fee to be entitled "Mail Order Fee" which shall be set from time to time by the county governing body to pay the cost of mailing procedure herein provided, and such fee shall be collected by the probate judge at the time of issuance and paid over to the general fund of the county as are other fees and commissions.

Section 8. The probate judge shall be a member of the Association of Tax Assessors and Tax Collectors. Any fees or dues for membership in the association shall be paid for by the county commission.

Section 9. The probate judge is hereby entitled to receive an additional expense allowance in the amount of five hundred dollars ($500.00) per month. Said expense allowance shall be in addition to any and all other compensation and expenses heretofore provided by law and shall be payable out of the county general fund in the same manner as other expense allowances are paid.

Section 10. All laws or parts of laws which conflict with this Act are hereby repealed.

Section 11. This Act shall become effective immediately upon its passage and approval by the Governor, or upon its otherwise becoming a law.

School days?

Public schools are out for the summer, and that means Bible schools are in. At Alabaster First Baptist Church, 'school' takes place June 6-10. Last week, winners of a poster contest there helped hang a publicity banner for the event. The winners are Melinda Caspers, Kelli Patterson, Angela Ray, Rachael Pohlmann, and Dawn Dillahunty. (Photo by Bert Seaman.)

Just what does it take for good water system?

Editors note -- A recently published probe by the Reporter revealed some potential problems with the Columbiana water system. The stories raised several questions, including 'What makes for a good water system?'

by Bart Slawson

The earth has its own "plumbing" system with its own systems and rules.

In order to avoid drinking the brackish stuff from lakes and streams, people had to figure out a way to reliably move water from deep underground, to their homes.

Over the years, the state Health Department has been responsible for setting standards for what makes a good water works.

The Alabama Department of Environmental Management maintains a Division of Public Water Supplies to monitor, advise, educate and promote pure, good tasting drinking water for Alabama citizens. It has set the following guidelines for a good system:

At the heart of the system is the operator of each local water works. His job, under state regulations, is to deliver to the consumer pure, potable, clear drinking water. To do that, he must have many talents.

First an operator must be familiar with how water cycles from clouds, rain, earth, aquifer and evaporation, so he can stay a step ahead of this "hydrologic cycle" and assure a continuing reliable supply of good water.

Shelby County is fortunate because it is situated at the bottom edge of a plateau section in the Southeast. A plateau section is characterized by bedrock outcroppings and other geologic structures that are ideal for collecting, moving, filtering and pumping good water.

But availability of good water is not enough.

To get at it, an operator (backed up by a local water board) must secure loans, contract for geological surveys to locate prime spots for wells and accomplish drilling.

Once water is struck, the operator "runs the well to waste," or lets the water run from the well to release pressure and determine how much water the well will produce routinely over a long time period.

Then the operator fits a pump according to strict state regulations. He makes sure it's the right size pump and that it will pump reliably and cheaply.

Since water from the ground is free, the expenses associated with producing water all reflect labor, equipment, chemical disinfectants (required by law) and maintenance.

The greatest expense is electricity. Even a small water works can run up a bill of $100,000 or more a year with pumps running continuously.

Then the operator must be sure the water is free of dangerous germs and bacteria. First he tests water to find out the level of bacteria.

Microorganisms are plentiful in any natural water supply, so the most important consideration is what kind of organisms they are.

State regulations require the operator to add enough chlorine to the water system to average one part per million parts water throughout the system.

In some areas the chlorine concentration will be slightly higher; in other, more remote locations, slightly lower.

Chlorine gas in extremely small quantities is absolutely harmless to humans but very harmful to most dangerous or disease causing bacteria. Even this tiny concentration of chlorine kills harmful bacteria almost on contact.

Another important consideration is taste. People won't drink the water if it tastes terrible or looks muddy.

The operator's job includes determining if the water is desirable. If not, he must add filters to remove particles and smells.

Besides all his other responsibilities, a water operator must test frequently to make sure the water is safe at all times.

For example, Harold L. Davenport, the water works operator for the City of Alabaster, said this job is crucial. But one problem with vigilance is that humans gets bored with it.

Davenport has installed computers, monitors and automatic shutoffs to perform this boring but critical work.

When levels in storage tanks become too low, an alarm in the water works basement goes off and an employee will check it and correct the problem.

If the tank containing the Lions move on Inverness park

The Inverness Lions Club's park project near Inverness School is moving rapidly ahead.

"We've gotten the park off the ground now that we're past the permission and planning stages. Right now we're clearing the trees," said Lions second vice president, Don Hire.

Although almost everything is donated, the park is valued at $100,000.

Land for the park was donated by Taylor Mathis Development Company and deeded to the county. Lions Club members are donating all the labor and meeting all the costs.

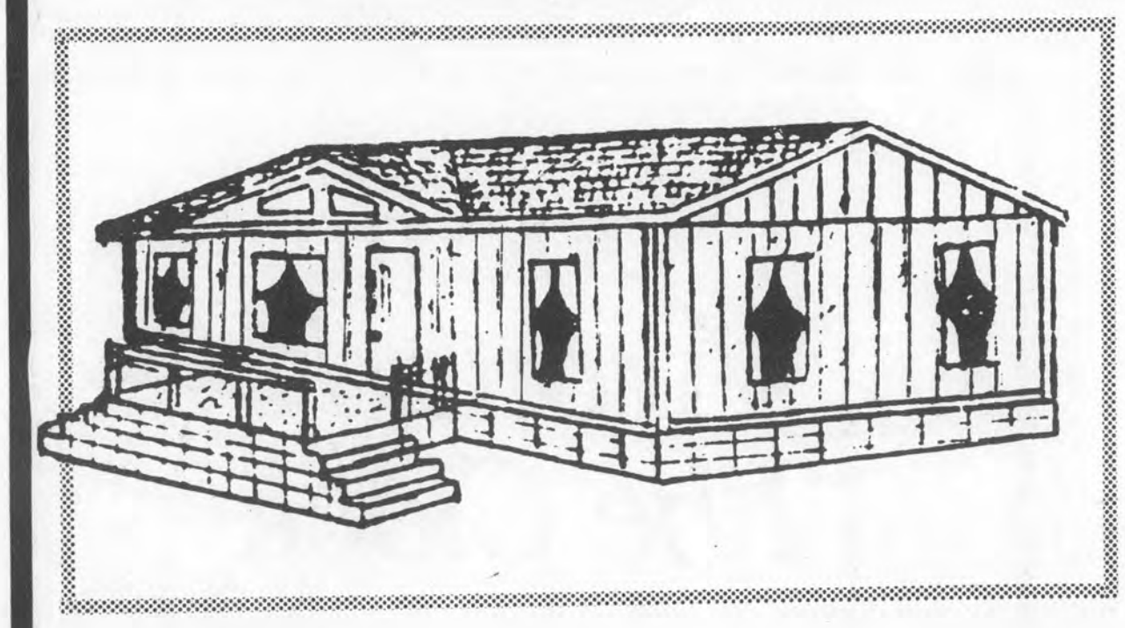

Hire said the park, scheduled for completion by the beginning of school this fall, will be built in phases.

The first phase involves building two ball diamonds and a soccer field. The second phase will include a barbeque pavilion, and playground equipment for smaller children.

Hire noted that Inverness school officials are also installing playground equipment.

Organized sports should commence next spring, Hire said.

'File weekly claims' support personnel told

A revision in state law now allows school support personnel to receive retroactive jobless payments if they are not rehired in the fall.

Even if they expect to return to work, the Alabama Department of Industrial Relations advises support personnel to file weekly claims.

As far as she knows, none of the support workers in Shelby County will be terminated in the fall, says ESPO representative Virginia Sharpe.

Sharpe represents approximately 300 workers in this county.

But she expects the support workers to file the claims as directed at the end of the school term.

In the past, support personnel have been denied benefits between school terms if they are under contract or have reasonable assurance they will be employed when the next school term begins.

William R. Heatherly, director of the Alabama Department of Industrial Relations, explains that under the provisions of Act No. 83-155, back payments will be made in the event the employee is not rehired in the fall.

He goes on to say that the payments will be issued by the State Unemployment Compensation Agenceny for each week of eligibility. But the claim must have been filed immediately after the school term ended and for the weeks thereafter.

The retroactive provisions of the law apply to workers who are employed by non-profit and state operated educational institutions, including kindergartens, primary and secondary schools, colleges and universities.

The law covers lunchroom workers, bus drivers, maintenance workers and certain other non-teaching and support personnel.

When claimants file their first application for benefits at the end of the school term, they can avoid lengthy waits in claims offices by following a schedule based on their social security number.

Claimants with numbers ending with 0-1 will report Monday; 2-3, Tuesday; 4-5, Wednesday; 6-7 Thursday; 8-9, Friday.

YMCA offers full schedule of activities for summer

The YMCA is offering a number of programs this summer. These include anything from slimnastics, gymnastics and karate, to pre-natal exercises and dancing aerobics.

Slimnastics is a figure control program for the weight conscious woman. Instructors are Beverly Lambert and Toni Christopher. Classes will be taught at Pelham High and the Alabaster YMCA.

Gymnastics includes instruction on the balance beam, tumbling, floor exercise, uneven and parallel bars, rings and vaulting. This program follows the National YMCA Progressive Gymnastics Program and is for boys and girls, ages 3-15. Mary Hamner is the instructor and sessions begin June 14 and July 19.

One of the most popular programs the YMCA offers, Japanese style karate, will be taught by Tony Evans at the Alabaster YMCA.

Pregnancy is a good time to be relaxed and physically well. Exercises for pre-natal, birth and recovery areas include pelvic floor exercises, abdominal muscle exercise, relaxation and breathing techniques.

This course is for women at any stage of pregnancy, and for the physically active or non-active person. The instructor is Bobbi Dale McKee.

Aerobic dancing is another popular way to exercise. The program consists of choreographed dances designed to improve cardiovascular respiratory response, while toning muscles and improving coordination, flexibility and endurance.

The primary goal is to have fun while exercising, and the Y offers a lot of ways to do it.

For more information on any of these programs, call 663-6504.

Water systems

chlorine used to disinfect the water runs dry, a valve shuts the water off completely.

Anytime of the day or night, this sends a signal to the Alabaster City Hall dispatcher who calls out water works personnel and sends them to the pump house to check the problem.

A computer set-up tells Davenport how much water is pumped, how much water is on reserve in the tanks, and what the demand is for particular times.

An operator must also compare the amount of water pumped with the amount bought by consumers. The difference in these amounts points out water loss through leaks in the system.

The operator and his crew work to find these leaks and plug them up.

Unless there's a problem with water, people usually take it for granted. That's why it's necessary to have trained water works operators who take water very seriously.

UA students earn honors

Nine Shelby County students have been named to the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa Dean's List for the spring semester.

Ralph E. Shaw, Chelsea; Cynthia L. Miller, Helena; Lisa C. Tinsley, Montevallo; Holly Prentice Ball, Jennifer Lynne Manasco and Mary B. Mobley, all of Pelham; and Alison Vonne Moore, Sterrett earned averages of greater than 2.5.

Earning perfect 3.0 averages were Carla J. Kirkland of Montevallo and Billy Doyle Bailey Jr. of Pelham.

Announcing The Better Way

for MMI Agency Clients & Friends

The Same Professional Personnel & Local Service Continues.

Ken L. Williams
President

Herb Dearmin, Account Executive

Carol Cornelius, Service Manager
Teresa Carden, Receptionist

Putting on Long Pants

During the past twelve years the MMI Agency has been like a 'little brother' of Marketing Management, Inc. The bigger they have gotten and the more national in scope they have become, the harder it is for us to work in their shadow, keep our own identity, and improve our local service.

The Better Way

Until now we have served you well as the MMI Agency, but on April 1, 1983 we became ALABAMA INSURANCE EXCHANGE. The main changes are: a new name to establish local identity; more diversified services and products; increased competitive savings for you . . . our client; and continued competent, professional, local service.

Moving Out of the Shadow

We are still next door to MMI, and we will always have their 'family' support. But, Alabama Insurance Exchange is breaking ground very soon for our new office building on Valleydale Road in Pelham. We plan to move this September, and send you an invitation to attend our Open House celebration.

Our Philosophy . . .

. . . is that company/client relationships, like good friendships, should always stay in a state of repair. We are doing this by serving you THE BETTER WAY.

ALABAMA INSURANCE EXCHANGE

Mountain ens want am sewer

by Bert Seaman

om Oak Mountain Estates demand-ent from the Pelham City Council n their neighborhood.

And that's what they ended up with at the conclusion of Monday night's council meeting.

After an hour and a half of discussion, Councilman John Tanner finally made the motion to apply for discretionary funds -- amounting to $350,000 -- from the governor.

At the urging of the 35 or more residents who attended the meeting, Councilman Willard Payne said the council would try and come up with some definite plans on how to go about getting the system.

The ideas the council come up with, including where funding might be obtained, will be presented at the next meeting on July 11.

Residents of the subdivision said they have been enduring the problems of sewage seeping through the ground and backing up into their homes for years.

Judge charges truck owner with contempt

Trucking line owner Tony Hall was found in contempt of court for not removing his rigs from a Montevallo neighborhood.

Circuit Judge Robert Armstrong Tuesday ordered Hall to pay the city $350 in attorneys' fees, and ordered him -- again -- to move all traces of his trucking bsiness from his property on Shelby Street in Montevallo.

Armstrong issued a similar order April 6. But this time, he warned that if the trucks, stored diesel fuel and all equipment isn't gone by Saturday, Hall will also face a $25 a day fine.

Ruby Devinner who lives next door to Hall's business, said, "I am glad. I am well pleased" with the judgment.

She said she hopes the long struggle between Hall and the City of Montevallo will soon be over, and she'll be able to eat supper without tasting diesel fumes in her food.

Hall has parked his diesel tractor - trailer rigs on Shelby Street next door to Devinner's frame house. For two years, she and other neighbors have complained about the noise, fumes and traffic.

Montevallo officials tried to enforce zoning laws that prohibit trucks in residential areas, but had no success.

On April 6, the circuit court ordered Hall to move the trucks and stop doing business in Montevallo.

The trucks stayed.

Finally, Tuesday morning, two months after its original ruling, the court found Hall in contempt.

"Since he wouldn't listen to the city, then the court had to do the right thing," Devinner told the Reporter. "I couldn't even enjoy my own home."

Hall, however, was not pleased.

In court, his lawyer accused the city of being obstructionist. "Tony had made a good faith effort to move the trucks. He can only do the best he can," he said.

Hall told Armstrong that as soon as he was ordered to move the trucks in April, he leased the old Sherman Holland Ford property on Main Street. Hall wanted to park his trucks there, but city laws would not allow him to use the property as a truck terminal.

City administrator Don Hughes said that the zoning for the Ford property allowed only the same kind of business Holland had run -- selling and repairing cars and trucks.

Hall said he began preparing land outside the city limits in the Industrial Park. But apparently the land, sold to him by the city's Industrial Development Board, has too many easements on it to allow an office to be built.

So he's stuck, he said.

He told Armstrong he could move his trucks to the old Ford lot by dinner time, if the city would let him. But Hughes made it clear the city wouldn't allow that.

The judge gave Hall until Saturday to clear the Shelby Street lot, or face the $25 a day fine.

After the courtroom cleared, Hall said he knew

Alabaster residents protest housing authority

by Sally Sears

When Birmingham lawyer John Fox moved his family to Alabaster a few years ago, he bought a nice house in a subdivision. So did John Medaris, another lawyer from Birmingham. So did Richard Shuleva, a lawyer from New York.

And on a rainy Monday night, all three lawyers came to the Alabaster City Council meeting to say they like Alabaster the way it is, and don't want any changes in their neighborhoods: Meadowlark, Kingwood, Port South.

The issue that brought out the 3 lawyers and 50 other neighbors is the old struggle of building low-cost housing near middle-income neighborhoods.

Most of them moved to Alabaster recently, many fleeing the urban problems of Jefferson County. They all agree that developing multi-family housing near their subdivisions is a terrible idea.

The argument Monday night was one-sided.

No one raised the question of Alabaster's need for moderate and low income housing. No one asked if town houses or condominium development might bring welcomed newcomers to town. But even without any real opposition, the issue was not completely buried.

The immediate concern is a piece of land west of U.S. 31, called Willow Creek. According to Alabaster officials, developer Chuck Coffee is planning condominiums and town houses for the 50 or so lots in Willow Creek.

But the tight financial market is said to be giving Coffee a hard time developing the land, so he asked Alabaster to set up a housing authority, which could issue him low-interest bonds.

That could mean houses costing up to $73 thousand, which would be sold to anyone whose income is less than $38 thousand, according to Palmer O'Barr, spokesman for the developer.

But the neighbors said clearly Monday that they don't want the city to form the housing authority to issue those bonds. They say the bonds would lead to low-income people, and eventually lower the value of their houses.

Medaris said he didn't like the increase in density of people in the area that Willow Creek could mean.

Building bill sails in senate, but...

from staff reports

The state senate gave unanimous approval Tuesday to a bill giving Shelby County authority to issue construction permits and inspect buildings.

But the bill may be heading for trouble next door because Representative Don Murphy said he opposes it.

According to State Senator Spencer Bachus, the legislation -- which applies the Southern Building Code and the National Electrical Code to construction projects in Shelby County -- passed Tuesday afternoon on an unusual 23-0 vote.

Bachus, who introduced the bill, told the Reporter that unanimous approval of a local bill is uncommon. It shows "the Senate sees the need and...the merit of bill."

Apart from commercial construction, the bill also contains optional application to residential construction in Shelby County. This optional application is being left up to the county commission to decide.

Commissioner Harold Davenport told the Reporter that he felt all contractors building in Shelby County should be required to have permits and follow the codes. (He noted that an individual wouldn't need a permit to add a room to his own house.)

"I know of nine homes in the north end of Shelby County built by Jefferson County builders, and there was no inspection at all. Once a house is up, you can cover shoddy work."

But the mention of shoddy work rubs Don Murphy the wrong way.

For starts, Murphy told the Reporter Tuesday morning, "I don't know of any shoddy buildings or any shoddy builders. They got wiped out in the economic crunch."

Citing the midrise building going up in Inverness, EBSCO's elaborate headquarters on U.S. 280, and other office buildings going up in the county, Murphy

Figures supplied by Shelby County Board of Education

by David F. Moore

The California Achievement Test is a yardstick for measuring students' skills in reading, language, math, and spelling.

According to this yardstick, Shelby County public school students are on the academic upswing.

Furthermore, the 1983 Shelby County CAT scores not only surpass score averages across the state, but -- with one exception -- they top national averages as well.

The standard form tests, which have been used for years in Alabama schools and numerous other states, are designed to show grade placement equivalents, or just how much a child has learned so far that year.

The tests are given in April for two hours a day during a three-day period.

Since the test is given in April -- the seventh month of the school year -- the national average is computed by adjusting the average of all CAT scores to the seventh month level for a given grade. Therefore, the national average for the first grade is figured at 1.7, the second grade at 2.7, the tenth grade at 10.7.

George Daily, county coordinator of secondary education, tallied the most recent CAT results and released them last week to the Reporter, along with state and national averages.

A meeting of the 23 county principals will be called in early August to discuss overall scores at each school, Daily said.

Individual student's scores are expected to be sent home with the first report card in the fall. After that, parents and teachers will be able to discuss any problems a student might have.

Daily attributed the upswing in local scores to numerous factors:

- Increased class time in math, language and reading
- Improved materials and methods used in teaching the basic skills
- Increased expenditures for text books and curriculum guides
- Initiation of academic competition and recognition
- More parental involvement in most schools

Also, Daily added, "I think kids are smarter than people credit them."

"We put a lot of emphasis on the test," he continued. "Everybody's been working on them."

As a yardstick, Daily said that the CAT scores allow educators to find weaknesses and concentrate on them. They also indicate strong points.

The spelling category for 10th graders was the one area in which county students averaged lower than the national scores. These scores reflected a grade placement equivalent to the fifth month -- two months below the national average.

The highest county scores over the national average were made by 8th graders in the language category. According to CAT scores, after seven months in the 8th grade, these Shelby County students have the equivalent language skills of a 10th grader in the seventh month -- a full two years better than the national average.

Shelby County language skills across the seven grades tested, averaged the equivalent of one year and three months above the national average.

Local reading and math skills for all seven grades averaged six and a half months above the same national average. Local spelling skills across the board averaged nearly one year above the national average.

Although most of the county schools scored above state and local averages, some apparently did not.

Daily, however, refused to release overall CAT scores for each school, saying such publicity could be detrimental to the attitudes of students at below average schools.

Too, some grades at some schools apparently scored below their 1982 counterparts.

"Last year you might have had a smarter group of kids coming through a particular grade," he said. Such factors could reflect poorly on a school, even though its teaching may have actually improved.

Daily said scores for another yardstick -- the Alabama Basic Competency tests, which were given at the same time as the CAT -- would be tallied soon.

County tangles with computer confusion

by Fred Guarino

Before the Shelby County Commission decides what to do about its computer system, Harold Davenport and Leon Archer will have something to say about it.

For the past two months, the commission has been torn between buying a new minicomputer system or upgrading its Burroughs computer.

The commission has also been weighing the possibility of putting the property portion of the tax assessor's office on the state system.

But even though the commissioners voted to reject all new computer bids and agreed to hire a consultant for three months, there seems to be confusion in the courthouse on exactly what the county is doing.

It is that confusion which Archer and Davenport mean to eliminate.

As a beginning:

Davenport contends that Archer's motion to hire a "consultant" was misunderstood.

According to Davenport, the commission thought that he and Archer were supposed to hire an expert to recommend either a system change or the upgrading of the Burroughs.

However, Davenport stated in a Reporter interview that he and Archer meant simply to get a computer programmer to look at the Burroughs.

The programmer was only to tell them what the machine can or cannot do, and to get costs on what it would take to get everything up and running on "what we've got."

Davenport opposes the proposed five separate computer mini system. "We feel like a central location is very important."

He and Archer intend to make the final recommendation themselves, and "Whatever we recommend, we'll know what we are talking about," Davenport said.

"We wondered why we didn't get everything 'on line' (on the Burroughs) before now. "We thought maybe our computer was too small," he continued. "In checking, we've found out that we've got a lot of machine.

"We'll look at one central location...getting everything on line, including the branch office...lock and key."

"I think we will find out that the cost of getting the current system upgraded will be a lot different than the $450,000 cost of a new system," he stressed,

Davenport indicated that once the Burroughs goes completely on line, fewer personnel may be needed in the data center -- which could save enough money in salaries to pay for the cost.

Changing systems completely, would cost a fortune.

Breaking the Burroughs contract alone would cost the county $80,000 to $90,000 and the purchase of a new system would add another $450,000 price tag, he said.

Furthermore, "I can see a lot of problems with five computers in five different locations."

Davenport said he and Archer would look at every possible angle, including the denial of Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds' wish to go on the state system.

"It may not be as cheap as she thinks," he said.

Alabaster

Fox was even more direct. "It would diminish every home value in Alabaster," he said. "Once you open the door, you harbor a potential disaster. Ask the people who live in Birmingham!"

After a dozen similar comments, Alabaster mayor Doc Rubin asked if any council member would like to make a motion to appoint a housing authority.

No one moved.

He asked a second, and a third time -- Still, no council member moved. The crowd applauded.

Council member Calvin McCune smiled and said "I guess we'll be called a do-nothing council now."

So, apparently there will be no housing authority. But the question of multi-family housing did not go away.

After the meeting, one city official pointed out that every apartment complex in town has a long waiting list, that people from all over Birmingham want to move to Alabaster, and few can afford $100 thousand homes.

Rubin referred to the city's growing pains. Privately other council members agreed that the most recent people to move to an area are usually the first to try to close the door to more newcomers.

Before O'Barr left the meeting, he told the group Willow Creek was dead. He said the lots there are too expensive, even if the low-interest bonds could be issued.

But interest rates change, or if housing gets even more competitive in Alabaster, the owners could build Willow Creek without government help.

Some neighbors Monday were unhappy enough at the thought of multi-family housing to plan to change the zoning out from under the developers.

Others leaving the council meeting Monday were simply relieved that the council had squelched the idea of a housing authority. That, one couple said, was enough of a victory for one night.

Pelham

At the last council meeting, the group who attended asked Mayor Burk Dunaway to find out how much it would cost to get the subdivision on the sewer system.

The project, the mayor reported Monday, would carry a $1.3 million price tag.

Work in the sub-division, he said, would cost $550,000, with the added cost of $250,000 for hooking onto the existing system.

Some residents questioned the need for expanding the capacity of the present 100,000 gallon treatment plant which would tack on another $300,000.

But the Mayor said the present plant would be overloaded if everyone available to the system hooked on.

Some residents asked Dunaway to find out the cost of using pumps instead of the gravity flow system recommended by the city's engineer.

"I don't care if you tote it in buckets," demanded one of the more outspoken residents. "When is it going to be done?"

Members of the audience also questioned the council about how an additional one cent sales tax was being used.

Dunaway explained that the $600,000, that the tax brings in annually, is used to maintain the sewer system and pay off the five-year bond issue that was floated in order to build it.

With three years to go on paying off the bonds, Dunaway said there is the possibility of refinancing it at a lower interest rate.

"Well if you want Pelham to be anything more than a stinkpot, we have to have sewerage!" declared one resident in an attempt to impress the council with how serious the situation is.

Building

said construction here -- where it was begining to happen again -- was anything but shoddy.

Furthermore, he said, it's because Shelby County has no costly building inspections that many companies choose to locate here.

Beside the fees, inspection calls that are answered several days after they're requested, hold up work and cost money, too.

"We need more thought on the building inspection bill," he insisted. "If we were an Atlanta or Jefferson County, it might be different..."

Presently, only homes built in several of Shelby County's municipalities, or built on loans from the Farmers Home Administration or the V.A., are required to have inspections.

Davenport said that if the idea was explained properly to other county commissioners, he could see no reason for them to object to the residential construction application of the Bachus bill.

Helena group organizes to give perpetual cemetery care

The maintenance of Helena's cemetery is now in the hands of a group organized for that purpose.

At Monday night's meeting, the council passed a resolution to turn over the responsibility for the upkeep of the cemetery to the Perpetual Care Association.

The association is made up of families whose relatives are buried in the cemetery, and who want better maintenance than the city has been able to provide.

An annual fee will be charged to pay for the upkeep.

In other business, the council granted a change of zoning to James Patton. His property in Liberty Heights was changed from R-3 to A-1 so mobile homes could be placed there.

Judy Gilbert from Shelby Youth Services and the Attention Home attended the meeting to bring the council up to date on finances, and the number of young people receiving services from those agencies.

Trucker

what he was going to do. His attorney, however, encouraged him not to say anything else.

"The city had every confidence that the court would back up its own order," Hughes said. "We hope there won't be any more inconvenience to the folks who live around Shelby Street. And we hope the $25 a day fine is going to be enough to encourage Mr. Hall to obey the court."

But although council member Billie Lacey was glad to hear the judgment, she said, "I doubt the fine will be much incentive."

Mrs. Devinner, the woman whose family has lived with the trucks now for two years, said, "We won't believe the trucks are gone until we see it happen."

Vandiver barbeque:

Makes a big splash

Vandiver turned out en masse Saturday for the annual community-wide barbeque. While some played softball, Dennis Feltman and Billy Kelly barbequed pork and others played music. Vandiver and Chelsea firemen battled in a water contest, but before long the kids took over the hose for the highlight of the day. Over $1,500 was cleared for the fire department--more than was made in the last two years.

Heflin speaks at courthouse

Economy up; danger brews

by David F. Moore

He might possibly have made it as a comedian. Or even a preacher. But instead Howell Heflin made it as a Democratic U.S. Senator from Alabama, and Wednesday morning he was in Columbiana for a town meeting.

The message Howell Heflin delivered -- after a warmup of jokes -- before some 50 citizens in the courthouse was basically twofold:

•The economy is on the upswing.

•There's more danger brewing in Central America and El Salvador than the average citizen is aware of.

"You're growing," he said of Shelby County. "Before long, people may be saying Jefferson County is an annex to you."

"I see good signs on the horizon for the economy. Prospects of a rebound are good," he said, noting increases in housing starts and sales, and drops in inflation.

Still, he continued, unemployment is very bad, and, nationally, gas prices jumped 12.7 cents last month.

The secret to encouraging the rebound lies in keeping interest rates low, he said.

Most of the 35-minute talk focused on the international scene. "All Central America is ripe for revolution," Heflin warned.

The stage, he said, is set by Russia's historic "modus operandi" of supporting facist governments, training and supplying guerrilla armies, and depriving a country's people of human rights.

Central America's history of "banana revolutions," its poverty and lack of any real middle class, breed the sort of dictatorships that Russia takes advantage of, Heflin explained.

U.S. intelligence has determined that the Russian and/or Cubans have 2,000 military advisors in Nicarauga training an army of 25,000 troops and a militia force of 50,000. On the other hand, Heflin continued, the U.S. has only 55 advisors in Honduras.

"But history has shown that you can't impose democracy on another country," he insisted. "We should never lose sight of that."

Today's ability to launch nuclear warheads from mobile sights adds heavily to Central America's danger potential, the senator said.

Heflin backs Reagan's Central American policies, and said in the long run naval and air blockades may be the answer to preventing the establishment of another Russian stronghold such as Cuba.

In response to a question from the audience, Heflin said he couldn't commit himself to a particular set of circumstances that would resort in sending troops to Central America.

On other topics, Heflin said:

•He gets more letters on the proposed 10% automatic savings withholdings, than any other issue. "It's a peoples' issue, not a bankers' issue... but it will probably pass with some form of relief, such as postponement for three to four years."

•Inter-service rivalries and duplication waste millions of dollars in defense spending. "Good management could save a lot of money, but we do need to go through (military) revitalization."

•Military strength is essential to maintaining peace, but a verifiable, cheat-proof arms limitation treaty is also needed.

•Protection of life is a state function, and abortion issues will probably revert back to the states, eventually. "Some protection of life is needed at every stage of life, but a lot of exceptions should be allowed," in abortion cases involving health matters or rape.

•"It's to our advantage to receive federal money for education, but we object to many of the controls." Those controls, however, are disappearing, while our needs for more aid -- especially to boost math and science -- is increasing.

Heflin's talk followed a 9:30 a.m. reception in the courthouse hallway. He was introduced by Probate Judge Tommy Snowden and refreshments were cooked and served by Gail Reagan and Sue Attaway.

Town meeting

Alabama Senator Howell Heflin paid a visit to the Shelby County Courthouse last week while Congress was in recess. One of the issues he addressed was federal funding of educational programs -- and the strings attached. Among the fifty or so people who turned out for the 'town meeting' was incoming education superintendent Ellie Glasscox. (Photo by David F. Moore)

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

I think they have more fun than any folks I know, those old folks who come back to Wilsonville every year to talk and eat and remember. And I don't know of another old gink who would enjoy it more than I do, especially the eating. But let's just remember today, each in his own fashion. We tried to remember what we were doing fifty years ago on May 29.

Irene Lindsey Mahler: "Working in Montgomery as Dental Assistant."

Thelma Vardaman: "Keeping house and tending the babies."

Theron Minor Holcombe: "Raising a family."

Kathleen Ray: "Practicing music."

Olga Mooney Tyler: "Rearing a three year old son."

Mark Swindall: "Chopping cotton."

Audrey Swindall: "Playing dolls."

Mrs. R. R. Roberson: "Keeping house."

H.G. McEwen: "Carrying the mail."

Mansel Wolf: "Wearing patched overalls and farming."

Malcom Ray: "Chopping Cotton."

Thelma McEwen Ray: "Working in garden."

Oland Smith: "Taking off my shoes for the summer."

Marshall Wolf: "I was in the field trying to help the family live."

Randy McDonald: "If I had been here--"

Frank Chambers: "Planning a trip to the World's Fair in Chicago. Trip cost $20."

Jim Story: "Fishing. After surviving a World War and a Korean War and a great Depression, I'd like to tell young folks not to worry. Things work out."

Mrs. Jim Story: "Probably playing with dolls."

Louise Jackson Johnson: "Down town watching the dude go by."

Forrest Johnson: "Getting grass out of my cotton."

William F. Miller: "What does an 18 month old do?"

Joan Carlson: "Hoeing cotton."

Minnie Story: "Playing the piano."

Rushin Roberson: "Working in Pope's Store."

Buster Payne: "Lived in Geraldine, Ala."

Forrest Jackson: "Trying to figure some way to beat the Columbiana baseball team."

Boy! What a way to spend a day. Maybe the very best way I know.

U.S. Sen. John Glenn or former Vice President Walter Mondale would defeat President Ronald Reagan in Alabama if the election were held today. That is what a survey conducted by the Capstone Poll indicates.

The survey was done during the period of April 26-May 11, and involved interviews by phone with 516 adult Alabamians.

Glenn, the former space hero, was by far the strongest of contenders. He would defeat Reagan by a 51%-to-34% margin according to the poll. Mondale's lead was 45%-to-40%.

Reagan ran much stronger against other Democratic hopefuls -- Alan Cranston, Gary Hart, Reuben Askew and Ernest Hollings.

Dr. Patrick Cotter, director of the Capstone Poll (which is jointly sponsored by two agencies of the University of Alabama), said the name-identification factor no doubt contributed to the strong showing of Glenn and Mondale.

When those polled were asked to identify the six Democratic contenders, 72% correctly identified Glenn and 63% identified Mondale. Less than a fourth of those surveyed knew who the other four contenders were.

* * * *

Odds and Ends -- Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley has already made the announcement that he will be a candidate for governor in 1986. That may set a record for early announcements...

Rumors persist that Gov. Wallace has reached an accomodation with the Legislature -- if the lawmakers will pass his tax-raising bills (enhancements, they are called), he will delay in setting a date for the special legislative election, so there will not be time for a primary. This would mean the Democratic incumbents would be "hand-picked" and the nominees would be spared a primary election..

A federal court has ruled that death by electrocution is not "cruel and unusual punishment." In the aftermath of the electrocution of John Louis Evans III there were demands to discontinue this method of carrying out the death penalty.

The ruling very likely will impact on a measure pending in the Legislature to change the method of execution to lethal injection. That measure is now not likely to pass...

As of last Friday, the 1983 regular session of the Legislature had enacted but one statewide bill into law, although more than 1,000 had been introduced. While this might seem like a terrible batting average, there are some who hold to the view that the fewer new laws that are enacted the better it is.

Deputies thanked

Letter to the editor:

So often we find ourselves criticizing our law officers for what they fail to do, and then forget to give praise where it is due. Recently, our church had a break-in, which was reported to the police department. Within a matter of a few days, the stolen property was recovered and those responsible taken into custody. We would like to commend Sgt. Tom Smitherman, Wayne Watts and Gene Hamby for their quick and efficient action in this matter.

Thanks to you all for a job well done. We appreciate all efforts made in this case and all matters of law enforcement to make Shelby County a better place in which to live.

Sheriff's blotter report

Someone may have been getting prepared to celebrate the Fourth of July.

At any rate, fireworks were stolen from Sky Rockets Fireworks in Shelby on June 1.

Other burglaries listed on the Sheriff's department blotter between May 31 and June 5 are: $20 taken from the Coke box at Ace Body Shop on Valleydale Road; various items stolen during a break-in at Avery Crossroads Grocery in Shelby; items stolen from the Crystal Petroleum Co. at Moore's Crossroads.

The theft of a gun from a Columbiana residence was also reported.

Billy Wayne Johnson tried to escape from the Shelby County Jail, but was captured before leaving the grounds.

Felony arrests listed on the blotter reports include:

Stephen Max Brown, Alabaster, sentenced to serve time on burglary 3rd degree; Willie Namon Johnson Sr., Calera, alias 2nd theft; Tom G. Evans Jr. of Siluria, 1st degree theft; Mitchell Tyler, Bessemer, grand jury indictment, theft 2nd degree; Billy Ray Burner of Montgomery, DUI and other charges;

In other reports: five cases of criminal mischief were reported; two cases of vandalism; three family disturbances; one neighbor dispute; an obscene language complaint, an obscene phone call and a threatening phone call.

A boat and trailer were reported stolen from an Alabaster resident; six pieces of pipe were reported stolen from in front of a North Shelby County home; two reports of individuals driving off without paying for gas; a vehicle belonging to a Birmingham man was found burned in Boothton.

A missing persons report was filed on a Calcis man; an assault and menacing report was filed by a Montevallo woman.

Charge dismissed

Bookstore operator Majorie Puckett is still having problems with business, even though Alabaster Judge Joel Watson dismissed charges against her last month.

She was charged with selling pornographic material (a men's magazine) to a minor.

She claimed she had not sold the magazine to the Thompson Middle School student.

Even before the case was dismissed, Puckett told the Reporter she had removed most of this type of magazine from her store, saying the move cost her several hundred dollars a month in sales.

The two men's magazines she still stocks have wrappers on the cover, she said, with no one under the age of 18 allowed to look at, read or purchase one.

When Puckett's case came up in municipal court, her lawyer and the plaintiff were unable to reach an agreement.

The judge continued the case to allow the defense to draw up an agreement which was presented at last month's session.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Shells. I can still see them - even when I close my eyes.

They're little and big. All sizes and shapes.

However, most of the ones I picked up on the Florida beach where I vacationed were teeny, tiny.

I'm not kidding. At this place, the ocean must have washed in the world's smallest shells.

How I ever spotted them on the sand without my spectacles, I'll never know.

If you're wondering why I was such an avid shell collector, it's because I found it was the best way to spend the time at the beach.

As you may gather, I'm not a beach nut. But a trip there is better than a trip nowhere, and that was my other alternative.

Maybe it wouldn't be so bad if I could go to the beach in somebody else's skin.

My hide breaks out in something that looks like the hives when I get too much sunshine.

However, I couldn't get out of the sun altogether. I still had to romp on the beach and in the surf with my granddaughter.

But I persuaded her shelling was more fun, so we spent a lot of time in pursuit of those small but intriguing objects.

As we tromped up and down the beach, I tried to protect as much of myself as possible with a wide brimmed hat and a shirt.

Our big expedition of the day took place early in the morning, before the sun's harmful rays began their attack.

Laden with containers for our haul, we'd make our way down the 54 steps from our cottage and hit the beach with a brisk stride.

You'd think we'd found gold when one of us spotted a bunch of shells.

Sometimes we'd get so absorbed in our task, I don't think we'd have noticed if a thundering herd of walruses had stampeded down the beach.

Even though both of us searched diligently for a sand dollar, the best we could find was pieces of that object.

My daughter recalled that she used to make mosaics with the broken pieces so we brought her as many as we could find.

But somehow, forming the fragments into patterns and glueing them on driftwood, seemed to have lost all its appeal for her.

We'd even had a name all picked out for the enterprise. It was to have been called "Mommy's Mosiacs."

So my willing helper and I decided we'd just do it ourselves.

We thought our creations were masterpieces.

In fact, we were so proud of the results we were inspired to glue our shells on everything we could lay our hands on.

My daughter jokingly suggested we sell our work to Julie McGee at the corner store.

I was never sure if there really was such a person, but my granddaughter had no doubt that not only was there a Julie McGee, but she was convinced old Julie would snap up our shell pictures without hesitation.

I finally persuaded the little one that our "originals" would make dandy gifts for the folks at home.

Now that we're home though, I don't have the nerve to present them to anyone.

However, I still think they're great.

And who knows - Julie McGee might have liked them too.

Problems

Johnny Lynn used a large rock to block the Helena overflow valve that lets sewage into his yard. City officials came out and moved the rock, however. Last year the Lynns and other Brandywine residents took their problem to city hall, but they say it didn't help much. (Photo by David F. Moore)

Brandywine sewage makes life nasty

by David F. Moore

It's a generalization, but no doubt true: "Nobody likes raw sewage running out on their property."

The statement comes from Helena resident Joyce Lynn, who lives with her husband, Johnny, and their two teenagers in the Brandywine subdivision. A city sewage pumping station is located next door to their house.

According to the Lynns, the overflow valve from the station is actually located on their property. When hard rains come -- as often they do -- the valve opens, and out floats the sewage.

It is, they say, a nasty problem.

But that's not all of it.

The overflow valve is located in a drainage ditch the Lynns say is a city right of way. The ditch runs the length of the subdivision.

The ditch doesn't drain properly, though. When the rains come, the drainage water -- along with the sewage from the valve and all sorts of articles that wash down from the neighborhood -- floods their back yard, washing away the dirt and landscaping.

When it doesn't rain, the ditch water stagnates. The Lynns hate it, but the mosquitoes don't.

But that's not all of it.

The mosquitoes also love the tall grass behind the fence surrounding the pumping station.

"They should call that varmint country out there," says Joyce, pointing to the miniature jungle that begins on the other side of the small drainage ditch. "I bet there's big gopher rats, snakes..."

These problems are not new. The Lynns found out about them shortly after moving into Brandywine in July, 1980.

"I used to keep the grass cut over there," says Johnny, "just because of the mosquitoes. They eat us up. But now it's so overgrown it tears up my lawn mower."

"The ditch used to run off behind the pump," he continues. "But it's slowly eaten its way through my backyard."

All this adds up to a lot of property damage, he says.

Furthermore, the problem is, to some extent, community-wide -- especially with the mosquitoes. In fact, last year the Lynns and several neighbors, armed with a Brandywine petition, sought help from the city council.

Their immediate success was marginal. There was no long range success.

The day after that council meeting, the Lynns said councilmen James Kwater and Bill Harris came out and surveyed the problems.

The next day, a man came out and cut the grass. Another time a man came with a backhoe, but the Lynns were not home. "He promised he'd come back, but he never showed," says Johnny.

"We called the county health department when the sewage was coming out, but it takes two or three days for them to get here," they say. "By then, it's not coming out."

So far this year, they say no one's even been out to cut the jungle. The mosquitoes are still there and so is the raw sewage.

"If the city would just meet us half-way with the problems..." muses Johnny. "But they won't even keep the grass cut."

UM boiler takes exam

Smoke belched out of the University of Montevallo's wood chip boiler when it was started up Monday for the university's summer session. An audience was on hand to observe the show, too.

Among the observers was inspector Don Gore from Alabama Clean Air.

However, according to city administrator Don Hughes, the boiler's smoke is a normal occurrence when the machinery is first turned on.

At the urging of area residents, city officials had asked Gore to observe the boiler in action, and to make recommendations for any necessary adjustments.

Gore had made no such recommendations by press time Tuesday.

Complaints about UM boiler have been leveled by residents on nearby Cardinal Crest Road. Noise and smoke are the big problems, they say.

However, city attorneys have advised the city against taking any action until the university has had an opportunity to solve the problem.

One Cardinal Crest Road resident commented how much she enjoyed being out in her yard during the recent interim between terms. During that time the machinery was shut down.

Another homeowner the Reporter talked to echoed those sentiments, saying the noise from the boiler is still annoying despite the installation of a muffler on the machinery.

"We chose to live here because of the peace and quiet," the individual remarked, adding that they never expected to have an "industrial complex" at the end of the street.

While Gore analyzes his data, and Cardinal Crest residents complain, the university is seeking new bids on some of the plans designed to reduce the problems.

Columbiana garbage up in air

There was some discussion about contracting with an outside company for garbage pickup service at Thursday's Columbiana Council meeting.

However, the city will probably continue performing the service itself.

The constant expense of truck repair was one of the reasons the change was considered. So Mayor Buck Falkner agreed to check with several companies on how much they would charge for the service.

But Falkner told the Reporter several council members have since informed him that they thought the city could do the job better than someone else, so they want to stick to the present system.

Columbiana residents now pay a $3 monthly fee for twice weekly back yard garbage pick-up.

A representative of BFI (Browning-Ferris Industries) told the council his company would charge $10 for the type of service now in effect.

At the last meeting, the council also went along with the formality necessary to secure a loan for the water board, by ratifing the membership of the present board.

The board is seeking a FmHA loan for $492,000 to pay for two new wells and connect them to the city's main line in Shelby.

The new wells are located on the Bill Jordan farm just east of State 145 near the junction of County 99.

The wells have been completed and the water board is waiting for the contractor to put up a building, and for the pumps to be installed.

In other business, the council voted to delete six square miles from the area proposed for annexation.

Johnny King, who owns land east of the city in the Kingdom Crossroads area, appeared at the meeting to ask that his property be taken out.

His plans for the land include farming, King informed the council. He said he didn't want to run the risk of not being able to use the land as he saw fit.

The deletion now leaves 30-square miles the city wants to take in to provide for industrial expansion.

Gas rates go down in Calera

For the first time in months, the Calera City Council may find itself on the good side of city residents -- it passed a natural gas rate decrease.

Also at Monday's meeting, the council agreed to:

•Seek an attorney general's opinion on offering fire and rescue protection one and a half miles beyond the city limits.

•Agreed to allow rescue volunteers to shop for raincoats, boots and air packs.

•Reconsidered, and passed a lounge liquor license for the Calera Pub and Grub, allowing it to become a private supper club.

•Agreed to consider recommendations from the Calera Park and Recreation Department on the support of a black baseball team.

For industrial users the reduction amounts to 37 cents/1000 cubic feet. For residential users, the drop will be 24 cents/1000 cubic feet.

The decrease is being passed on from Southern Natural Gas, and is only for the months of June, July, August and September.

SHELBY COUNTY BOARD OF REGISTRARS will be at the FIRST NATIONAL BANK of COLUMBIANA: CAHABA VALLEY - INVERNESS BRANCH on June 23, 1983: 3 p.m.-7 p.m. Anyone who needs to registrar or reidentify may do so at this time.

At 45, Blackerby is a race driving rookie

by Fred Guarino

He's 45 years old. He's married and the father of four children. Despite this "established" lifestyle, Don Blackerby of Calera is seeing a lifelong dream come true on Friday nights in Birmingham.

This year, he is among the rookie drivers barrelling around the 5/8 mile circle track at Birmingham International Raceway (BIR).

After, acknowledging that 45 is not young for a beginner, Blackerby who works by day as personnel director for Elastic Corporation in Columbiana, said recently, "I'm getting in at a time when most folks are getting out."

"At 45 you just don't do this," he beamed with obvious pride. "Richard Petty is not even 45 years-old."

Undaunted by his age, Blackerby drives a 1966 Chevelle he bought off the street and converted into a Limited Sportsman racer with the help of fellow worker Vernon Thomas.

Thomas also leads a double life. At night he's a a race car mechanic for Blackerby, and by day he works as a purchasing agent for Elastic Corporation.

Blackerby and Thomas are not doing too badly in their new double lives.

Out of harm's way

Even though 45 is a little old for a beginning race car driver, Don Blackerby of Calera braves the track at Birmingham International Raceway. While he finds himself having to pass another racer, in this situation, his first year strategy is to stay low, slow and out of the way. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

In their first race ever, Blackerby finished eighth among a field of 23 drivers.

Friday night at BIR, Blakerby drove two races and finished in 11th and 8th place.

Taking into account that the personnel director and purchasing agent skipped the Hobby Class and jumped straight into Limited Sportsman racing, that's no small accomplishment.

The next division up is Grand American racing. That division includes people like Red Farmer, who have been racing for nearly 30 years.

It's also the division from which people like the Allison brothers burst onto the racing scene.

Blackerby is so enthusiastic about racing that he doesn't even rule out the possiblity of making the jump to Grand American some day -- maybe.

How did all of this come about for a man who has held the same peaceful job for 20 years?

"My dad started taking me to this same race track (BIR) in the early 1950's," Balckerby recalled. "I just grew up with the dream."

About the decision to do something about it in 1983, "I guess you realize that if you keep waiting until next year, you just keep getting older and older," he said.

Thomas, who had some previous experience in building drag racers, remembered Blackerby coming into the office one day and saying, "Let's build a round track racer."

No arm twisting was necessary, he said. I just told him, "Alright! Let's do it!"

So where did Blackerby get his driving experience?

The proud driver of Number 66 responded, "On the highways."

However, Blackerby pointed out, "To drive at BIR a person must join NASCAR and must have a valid driver's license."

Reflecting on his highway driving, he added, "That's why I have to go slow...to make sure I keep my license."

Number 66 was not the original designation for Blackerby's vehicle.

A tag on the back of his racing machine, "War Eagle" might be a give-away that the original number was the Auburn score over Alabama, "23".

But Blackerby learned in his first race that the number was already taken, so he changed it to the year model of his car.

"I guess somebody else liked Auburn too," he figured.

Considering that his wife doesn't particularly go for his race driving, the question had to be asked...does he do it for the money?

Blackerby laughed at the thought.

For starts, his car cost him $3,000. He needed a trailer to haul it on and truck to pull it.

Added to that he and Thomas had to strip it inside out, put in a full roll cage, make the engine right and meet all NASCAR rules.

All that added up. And the prize for finishing first place in the Limited Sportsman division was only $200, Friday night.

So much for the money... How about an expensive hobby?

Is it scary to go from highway driving to a race track with cars flying by at 140 miles per hour? Blackerby said yes.

"Going to a race track from the road is like going from daylight to dark. Driving at BIR is a little bit hairy. It's scary alright."

The 45-year old rookie driver admitted honestly, "People come to the races to see the spinning and flipping... But, hey, I do too."

Blackerby and Thomas are marking this year off as a learning experience, and plan to run every Friday night at BIR this season.

Let's go faster

Glad to have survived his third race in the Limited Sportsman Division at BIR without a scratch, "old rookie" Don Blackerby (right) beams as he and his mechanic Vernon Thomas make plans for making Number 66 faster and more competitive.

In Friday night's races they learned that if they pin the back of their vehicle down with screw jacks, and if they lower the car closer to the ground, and if they let some air out of the tires, they can make it hold the track better.

They even learned that their red fire wall was a good idea because you couldn't even see in the engines of some cars with other colors.

Thomas said philosophically of the untimed racing machine, "If we get the car handling better...then we can worry about speed."

Blackerby trailed the pack in his races Friday night. He stayed low on the track and did not try to pass.

But with car after car crashing into each other and numerous caution lights warning of oil and grease on the track, it wasn't too hard to understand his strategy.

If he could just stay in the races and keep his car together, he could at least finish -- thus earning a little pay for his learning efforts.

So that's what Blackerby did Friday. He stayed low, slow and out of the way. In three races, he brought his car across the finish line without a scratch.

Thomas said proudly, the car will go if Blackerby will just "shove it." But he stated that for now, he will just drive each race faster and faster until he can run with the pack.

Thomas also defended his racing buddy by saying, "You have to remember, Don has never driven one of these cars before."

Blackerby pointed out the importance of his slow starts very easily.

After finishing a race which involved several collisions which he easily avoided by going slow, he said:

"There was a cloud of dust out there and I thought for sure there was a car in it. I couldn't do anything but go through. If we had folded up in a cloud of dust we wouldn't have been back until next year, man. We would've had to start all over from scratch."

Besides, he smiled broadly, "I sure thought there was another car in that cloud. It sure did feel good to go through it."

After all of Friday's dust had settled, Blackerby commented, "This is absolutely great. It's a dream come true. Everyone should have a dream."

'County gang'

Don Blackerby is just one of many Shelby Countians who have been bitten by racing fever.

David Adams of Calera runs in the Hobby Division at BIR.

Dave Mader of Maylene and Hut Strickland of Calera run in the Grand American Division.

Along with Blackerby: Curtis Barrett of Helena, Tommy Payton of Calera, Alvin Lee Wallace of Alabaster and John Ward all run the Limited Sportsman division.

Columbiana shoots high for recreation grant funds

If Columbiana's most recent grant application is funded there will be plenty of space for townspeople to "get up and go."

The $50,000 recreation grant the city is going after would provide a place for sports activities in the vicinity of Columbiana Middle School and on land adjoining the city park.

A $30,000 direct grant that has also been applied for would make it possible to landscape the facilities at the park.

At Thursday's council meeting, Councilwoman Jessie Jones reported that $20,000 of the money from the recreation grant would be used for the community recreation area at the middle school, and $30,000 would be used for expanding activities around the park.

The city's part in the matching grant will be purchasing 15-18 acres of land in the area of the city park.

Jones said the property owner has expressed an interest in selling the land to the city, but no formal agreement has been reached yet.

In case the deal falls through, Jones said the city could still go ahead with the middle school project which would mean coming up with the $20,000 match.

If all goes well, and the city acquires the land adjoining the park, a lighted baseball field for adults would be built, and a multi-purpose playing field for softball practice, baseball, soccer and touch football.

There would also be a serpentine trail of asphalt, eight feet wide, to be used for biking and nature walks.

A parking area is also in the plans, Jones said.

At the middle school, money would be used for two practice softball fields on which teams could also play touch football and soccer.

The placement of covered pipes beneath the surface of the ground would also make it possible for ten badminton courts to be placed there.

On the northeast side of the school -- adjacent to the present basketball courts -- more basketball courts would be put in, and poles erected for a lighted tennis and badminton court.

The ten people who attended the public hearing all expressed approval for the recreation plans.

The $30,000 direct grant to make the park area more attractive would include sodding and the planting of trees and shrubbery.

Another beautification grant has also been applied for through the Shelby County Commission.

Since the commission had not made application for the $30,000 direct grant which they have the opportunity to apply for, Jones reported they allowed the city to apply in their place.

If the grant is funded, the money would be administered by the Columbiana Beautification Board.

Board members have been making plans to plant trees and shrubbery in appropriate spaces between the courthouse and library.

The project would not take up any parking spaces.

State gives bass fishing a boost

Bass fishermen in Shelby County who go for really big largemouths have a bright future ahead of them.

The Marion Fish Hatchery released 38,650 fingerling Floriday Largemouth Bass into Beeswax Creek for the State Department of Conservation, Friday.

After a check on water oxygen content at the Beeswax public boat launch, biologist aid Richard Christeson shot the future catches into the creek.

Christeson said of the creek, "The water is just about the same as that in our tank and that's ideal."

While some of the fingerlings met untimely deaths at the bite of blue gills around the launch, Christeson said of the others, "They'll find a place to hide and do just fine."

Mets meet match at last

The undefeated Mets finally fell to the Minor League Cubs in Alabaster, last week.

The Cubs took the mets 8-5.

Coaches Ricky Douglas and Brad Tracey credit sheer determination to win as their key element of success.

Douglas had praise for newly developed pitcher Brian Weaks, who not only did a good job on the mound but batted a triple in the third inning to score three runs.

Key defensive players were Chris Pigg, Michael Getchel, Chris Smith, Brian Young and Brian Boyington.

Offensively, Weaks, Young, Getdchel and Keith Roddam were standouts.

All-Stars battle at UM

The South All-Stars proved too tough for the North in the First Annual Alabama Junior College Conference All-Star game, Wednesday, June 1.

UM baseball coach Bob Riesener found out that his school would host the event ten days before it was scheduled to take place.

But, he got the word out well enough to attract pro scouts from the Boston Red Sox, Atlanta Braves, Los Angeles Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals, Tonronto Blue Jays, Pittsburg Pirates, Baltimore Orioles and the San Francisco Giants.

Homemakers remember

Reminiscing was the order of the day as members of Pelham Homemaker's Extension Club met recently at the home of Margaret Stokely in Indian Hills.

The Pelham club was organized in 1938 under the name of Pelham Homemaker's Club and has met monthly since that date.

Members reflected on the changes in programs from the founding date to the present. Among those discussed were "mattress making" presented in the 30's, and "property rights for women" in the 80's.

Fifteen of the 31 active members hold membership in the state extension organization.

He joins four other UM signers this year.

UM professor to direct Miss Alabama pageant

Dr. John Rude of the University of Montevallo has been named director/stage manager of the 1983 Miss Alabama Pageant. The contest selects the state's representative to the Miss America Pageant.

Rude, a member of the Department of Communication Arts faculty, has been involved in beauty pageants in Alabama for a number of years.

"I've been involved in judging pageants throughout the state for about five years now," he said. "Charles Harbour (chairman of the Montevallo Department of Communication Arts) and I are both 'star' judges."

A "star" judge is one who has trained for pageant work. "You have to attend a training session with a mock pageant. You are constantly reminded that it is not a beauty pageant but a talent competition and scholarship competition that you are judging," Rude said.

The Miss Alabama Pageant is scheduled June 8-11 at the Birmingham-Jefferson County Civic Center. Rude said 70 girls are entered in this year's pageant for which he has prepared two detailed scripts.

He has been on the faculty of the University of Montevallo since 1977, and recently received a promotion to associate professor and also tenure.

In addition to this involvement in speech and theatre activities, he is also a certified basketball official for both high schools and small colleges. He is now in his third year as president of the Jefferson County Officials Association.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Doing Good!

Heb. 5:8-9 "though he was a Son, yet learned obedience by the things which he suffered; and having been made perfect, he became unto all them that obey him the author of eternal salvation".

Jas. 4:17 "To him therefore that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin."

It's a wonderful thing to learn of Christ, however being a disciple of Christ means abiding in, (being in harmony with) His word, John 8:31.

John 14:15 "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments."

do you love him? ? ? ? WHAT COMMANDEMENTS DO YOU KEEP? ? ? ? ?

Test your fescue for fungus

Shelby County cattlemen have received a "shot in the arm" from Auburn University.

A Fescue Toxicity Diagnostic Center has been opened.

"We've known for years that cattlemen in Shelby County could do a great job growing fescue. But we've all been often disappointed at the gains cattle made while grazing on fescue," said county extension agent John Jones.

'For years, researchers with the Auburn University Agricultural Experiment Station have known that cattle grazing on fescue usually don't gain as well as laboratory analyses of the forage indicate they should. Problems with animal reproductive performance are also believed to be a related problem.

'About eight years ago, Auburn University Agricultural Experiment Station researchers began making progress toward a solution to this problem. They correlated the poor animal performance with the presence of a fungus which grows inside fescue plants.'

Jones said that since the fungus is believed to be exclusively seed transmitted cattlemen need to be able to check whether seed they plan to use for establishing new pastures is infected.

"Our office has full details on how to collect fescue tissue samples for testing," Jones said.

Old Chapel, yesterday...

During some 165 years of existence, congregations at Old Chapel Church near Wilsonville have met in five different buildings. The fourth church (photo circa 1937), which featured the arched twin doorway which can be seen in the present day building, was destroyed by fire in 1962.

...and today

The sign says the church was founded in 1830, but subsequent research suggests the church predates Alabama's 1819 statehood. In recognition of this, Annie H. Morris (center) presented a plaque to the church on May 29, 1983. Participating in the special event were (from left) pianist Jane M. Dillard, song leader Nancy Ray, lay leader James Ray, Jr., pastor Don Irwin, organizer Bobbie Waldrop and chairman of the administrative council Vernon Waldrop. (Photo by David F. Moore)

County's oldest church survives time and fire

by David F. Moore

Thirteen people were at Old Chapel Church near Wilsonville that cool fall Sunday in 1962 when disaster struck.

The propane tank behind the wooden church house sprung a leak and spewed gas on the rear wall of the building. The gas ignited. The church started burning.

Despite the flames and smoke, several women managed to shove the piano up the aisle and out the front doors. But there was little the members could do to save the structure that housed their church.

It was building time -- again.

To date, Old Chapel members have built five different structures to house their church at the corner lot on County 9 near State 25. Still, the church goes on.

Its members will tell you that churches are made of more than brick, lumber and shingle. Fire and time have both failed to destroy the spirit there.

And so it came to pass that the present day brick structure was constructed in early 1963, utilizing the burnt shell of the former building.

Old Chapel continues to function as it has now for some 165 years, according to church researchers. This makes it one of the oldest continuing Protestant churches in Alabama -- and probably the oldest church in Shelby County.

To commemorate this historic distinction, the congregation, led by Rev. Don Irwin, held a special afternoon service on Sunday, May 29, at which time 71-year old membership chairman Annie Morris presented the plaque. The service was preceded by a feast on the grounds.

Eighty-five people are on roll at Old Chapel, but some 100 worshipers attended the special event. Among the guests were Sylacauga district supervisor Rev. Earl Gordon, and former Old Chapel pastors J.C. Hewitt of Gadsden, and Milas Anders of Hartselle.

Both former pastors lead prayers. Retired pastor Robert Mooney, who had been religiously raised at Old Chapel and received his calling to preach while still there, gave the morning sermon.

During the special service lay leader James Ray, Jr., presented a history of the church. He was assisted in his research by Mrs. Nadine Evans of Alabaster, and H.T. Duncan of Birmingham, both of whom had lobbied the church for years to receive the commemorative plaque.

The first recorded Protestant preaching in Shelby County was in 1818 by a Methodist Episcopal minister in Montevallo, according to Ray. Fourmile Baptist Church was established on August, 25, 1824, and the old Spring Creek Baptist Church began in Harpersville in 1825.

"No one knows for sure if the preaching at Old Chapel predates that of Montevallo or not," Ray writes. "The lack of official records was not uncommon in that time and presents us with an unsurmountable problem as to the oldest continual church in our county.

"The actual date of the founding of Old Chapel Methodist will most likely forever remain unknown," he continues. "What is known is that Brush Arbor meetings were held in the spot prior to the formation of the church. Some of these meetings were week long events that saw the people living in huts built on the spot. It is known that people came from as far away as Harpersville.

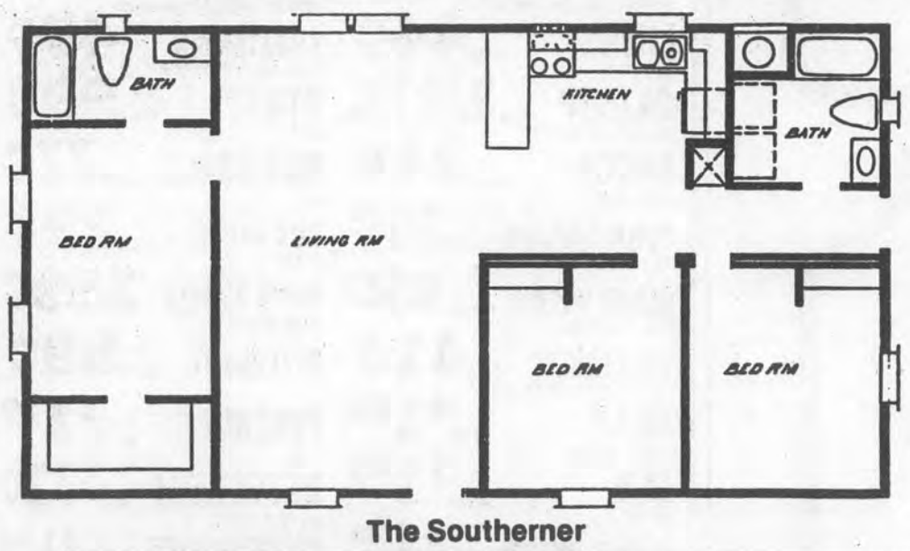

The first written record of Old Chapel comes from one E.B. Teague, who wrote in 1824 about attending what was then known as Chapel Meeting House.

Interestingly enough, "Chapel" refers not to a building, but to John Chapel, who had been buried "for a number of years" directly behind the meeting house, according to Teague. Chapel was Old Chapel's first preacher, and apparently died about 1821.

That first church house was an 18'x24' log structure which faced west from atop the cemetery hill, located behind the present building. Teague wrote that Chapel loved the church so much that

UM takes leadership role

The University of Montevallo is moving to take a leadership role in the state's quest for quality education.

To explain its position, UM is running a full-page advertisement in the Reporter today. Similar ads appeared in a dozen state daily newspapers last Sunday.

The advertisements address UM's commitment to quality, promote the institution's new core curriculum for all students, and offer prospective students and their parents advice on preparation for college.

The ads are in the form of an "open letter" from Montevallo President Dr. Jim Vickrey to the students and parents.

"We may well be at a watershed point in the history of higher education in Alabama," Vickrey said of the ads. "Accordingly, the University of Montevallo is seeking to provide some of the leadership needed to maintain the momentum building in our state in support of 'quality education.'"

Vickrey added that the university's motto is "Montevallo -- where the Little Things Make the Big Difference."

The letter discusses the shifting of the state's economic base from "heavy manufacturing and industrial" to one coached in "knowledge." It relates how UM's new basic course of study can prepare students not only for their first jobs after graduation, but also for many other jobs they may have in an ever-changing world.

Calera grads win honors

The University of Montevallo awarded three students with the highest grade point average from Calera High a Valedictorian Scholarship. All three recipients will have to maintain a GPA of 2.3 to keep the scholarship, which pays for tuition and any activity fees for four years.

Steve Goble, 18 is one of the three that is receiving a scholarship. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Sykes.

Teresa Ross, wife of Kirk Ross, is also 18. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Smith.

Bette Whitburn 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Whitburn.

All three plan to accept the scholarships and continue their education at UM.

Scouts soar to Eagle

Two Montevallo youths recently earned the Eagle Scout rank. They are the only two Montevallo area scouts to earn the top scout ranking in the last two years.

"I finally did it!" said Bert Lott, obviously excited about receiving the honor.

Lott, son of Dr. and Mrs. John B. Lott, said a lot of pressure was finally off him, after working for 21 merit badges and completing hours of community service work.

Scoutmaster Butch Fuller presented Lott with an Eagle pin at the First United Methodist Church.

At 13, John Hardin is just old enough to qualify as an Eagle Scout.

John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Hardin, painted swings, manholes, and other equipment at the Montevallo City Park to earn community service hours toward the award.

John was presented his pin at the Alabama Power Company.

UM adds twist of joy to Spanish language

Innovative approaches to learning Spanish will be used this summer in the University of Montevallo's Summer Language Institute. The programs will be not only for adults but also for children as young as four years old.

The techniques being used in the classes are all designed to make learning a second language "a joyful, holistic experience" according to Charlotte Blackmon, director of UM's International-Intercultural Studies.

The classes, offered through UM's Division of Continuing Education as The Joy of Learning Spanish, include the following:

-- Introduction to the Second Language Experience. A one-week, 18-hour course for youngsters ages 4-5, 6-11 and 12-17. Cost is $25.

-- Introduction to Hispanic Language and Culture. A four-week, 40-hour intensive language study using relaxation, music, games and psycho-drama. Cost is $125.

-- Experiencing the Language. A 12-day field experience in Mexico. Cost is $395 plus air fare and meals.

-- Conversation in Spanish. A two-week, 21-hour program. Cost is $70.

-- Innovative Approaches to Language Learning. A graduate/undergraduate seminar that may be taken for one to three hours credit. Cost is $40 plus UM credit fees.

For additional information; Charlotte Blackmon at 665-2521, ext. 210 or 207, or Kay Watts at 665-2521, ext. 362.

Putting on Long Pants
During the past twelve years the MMI Agency has been like a 'little brother' of Marketing Management, Inc. The bigger they have gotten and the more national in scope they have become, the harder it is for us to work in their shadow, keep our own identity, and improve our local service.
The Better Way
Until now we have served you well as the MMI Agency, but on April 1, 1983 we became ALABAMA INSURANCE EXCHANGE. The main changes are: a new name to establish local identity; more diversified services and products; increased competitive savings for you . . . our client; and continued competent, professional, local service.
Moving Out of the Shadow
We are still next door to MMI, and we will always have their 'family' support. But, Alabama Insurance Exchange is breaking ground very soon for our new office building on Valleydale Road in Pelham. We plan to move this September, and send you an invitation to attend our Open House celebration.
Our Philosophy . . .
. . . is that company/client relationships, like good friendships, should always stay in a state of repair. We are doing this by serving you THE BETTER WAY.

An "Open Letter" To Prospective College Students & Their Parents.

A fundamental change is occurring in ALABAMA and in AMERICA. As a result, our future will be fundamentally different from our past.

No longer are we living and earning livings in an economy supported primarily by a "heavy manufacturing and industrial base." Increasingly, we are finding ourselves to be citizens of a knowledge-based economy . . . and in a society more and more characterized by changes not only in the nature of work, but also in the preparation required for it, the frequency with which we change jobs and the relationship between work and leisure.

And, that is why the overriding work-and-career-related purpose of college education is not preparation for the first job, but preparation for the last job. And, who among us is wise enough to foretell what the latter will be for any of us?

Thus it is becoming more and more clear that the acquisition of greater knowledge and the sharpening of intellectual skills are increasingly required by ALABAMIANS initiating careers or seeking to expand career options in this new economy. And, simply stated, that means that more ALABAMIANS need to join the ranks of the "college educated."

Did you know that ALABAMA has one of the lowest percentages of adults with four-year college degrees in the nation? Even with one of the most extensive "systems" of higher education in the United States, our State can only claim that 1 in 8 of its citizens over the age of 25 has such a degree. Just to get to the national average we must increase the percentage by one-third! And, we are where we are despite the fact that polls show that an overwhelming majority of ALABAMIANS believe a college education is important to themselves — and even more important to their children.

ALABAMA needs more, many more, college-educated citizens if our State is going to progress . . . to prosper . . . in the years ahead. ALABAMA must have many more people of what philosopher Alfred North Whitehead called "trained intelligence" if our State is going to take advantage of its unique position in the Sunbelt . . . if we are even to have a chance to achieve our new economic aspirations in high or low technology — much less attain our individual career objectives. By increasing the number of college-educated ALABAMIANS, our State will become increasingly attractive to commerce and industry considering location in ALABAMA. More importantly, ALABAMA will thereby be better able to identify those exceptional individuals needed for current endeavors in commerce, education, government, medicine, industry, and science.

To remain in the Sunbelt Race, ALABAMA is going to have to "grow its own" college graduates. Why? Because more than 80% of us are native ALABAMIANS — and so we not only need to attract more "trained intelligence," but we also need to do what's necessary to keep the "trained intelligence" created right here in ALABAMA.

We ALABAMIANS must help ourselves . . . to produce many more college-educated citizens . . . and we must look to our own colleges and universities, public and private — working even more cooperatively to that end with our State's schools at every level of education, particularly those at the elementary and secondary level.

What One Alabama University Is Doing To Help

The UNIVERSITY OF MONTEVALLO is trying to do its part in that regard . . . to produce not only more college-educated ALABAMIANS, but also to produce more better prepared college-educated ALABAMIANS. More than one-fifth of all graduates who ever earned college degrees at MONTEVALLO have joined the ranks of the college-educated in just the past six years. And, we believe they are among the best prepared graduates our faculty has yet sent out into what spring commencement speakers still refer to as "the real world."

But, the UNIVERSITY OF MONTEVALLO wants to do more to help our State take its rightful place of leadership in the Sunbelt. Among the things the UNIVERSITY OF MONTEVALLO is doing right now to help are these —

- Undertaking to ensure that our unique mission and goals are fulfilled to the end of helping to meet the State's needs in the years ahead.
- Making sure that UM students enjoy that common core of curricular and co-curricular experiences that characterizes "liberal learning" in the broadest sense — that type of education that lasts the longest, the kind long associated with our 87-year-old university.

To satisfy ourselves on that latter matter, the MONTEVALLO faculty has recently completed an almost three-year-long study of our general education requirements, in which they were assisted by some of the nation's most prominent general education specialists. UM Trustees in early May unanimously approved a comprehensive revision of that common learning experience all MONTEVALLO students are expected to enjoy. The "Purposes and Goals" of our new general education requirements, to be implemented in phases over the next few years, are to enable UM students to do the things listed in the box below.

Purposes and Goals of General Education at UM

1. To develop the ability to use rational processes in consideration of ideas and problems, including the ability to make judgements based upon description, analysis, and interpretation.
2. To develop skills in the use and interpretation of symbol systems which employ words, numbers, and imagery, including language in written and spoken forms . . . mathematical structures . . . and other visual and auditory symbol systems.
3. To search for and develop personal, family, and community values through a study of the past, its vitality in the present, and its relevance to the future.
4. To develop the ability to explore and appreciate the imaginative presentation of human experience through the arts.
5. To become knowledgeable about the physical and biological structure of nature, the place of humanity in the natural world, and the ethical, economic, and political dimensions of humanity's impact on the environment.
6. To apply knowledge about health, nutrition, physical activity, and aesthetics.
7. To develop the ability to engage in effective interpersonal relationships, to understand the responsibilities coincident with membership in the American democratic community, and to understand leadership roles.
8. To develop inner resources such as imagination, a sense of wonder, self-discipline, and a habit of critical inquiry so that lifelong, self-directed learning may occur.
9. To affirm the value of work and leisure, to become aware of the wide range of career and leisure opportunities through which contributions to society may be made, personal satisfaction achieved, and to develop the self-knowledge, the competencies, and the qualities of mind which contribute to successful employment and fruitful living.
10. To become knowledgeable about the prospects for change occurring in one's lifetime and in subsequent generations to enable one to adapt to new conditions and to demonstrate responsible, creative leadership in shaping a changing world.

The types of courses UM undergraduates will be taking (in generally small classes — taught, for the most part, by senior faculty members), to achieve those "Purposes and Goals" include: "The University Experience," "Human Behavior and Inquiry" and "Contemporary Institutions and Issues." In addition, UM core courses will include "Uses of the Computer," "Foundations in Writing" as well as in "Oral Communication" and "Writing Reinforcement Courses." Also included are "World Literature" and "World Civilizations," as well as "Mathematics," "Principles of Science," "Integrated Arts" and courses in "Health, Exercise and Recreation."

On the basis of the above, you can readily tell why we at MONTEVALLO support the movement to quality education embodied in the reports of the several "blue ribbon" citizens' commissions now being studied throughout AMERICA and ALABAMA . . . and why we are asking fellow ALABAMIANS to support them.*

What You Can Do To Help Alabama

The UNIVERSITY OF MONTEVALLO is doing its part in the quality education movement. But, additional help is needed. We need parents, students and teachers who are willing to support education in ALABAMA and the high standards necessary for its success. We need also your insistence that college-bound high school graduates in ALABAMA have had the kind of academic preparation they deserve and increasingly must have enjoyed to be likely successes in college.

What are those "college preparatory requirements"? The 2500-member College Board association recently spelled out a definitive listing of them in a 5,000-word document made public last month — Academic Preparation for College: What Students Need to Know and Be Able to Do. The requirements are detailed in the form of "knowledge and skills needed for college," worded as "outcomes of secondary-school study." Parents of college-bound students, in particular, ought to read it.

We at the UNIVERSITY OF MONTEVALLO agree with the general conclusions articulated in the College Board study. But, to simplify the requirements, I am listing below the UM suggestions for college-bound students and their parents:

- Between the ninth and twelfth grades, students should complete four units of English, three units of social studies, three units of mathematics, three units of science, and two units of humanities.
- In addition to studying the appropriate subjects, students need to meet with their counselors and discuss all of the options available to them after completing high school — employment, military service, vocational training, two-year college training, or study at a large university, small college, or a university the size of MONTEVALLO.
- Students should also participate in two or three well chosen school or community activities which complement their high school studies.
- Students should discuss the above with their parents and college counsellors.

As such preparations for college are made, we hope, too, that parents and students will remember the critical role that reading should play — especially the reading of good literature — and of writing about it and the many other things of human experience demanding verbal expression. As Socrates well reminded us, the best way for any of us to teach such values is to be good examples ourselves.

And, were Socrates still alive today, he probably would agree that, given the fundamental change occurring in the United States today, the most consistent and persistent need is for quality education. The future is promising for those ALABAMIANS who plan and prepare for living and earning a living in a society where knowledge is the basis for a productive, fulfilling life.

Sincerely,

James F. Vickrey, Jr.
President

P.S. If you would like more information about any of the matters touched on in this "open letter," please call us TOLL-FREE-IN-ALABAMA at 1-800-292-4349 or write me directly at Calkins Hall, Station 1, UM, Montevallo 35115.

---

*So far this year, four major national reports have been issued — A Nation at Risk: The Imperative of Educational Reform, the chilling and, perhaps, too negative assessment of the National Commission on Excellence in Education, chaired by David P. Gardner, president-elect of the University of California; Academic Preparation for College, the guide for students and parents (noted elsewhere in the "Open Letter"), prepared by the College Board; the "Report of the Task Force on Federal Elementary and Secondary Education Policy" of the Twentieth Century Fund; and the "Report of the National Task Force on Education for Economic Growth," chaired by North Carolina Governor James B. Hunt, Jr. (the Task Force was created by the Education Commission of the states, of which Alabama is a member).

Moreover, similar Task Forces were appointed last fall here in Alabama. The one chaired by UAB President S. Richardson Hill, Jr. made its report to Governor Wallace on Inauguration Day and the one chaired by Montgomery banker Taylor Hardin is expected to make its report to the Alabama Commission on Higher Education soon (perhaps, before this letter appears in print).

And, previously, The Need for Quality, a Report to the Southern Regional Education Board, was made by its Task Force on Higher Education and the Schools, a body that included among its members State Superintendent of Education Wayne Teague.

Washington visitors

Alabama Congressman Richard Shelby welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lefkovits (left and right) of Columbiana at his office during their recent trip to Washington, D.C. They made the trip to visit their daughter, Marsha, the congressman's press secretary.

CVA grads win honors

Two graduating seniors from Coosa Valley Academy have received scholarships to the University of Montevallo.

Rhonda Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Payne of Childersburg, has been awarded the Valedictorian Scholarship.

Lourie Casteel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odis Casteel of Fayetteville, has received the Edythe Saylor PE scholarship.

AU board taps Kelly

Jim Kelly of Montevallo, was recently inducted into Mortar Board, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Order of Omega leadership and honor societies at Auburn University.

Kelly, a junior accounting major in the School of Business, is also a member of Beta Alpha Psi national accounting honorary, FarmHouse Social Fraternity, and secretary/treasurer of the Interfraternity Council.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Kelly of Montevallo.

County business news

Steve Williams, executive vice president of Marketing Management, Inc. has resigned as chief operations officer of the nationally known insurance brokerage firm. Williams is the son of MMI's president and founder Ken Williams, who said that the younger Williams intends to pursue other career opportunities.

According to the young executive, "There's really nothing complicated about my resignation. It's just time for me to see what the rest of the world has to offer."

Referring to his son's notice, Ken Williams said, "I can't find fault with Steve's decision to pursue other career opportunities. He's been with MMI since he was still in school. He has a lot of offer and we all wish him the very best."

Assuming additional assignments will be Joe Gosa, Property/Casualty Operations; Robert Williams, Life and Health; and Robert Cleveland, Marketing. All three are senior vice presidents, the latter two receiving promotions concurrent with Williams' resignation.

Sherman Industries, Inc., recently honored a special group of employees in Pelham.

Service awards were presented by J. Thomas Holton, Chairman of the Board of Sherman Industires, Inc.

Tug-of-War benefits diabetes

A Spring Fling to raise money for the war against diabetes will be held all day Saturday in Columbiana.

One of the key attractions is a tug-of-war.

According to Alyce Weldon of Columbiana, who is organizing the fling, groups are still being sought to join the tug-of-war.

She said scouts, softball teams, churches and other groups are urged to call her (669-6769) and reserve a war zone with the rope.

Other activities include a car smash, moon walk, cake walk and dunking booth, as well as Quacker-Jack the duck, Weldon said.

All proceeds go to the Diabetes Research Center in Birmingham, she said. The event will be in the field next to Jack's restaurant.

Flea market aids adoption

The Alabama Friends of Adoption are holding a flea market Saturday in Pelham.

The sale runs from 9 a.m. - 2 p.m., and will feature clothes for children and adults, toys, drapes, spreads and household articles, according to one of the organizers, Sue Howe.

Howe said articles are still being sought for donation to the sale. Arrangements for the donations can be made by calling her at 669-7677.

Proceeds from the sale go to help fund an information hot-line that aids couples seeking adoption referals, she said.

The sale will be held in the parking lot of Wal-Mart.

Old Chapel

he asked to be buried just behind the building.

Ray places Old Chapel's founding at no later than 1818, and most likely "a good deal before." At any rate, the church has been recognized as predating Alabama's 1819 statehood.

The second church building was constructed in the late 1800's at the foot of cemetery hill. A third and larger church house was built soon afterwards, and featured twin front doors underneath an archway -- a motif repeated in both buildings built sine then.

Because of drainage problems with the third building's location, the fourth building was erected in the 1930's where the the present brick structure now stands.

"Old Chapel Methodist Church has been a part of the local community for over 165 years," Ray concludes in his brief history, "and with the help of our Lord and Master, we hope to continue our service for as long as it is possible; right up to the day of His return."

Modern technology

Modern technology is an amazing thing. But judging from the expressions on Tonya Moore (left) and Monica Dich's face, yesterday's technology is pretty amazing, too. What caught their fancies was a 1930 Model A at an antique car show held recently at a Pelham store. Nine-year old Tonya, who lives in Pelham, was showing her 10-year old Birmingham visitor around at the time. (Photo by Bill Casari)

Pelham sets new date for protested hearing

The Pelham Planning and Zoning Board will hold another public hearing, following last week's highly controversial approval of a rezoning request.

Mayor Burk Dunaway said late Tuesday afternoon that attornies for the city and Steve Russo had agreed to a second public hearing. Since approving Russo's request for multi-family zoning on his 26 acres along Helena Road, angered area residents have charged that their rights to speak on the matter were denied.

"We want everybody to have an opportunity to be heard," Dunaway told the Reporter. "If those people think they were denied their rights -- which they weren't intentionally -- then by agreement of all parties, the ruling will be changed."

In order to hold the meeting as soon as possible, preliminary arrangements were made to publish the required legal advertisements for the meeting in this week's paper. This would have allowed the public hearing to be held July 6.

However, after Dunaway discussed it with board chairman Mike McKinnis, they decided July 6 might conflict with many people's plans for the Fourth.

Therefore, the advertisments will run in the next two editions of the paper, and the public hearing on Russo's request was tenatively set for Wednesday, July 13, Dunaway said.

"I think the meeting will probably start where all the planning board meetings are held," the mayor said in answer to an obvious question. "But it'll probably be moved to the chamber council..."

Prior to this late breaking development in the story, the following article had been prepared for publication in this week's edition of the Reporter:

by David F. Moore

"I'm real surprised no one showed up to protest tonight."

Following that opening remark Pelham Planning and Zoning Board chairman Mike McKinnis said he made last Wednesday night, six planning members voted approval of a controversial rezoning request from R-1 (single family) to R-3 (multi-family), for 26 acres of land along Helena Road (State 261).

But McKinnis' opening remark was off base.

The brief planning board meeting was held in the city hall's small pre-council room -- its standard place of business. On the other side of the door, in the large chamber room, 35 concerned citizens twitched in their seats, ready to verbally fight the rezoning proposal.

Steve Russo, who requested the rezoning, his attorney and a developer, also waited in the council chamber to present their side of the issue to the board.

Neither side got the chance to speak.

McKinnis, Mayor Burk Dunaway, and the other board members insist that they did not know the large group next door was waiting for the zoning hearing.

Some residents, however, are crying foul.

"It seems to me there's been some deceit on the part of the board, or possibly the mayor," said Vaughn Olson, who owns 2.5 acres near Russo's land.

"I may be over-reacting," he continued, "but my interest level is quite high. If someone builds apartments, it would ruin the quiet place we have."

"There's no way they (the planning board) couldn't have known all those people were in there," said Jim King, an area resident who came to protest the change on the grounds of drainage problems. "It was a touchy issue. I think they didn't want to handle it with that group of people."

King accused the board of a "breach of confidence," since no one -- pro or con -- got a chance to voice their opinions.

"Wednesday night, I felt like they knew we were there," said Patricia Cobb Yessick, who lives on some 12 acres of family land across the road -- downhill from Russo's property. "I'm trying to give (the board) the benefit of the doubt, but you know these things go on in politics."

"If there's apartments or condominiums, it'd wipe out our life styles," she continued. "Apartments would add to the water problems. This'll be a swamp area."

Joe Dean, a neighbor of the Yessicks, said, "They may have made an honest mistake. I'd hate to imagine that they'd purposefully do that."

"The issue now, is the denial of the rights of the people -- either by foolish oversight, or something we don't know about," Dean told the Reporter. "The issue is the attitude of the city and their responsibility to the public."

Dean said he was talking to some people in the hallway prior to the meeting, when McKinnis and Councilman Ray Hamilton, also a member of the planning board, walked briskly past him and back to the pre-council meeting room. He said there was no eye contact, and maybe he wasn't recognized.

Because of the size of the crowd, he said it naturally congregated in the council chamber.

A former planning board member himself, Dean said he thought the board members were having a "pre-meeting" when they didn't appear in the council chamber at the announced 7 p.m. starting time.

"By 7:30 we were getting restless and I realized

New computer canned

by Fred Guarino

The idea of Shelby County purchasing a new computer is dead.

In addition, commission chairman Tommy Snowden has been stripped of control over the county's data processing center.

Furthermore, tax assessor Bobbie Reynolds will be allowed to put only the appraisal portion of her department on the state's computer and then only for a limited time.

All these actions came in a one fell swoop, Monday morning.

The commission unanimously approved a motion by Leon Archer that the previous computer recommendations made by Harold Davenport and himself be accepted.

Those recommendations -- based on a study made by the two-man committee -- called for upgrading the current system instead of purchasing a new one.

The recommendations also contained a provision that Davenport and Archer be made reponsible for the computer department instead of Snowden, who has held that authority for the past two or three years.

The commissioners placed the five-year computer upgrading cost at $457,401 -- as opposed to $600,000 for a new system.

Once updated, they said the county's Burroughs computer will still be able to handle up to 20% growth in data needs.

Archer and Davenport were originally appointed by Snowden to hire a consultant to help resolve computer problems and to make recommendations.

However the two men said Monday that the motion on which Snowden acted was misunderstood.

They stated that they only meant to hire someone to help them make a study of the Burroughs, not the possibility of a new system.

Their study showed advantages the present central system would have over a new system in which each department would have its own computer. Furthermore, the Burroughs could be modified to handle new needs.5

Also, in an apparent charge that communication breakdowns were responsible for many computer problems, the study stated "computer department/user department interaction is not good."

Archer and Davenport's findings showed that a centralized system provides more computer power, sharing of data throughout the courthouse, and easier management and control.

They also showed that significant accomplishments had been made in the county's data processing, and improvements could be made for the efficiency needed to meet new requirments.

According to the study, however, "Programs written for some departments... are either not written properly or not installed."

Programs needing modification include tags (to a new, one-stop system); conservation; titles; business licenses; deeds and wills; budget system; and tax collection system.

To avoid communication problems, Archer and Davenport recommended that their committee could "interact, as necessary, to effect such improvements."

They asked that their committee be kept intact through March of '84 in order to:

- Maintain their responsibility for the computer department and its personnel.
- Spend money budgeted for department improvement.
- Hire an analyst to modify the tag system, develop other programs for the probate office, and assist Elizabeth Borders -- who replaced Ken Robinson as data processing department head.
- Purchase any needed additional display and printing terminals, within a $20,000 limit.
- Select and buy budgetary accounting software.

An $80,000 ceiling was placed on the above outline.

The commission also said the tax assessor's appraisal system can go on the state computer at $19,800 per year, until an equally efficient program can be written for the county's system.

Before the commission passed these measures, Snowden said he wanted the opinions of all department heads. He also said he had wanted a independent consultant hired, and that Archer and Davenport had represented only the Burroughs point of view.

Commissioner Jake Morris wanted a performance bond on the upgrading of the Burroughs.

Hall moves trucks

Montevallo trucking line owner Tony Hall moved his rigs from Shelby Street Saturday, following a direct order from a circuit judge.

Last week, Judge Robert Armstrong found Hall in contempt of court for not following a previous order to move the trucks. He gave Hall until Saturday to get them out of town, or face a $25 a day fine.

Montevallo city officials were concerned that $25 might not be enough incentive, but Hall complied with the order and moved the trucks on Saturday.

"I can afford the $25. That was no problem," Hall told the Reporter this week. "But the judge said to move them, and that's the law!"

Hall parked his trucks on land he owns in the Montevallo Industrial Park.

Now, he says, he's waiting for the city to help him get that property ready to build a new office. He needs a power pole moved from the center of the land, and telephone lines in the back need to be moved as well, he said.

For two years, Tony Hall's trucking company fought the city over permission to park a dozen tractor-trailer rigs on Shelby Street by Hall's current office.

Neighbors who claimed the trucks were a nuisance, said this week they were relieved to see them gone.

Hall said it had been necessary to park the trucks by the office for security reasons.

The City of Montevallo tried unsuccessfully for two years to get Hall to move the rigs, before the case was turned over to the circuit court.

Winner's kiss

Edna Archer plants a kiss on the cheek of her son Leon after he was named Outstanding Father in a contest held at the Father's Day Beef Cookout sponsored by the Shelby County CowBelles.

Favorite dad named

It was a tough choice when Shelby County cattlemen and CowBelles cast their votes for a favorite dad.

But when the ballots were counted Saturday, county commissioner Leon Archer walked away with the title.

"I'll bet I could have won favorite granddad," quipped Moon Thornton.

Horseshoes, swimming, boating and some good old fashioned visiting preceded the steak cookout and the contest at the CowBelles annual event to commemorate Fathers Day.

Approximately 60 people gathered at the 4-H center for the festivities which included a white elephant sale and doorprizes.

The nominees for favorite dad were: Jim Braden, John Jones, Bill Rabren, Moon Thornton, and Tommy Snowden.

Two men shot in Columbiana

Two shootings in Columbiana last week within a day of each other, left two men with shoulder wounds -- both on the right side.

James Bennett Hammonds was shot Thursday evening at the home of his brother-in-law, Philip Foster on County Road 47 south. Foster allegedly did the shooting.

Early the following afternoon, Hollis Smith was the shooting victim in an incident which took place at the mobile home of A.J. Davis on Jonesboro Circle.

Davis is the alleged assailant in that case.

As of yet, no charges have been filed in either case.

According to Columbiana policeman Frank Formby, who worked both shootings, a shotgun was used in each incident.

Formby reported that Foster and Hammonds were involved in a family dispute.

In the other case, Formby said Davis and Smith each had a different story as to what happened.

Smith was listed in stable condition by SMC at presstime Tuesday.

The other shooting victim, Hammonds, has been released by the hospital.

Armadillo comes to county

by David F. Moore

The armadillos are coming! The armadillos are coming!

But last week when Paul and Lois Cost heard their dogs barking like crazy outside at 3:30 a.m., they weren't thinking armadillos. They were thinking prowlers. Their Elliottsville neighbor Floyd Parrish thought the same thing.

Armed with shotguns, Cost and Parrish searched their yards. No prowler. Nothing in sight.

Later, the dogs barked again, but the cause of their excitement remained a mystery.

It wasn't until Cost returned from the post office the next morning that the mystery cleared up.

Parrish had done some investigating and found a hole underneath Cost's garage. He led Cost to the hole and there he (she?) was -- the armadillo.

"He was buried down in the floor," said Cost. "There wasn't anything sticking out but his tail and part of his hard shell."

"We took it easy on him and eased him out by his tail," Cost said. "We had a cage ready. You can't hardly hold one of them. They're strong."

Cost was somewhat familiar with armadillos from his days of driving trucks out west, and from reading National Geographic. He knew armadillos aren't supposed to be in Shelby County.

But apparently the armadillo didn't know that. Nor do some of his kin. Because the armadillos are here.

According to Ann Miller of Dunnavant, executive director of Alabama Wildlife Rescue, the armadillos are heading this way. Last month she verified that one had been found in the Bessemer area. The one Cost and Parrish found is the first verified armadillo in Shelby County.

Originally, Miller said, the harmless animals hail from South and Central America. Slowly they worked their way up into Texas and the Southwest, picking up on the way such endearing names as 'Mexican Opossum' and 'Opossum of the West.'

Miller explained that about 30 years ago, armadillos again began expanding their range, moving even further east and somewhat north. They were held up in the early '60's by the Mississippi River, but somehow (do they hitchhike?) made their way across, spreading into southern Alabama and Florida.

Now they're heading north -- more or less for Shelby County. But because of sensitivity to the cold, the mammals aren't expected to range in Alabama much beyond the Birmingham area.

So the armadillos are coming.

But don't panic. They're harmless.

Miller, however, is concerned that the animals may not be welcomed in these parts. Even though they're not game animals, and are very low on the rabies transmission list, she's worried that some of them will be needlessly shot.

She also doesn't want to see them kept in captivity -- which is against state wildlife laws.

Miller pointed out that armadillos are even useful since they live mainly off bugs.

Furthermore, armadillos are anything but aggressive. Advance on one and it's likely to run. Or ball up.

"If someone finds one and calls us, we'll be glad to come and take it off somewhere," she said. (The Wildlife Rescue hot-line number is 320-6189.) "Just don't harm it, or frighten it, or keep it caged up."

After fortifying the Elliottsville armadillo with raw egg, dog food, bugs, and some Chilton County peaches, Cost promised to turn it loose "over in Maylene where the dogs won't get it."

"You'd be surprised how many people told us they found armadillos after we found that one," he said. "Looks like they're with us in Shelby County now."

One's already here

At least one armadillo is already in Shelby County, and Floyd Parrish (left) and Lois and Paul Cost say they have heard tales of others. The critter they discovered in Elliottsville has since been turned loose in a wooded area. (Photo by Bill Casari)

Donations aid Pelham High

by David F. Moore

Thanks to a donation from the Pelham Lions Club, Pelham High School will have a 'new' library this fall.

Monday night club secretary Jim King presented principal Dr. Ed Belue with $2,000 for the project.

The money was raised by ticket sales for a May spaghetti supper at which the Lions served 400 dinners.

The supper was the club's first major fund raiser since it was chartered earlier this year. The club boasts about 26 members, and is led by president Dr. Harvey Coker.

As for the library project, Belue, himself a club member, said, "We've got it all mapped out. In effect, we'll have an enclosed library."

The library was initially designed as an open space in the central part of the school -- a concept Belue indicated was interesting, but not conductive to studying, or to preventing books from disappearing.

The Lions' donation will buy materials to wall off the eastern, or back side of the opened area, as well as create a library office.

Belue said the open space now used for the library will be incorporated into four special education class areas.

Helping make the library project feasible are individuals from the Wood Workers Guild -- which meets at PHS -- who have agreed to supply free labor for the project.

Guild members Billy Lee and Dr. Bob Gunter are coordinating that effort, said Belue.

Stud work on the library wall is expected to begin this week.

Guild members have also agreed to build work tables and cabinets for a new physics lab which the school should have by fall.

The lab project is being made possible by several anonymous donations totaling some $5,000, Belue said.

Lawsuit filed against SMC

A Shelby man claims that the negligence of Shelby Medical Center is responsible for his falling and breaking his knee last October.

In a suit filed recently in Shelby County Circuit Court, John Edward Gilliam is asking for $50,000 in damages.

A maintenance man at Buck Creek Industries, Gilliam was not able to return to his job until January.

In the suit, Gilliam says the hospital should have known the floor near the entrance would be slippery when the it was wet and should have put up a warning sign.

Gilliam has requested a jury trial. The trial date has not yet been set.

Calera men shoot each other

Two Calera men are both in critical condition after a Saturday night shoot-out.

An argument over Betty Paige apparently led to the shooting involving Luther Paige and Johnny Reese.

After reportedly firing the first shot which caught Paige in the mouth, Reese took a bullet in the side.

Both men used .38 calibre revolvers.

The gunfire occurred around 7 p.m. at Mrs. Paige's residence on Hwy. 25 west of the former Lib's nightclub.

On Tuesday, Reese and Paige were still listed in critical condition by Shelby Medical Center.

Computer

The remarks led to stiff objection from the computer committee.

Davenport said Snowden's consultant might cost $5,000, then recommend a half a million dollar expenditure which the county doesn't have.

Archer also added, "It's funny to me that a few months ago we were talking about cutting back and we went to the hospital for two mills...

"Now we are talking about spending money for a new system when we don't know what we've got. I don't intend to sit here and spend that money without trying what we've got."

Davenport later pointed the finger at Charles Smith of S & W Minicomputer saying that while all new system bids had been rejected, Smith continued to make studies and talk to personnel.

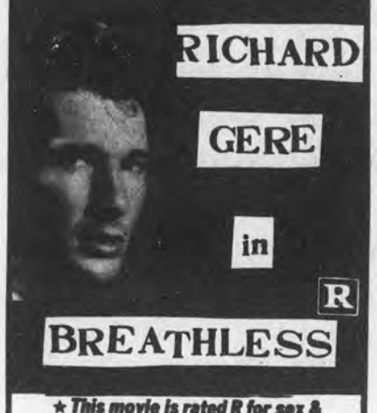

Commissioner John Ames later echoed that by saying that Davenport and Archer had been subjected to undue pressure, stemming from Smith talking to department heads.

Snowden sat silently while the recommendations were voted on and passed.

A letter to department heads was approved informing them of the actions and saying that while the commission had no authority over elected officials, the heads could either go on the upgraded system or do their work manually.

Jake Morris made it a special point to include in the minutes of the meeting, the cost estimates for upgrading the Burroughs.

Jailhouse scuffle goes to federal court

by Reporter Staff

A scuffle in the Shelby County Jail a year and a half ago is being rehashed this week in federal court.

Vernon Johnson of Harpersville is suing Columbiana policeman Tom Carter and former deputy Greg Barnett for assault and police brutality.

Sheriff Buddy Glasgow and deputy Sgt. James Mitchell are also named in the suit on grounds that they failed to properly train their officers.

Similar charges against the City of Columbiana were dropped Monday in court because the alleged brutality happened in the county jail.

Johnson is seeking a quarter million dollars in damages.

The case -- which is being heard before Judge Foy Guin and a federal jury of eight men and women -- started Monday with Johnson's lawyer giving an opening outline.

According to Johnson's lawyers:

In January 1982, Johnson, who is retired from a local steel company, went out to play pool in Vincent, and was arrested for public intoxication. The trouble apparently started about 3 a.m. when his wife and son-in-law came to the county jail to bail him out.

"You're crazy for keeping me back there in that cold room for so long," is what Johnson's lawyers said he told Barnett as the deputy prepared to check him out. Barnett gave Johnson back his personal effects -- which included a wallet, belt, screwdriver, and pocketknife.

According to Johnson's lawyers, he tried to give the screwdriver to his son-in-law, but Barnett (now an officer with the Helena PD) wouldn't let him.

Mrs. Johnson testified that Barnett said, "You're going back to jail until you change your attitude."

Barnett radioed for assistance and Carter arrived at the jail within minutes.

According to the plaintiff's lawyers, Carter then grabbed Johnson, wrestled him to the floor, and sat on him.

The scuffle, the lawyers said, left Johnson with a cut head, broken eyeglasses, injured back and neck, and permanently damaged vocal chords.

However, the story presented by defense lawyers differs from the plaintiff's version, diverging at the time Johnson began complaining about his cold cell.

They said Johnson was cursing and smelling of alcohol, leading Barnett to conclude that he was not ready to be released after all.

Johnson allegedly said Barnett was crazy, and threatened him with the screwdriver. That's when the deputy called Carter.

Carter, his lawyers said, asked Johnson to drop the screwdriver. Johnson refused and Carter wrestled him to the floor.

Attorneys for Carter and the sheriff's office maintain that Johnson's injuries are his own fault, and that the lawmen used only the amount of force necessary to make him drop the weapon.

The case is expected to conclude by the end of the week.

Reception feast

Victor Scott of Montevallo and Dr. Sam Roberts of Alabaster were among the crowd that gathered on highway 280 for the luncheon-groundbreaking of Shelby Medical Center's new doctors' clinic. At right, former hospital board member Herchiel Meadows and board member Eloise Underwood choose from the food selection. SMC erected a tent for the occasion and imported food from The Club as well as from the hospital kitchen.

Montevallo lawyer appointed for appeals

by Bert Seaman

In addition to being the city's prosecutor in municipal court, Montevallo attorney Jim Standridge will also represent the city on appeals cases.

Until now, the city's attorneys have had that responsibility.

Finance Chairman J.A. Brown questioned the cost of the change after the council approved the move Monday night.

Basing his figuring on the ten appeals cases the city had last year, Mayor Ralph Sears said he thought $400 should be an adequate amount.

"I think $2,200 would be a gracious plenty," (total yearly payment) the Mayor told Brown.

When he was appointed prosecutor last month, Standridge's salary was set at $150 a month or $1,800 a year.

He will be paid $20 an hour for out of court work on appeals cases and $40 when he is in court.

City Administrator Don Hughes said that he will try to work it out so the cases can be tried consecutively to cut down on time and expense for the city.

Since the prosecutor will already be familiar with the case, his out of court time will also be reduced, Hughes noted.

In trying to comply with all the recommendations made by the Administrative Office of Courts, Police Chief Allen Needham said the city needs to have someone not connected with the police department to be court clerk.

Keeping the city's finances in mind, Hughes said he will try and work something out using personnel from his office rather than hiring an extra person.

In other matters:

•There was some discussion, but no action, on buying 1.5 acres of land adjoining the city shop. Hughes said the $8,000 piece of property -- which lies along Shoals Creek and is bounded by city property -- could be used for parking equipment and the development of the sewerage treatment plant.

•Councilman Grady Parker suggested that the yellow line in front of the new Parnell Memorial Library be changed for temporary parking. After a brief discussion of the parking situation in the area, is was decided that Chief Needham and Hughes would first do a traffic survey.

•Claud Elledge, President of the Chamber of Commerce, reported that the chamber has purchased 36 new American flags to replace those that are worn out.

The flags are placed along Main Street for patriotic observances.

SMC breaks ground on 280

Shelby Medical Center finally launched construction of its new $600,000 doctors' office last Thursday. The ceremony had been delayed because of rain and cost factors.

Architects were successful in re-working the plans to reduce the cost by more than $100,000 to keep the building under the limits imposed by the state.

This was done by cutting down the parking area and by changing the type of windows the building will have. The earlier plans called for double pane windows with venetian blinds built in between the panes.

About 80 persons, most of them hospital staff members attended the ceremony, held under a tent at the proposed location near the intersection of Cahaba Valley Road and U.S. 280.

SMC's attorney, Frank Ellis, made a brief speech, followed by remarks from board member E.E. "Pete" Raughley, and board chairman C.E. "Bull" Carter. Administrator Roland Bradford welcomed the group.

They are designed to introduce children to the fun of reading books that are both exciting and informing. Children who want to participate can go by any library in the county and sign up.

By reading just 15 books, the child will receive a certificate in August citing his accomplishment.

All programs and the summer reading clubs are free and open to children of all ages.

Under The Courthouse Dome

The opening of the St. Clair County Jail is one of the factors that has helped reduce the prisoner population in Shelby County.

At the beginning of the week, inmates at the Shelby County Jail in Columbiana numbered 79.

According to sheriff department records, ten state prisoners -- accepted at Shelby last May during overcrowding at Morgan County jail -- were moved last week to St. Clair.

Tuesday, another 14 prisoners belonging to the state were transferred to St. Clair County.

The jail also gained a little more breathing space when half a dozen prisoners were released to the state under the SIR (State Inmate Restitution) program near the end of May.

The SIR program allows the prisoners to work in order to pay back their victims.

Another six or seven state prisoners are now being considered for the program.

Jail Administrator Wayne Lucas reported that some prisoners have also been released under pre-discretionary leave, which is early parole.

Also, Lucas said, some inmates have served out their time.

Now that the prison population is down to 65, the jail is finally within the number it was designed to house.

The ultra modern facility was supposed to hold a maximum of 77 prisoners, which includes females and juveniles.

However, the number has often topped 100 and the jail has held as many as 127 prisoners.

The county commission will wait for the voice of the people before throwing its support to a building permit bill now in the legislature.

A public hearing on the bill was secured at Monday's commission meeting by state representative Don Murphy, who opposes the proposed measure.

That hearing is set for 7 p.m. Monday in the county courthouse.

In gaining the delay, however, Murphy found himself at odds with his former fellow commissioners.

Most of them favor the act, which would apply standard building codes to the county, and which has already passed the senate.

In addition it would provide the county with the authority to issue building permits and give it the right to inspect commercial construction.

Commissioner Harold Davenport said he favored the bill and would vote to support it.

"We have the right to recommend bills to be passed and you have the right, if you feel, to kill the bill," he told Murphy.

Commissioner John Ames asked Murphy if he knew that the county could already do what the bill proposes, without charging a fee.

Murphy responded by turning the table on Ames and saying, "So...really this is just another tax on the people."

That led to an exchange between the two men in which Ames defended the revenues that the bill would generate.

Ames stated, "We would have to hire a $100,000 department to enforce it (building inspection). All we are asking for is funding."

In arguing against the need for the bill, Murphy took exception to statements made by Davenport in the Reporter about "shoddy construction" in Shelby County.

He also accused the commission of not letting him know of its desire to have the bill passed.

Davenport told Murphy that he was made aware of the bill and Ames added, "I guess when I sent a letter to every member of the Shelby County delegation I thought that was that."

Murphy told commissioners that if they knew of any shoddy buildings in Shelby County he would like to see them.

He added that such building inspections would cause three or four day delays in construction, costing contractors money.

The meeting came to a close with Murphy apparently realizing that the commission was against him on this matter and he simply thanked them for at least delaying their support.

A bobcat was reported in the woods around Indian Springs School Monday.

The Shelby County Sheriff's department, who received the call, asked the Shelby County Humane Society to look into the matter.

A preliminary hearing for Gerald Lawley in Shelby County District Court, scheduled Tuesday, was continued.

Lawley is accused of the murder of Homewood art dealer Malcolm McRae.

Incidents listed on the blotter at the Sheriff's department from June 6-13 include five cases of criminal mischief, five theft cases, two burglaries and one attempted burglary.

Three stolen vehicles were recovered, marijuana plants discovered on Pea Ridge were pulled up and confiscated, and five assaults were reported.

The blotter also listed one case of vandalism, one fight, one missing person, one runaway, and one dog complaint.

A prowler call was listed, but no one was found on the premises. Three accidents, a hit and run and a house fire were also listed.

During the past year 2,368 acres of protected forest land was burned by wildfire in Shelby County.

According to the state forestry commission, this caused an average of $34 per acre damage to forests and $374 additional economic impact per acre due to the loss of manufactured goods that would have been realized from these forest products.

Much of Alabama's economic base is forestry related, and wildfire destroys this economic base and with it jobs.

All of these events lead to fewer jobs and may even slow recovery -- the cause, wildfire.

The commission asks for help in reducing wildfires by reporting suspected arson, being careful with your debris burns, and obtaining burn permit before burning.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

After weeks of rumors about his failing health, rumors about his impending resignation, Gov George Wallace has looked and acted much more like the Wallace of old in the past few days.

There is no question that for several weeks in late May and early June Gov. Wallace was not well. He was in considerable rain, he was terribly depressed about his condition. His public appearances were rare, and when seen, he did not look well at all.

But suddenly there appears to have been a turnaround. Wallace has made several appearances in public in recent days, the haggard look of a few weeks ago has gone, his spirits measurably improved.

In a place where rumors spawn rumors, there is now yet another rumor as to the dramatic improvement in Wallace. Try this bizarre story on for size:

About ten days ago Wallace and Lt. Gov Bill Baxley met at length. According to the story, Wallace wanted Baxley to assure him that if the governor should be compelled to resign because of ill health that Baxley would retain the Wallace-appointed Cabinet. Baxley refused to make such a commitment. Wallace became angry and said in so many words --- so the rumor goes --- if that's the way it was going to be then hell would freeze over before he would resign. End of rumor.

It makes for a good story and if true it would explain Wallace's sudden and dramatic improvement. For sure, something happened to change Wallace's outlook. If the rumor is true, and it probably isn't, then Baxley would be justified to add M.D. after his name. he accomplished what none of the real M.D.'s had accomplished.

Odds and Ends -- Another Wallace was hospitalized in Montgomery last week---Mrs. Mozelle Wallace, mother of the governor and a remarkable lady in her own right, was admitted to a hospital for tests. Mrs. Wallace is 86...

Despite all the talk to the contrary, it now is a very real possibility that Montgomery Mayor Emory Folmar may have nothing more than token opposition when he seeks reelection this fall. The city election, originally scheduled for July, has been reset for October by the Alabama Supreme Court...

The total number of state employees has increased by more than 700 since the new Administration took office in January. It now tops the 30,000 mark. It is a seldom considered fact, but Alabama's state government has grown more in the past two decades than the federal government.

Bama becomes presidential bellwether

by Governor George C. Wallace

Alabama, still partial to the Democratic Party in choosing state and local officials but nourishing a newfound political independence in national affairs, may emerge as a key southern state in the 1984 presidential election.

Political analysts generally are predicting a vigorous campaign by both the Democrats and Republicans in the south as a whole, especially if President Reagan runs for re-election. With Reagan heading the GOP ticket, the Democrats will just about have to carry the south to win the election.

And Alabama is shaping up as a bellwether state, partly because of its independent spirit demonstrated in our recent presidential elections and also because it has one of the earliest presidential primaries in the nation.

Alabama is one of a number of states which will have the primary on March 13. The elections on that day, along with earlier voting in New Hampshire and Iowa, could give one of the presidential candidates a decisive early lead.

Most of the big-name candidates who are seeking the Democratic nomination have already begun their campaigns with personal appearances in Alabama. They will be here again, and others with them, before the March primary.

The Republicans haven't really started their campaigning in Alabama, waiting for President Reagan to announce whether he will run for another term. But they will be here; you can depend on that. Reagan, or whoever else may seek the GOP nomination, will be counting heavily on southern support.

It wasn't always that way, of course. For nearly a hundred years after the War between the States neither party even bothered to solicit Alabama's votes in a presidential election year because the Democrats were a cinch to win.

Consequently, there was no incentive for the Democrats to campaign in Alabama or anywhere else in the south. They had our support; they knew it, and they didn't have to make us any campaign promises.

We got no attention from the Republicans, either. They knew they weren't going to win and they didn't try too hard.

It's different now, much different. Alabama has voted Republican in three of the last five presidential elections--in 1964, 1972 and 1980--and neither party can be sure of our votes. They don't take us for granted anymore.

I am eternally grateful to the people of Alabama for allowing me to help bring about the change. It was our efforts in the presidential campaigns of 1968, 1972 and 1976 which showed the national party leaders just how much the people value their political independence.

In fact, as Democratic leaders tell it, their party has carried Alabama only "one and one-half times" in the past quarter of a century. That was in 1960 when John F. Kennedy got only five of Alabama's electoral votes (the rest went to Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia), and in 1976 when Jimmy Carter got all of Alabama's votes in the electoral college.

Actually, you might say the Democrats carried the state two and one-half times instead of one and one-half. I ran for president as a third-party candidate in 1968, but in Alabama I was the nominee of the Democratic Party and I got the state's electoral votes.

Alabama has gone Republican twice since then, supporting Richard Nixon in 1972 and President Reagan in 1980. Consequently, both parties will be campaigning furiously in Alabama next year, making all sorts of political promises.

Whether we believe the promises or not, at least they are paying attention to us. That's something they didn't bother to do for a long, long time.

Firearms course recommended

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to send my sincere thanks to all of the instructors of the Basic Pistol Marksmanship course offered by the Shelby County FOP Lodge No. 41.

I was fortunate enough to attend their course offered May 19, 20 and 21 and feel it was one of the most rewarding courses I have ever had the privilege to attend.

I would highly recommend the course for all the citizens of Shelby County as we all should be prepared in a life threatening situation.

I would especially recommend the course for women who, like myself, may be a little apprehensive where firearms are concerned, but may need their protection that once in a lifetime - or for the pure enjoyment of it.

A special thanks to instructors Jim Keister, Tom Carter and Frank Page for their patience and concern with myself as well as all the other students.

I hope all citizens interested in learning more about firearms will contact one of the above mentioned instructors or the Shelby County FOP.

It is a program I think everyone would enjoy and be proud of, and one I know I will treasure life long.

Also, a special thanks to Sergeant Neil Crim for making the course known to me.

Again many thanks, your the greatest.

Sincerely,
Sharron Davis

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Writing is not all laughter. There is sadness, too, and things you wish weren't there. Like an old friend, ill in a hospital half a world away. When I was at the University, learning to write in Hudson Strode's Creative Writing Class, he never came home without calling me to see if I wanted to come. I didn't forget it, although our paths went separate ways for close to fifty years.

Today Bub told me A.D. was ill in the hospital in Manchester, New Hampshire. Maybe, if I'll take time, I can say a few words that'll sort o' pay him back for being so thoughtful long ago. I hope two bluebirds will build a nest outside his window and there'll be rainbows in the afternoon sky and folks who'll be as kind to him as he was to me.

And for all you folks who remember A.D. Gordon from yesterday, he is a patient in room 343, Elliott Hospital, Manchester, N.H. A little card telling him you remember will be about the nicest thing you'll do all day.

* * * *

His name is Dewitt Lucas. Fifty-five years ago he was in my sixth grade class at Newala. Along with Eunice Edwards and Beatrice Ingram and Exton and Lexie Lowery and Don Milstead and James Hardy and the Wright boys and many more. All those beautiful kids who came to us from Newala, Spring Creek, Enon and up and down the roads between.

But that was yesterday. And from then until now enough water has gone over the dam to fill an ocean. That's the way it is. We follow our dreams, each in his own fashion, and the years pile up, and before you know it it is yesterday again and you are face to face with the little things that made yesterday beautiful.

Dewitt, burdened with tough luck, has spent about 30 years in and out of hospitals with a bad foot. He lost one half of his foot in 1980 and is unable to do much except watch television and read his Bible.

His wife, Fannie Belle wrote: "---thanks for the enjoyment you bring to so many people---"

I guess that's the real pay, Fannie Belle. And if you remember Dewitt take a few minutes and mail him a card. The address is Moundville, Alabama, Route 1, Box 624, 35274.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I found myself stuck on a log in the river the other day.

It's hard to believe that a simple request to take a picture could have gotten me into that pickle - but it did.

Arriving late at an event I covered over the weekend, I was scurrying around snapping pictures before the folks there sat down to eat.

Although there may be exceptions, I've found that the best time to capture folks on film is not when they're putting food in their mouths.

After getting some shots of the horseshoe players who were just winding up their game, I made a mad dash to the swimming pool some distance away in hopes someone would still be paddling around.

Fortunately I caught some members of the younger generation who agreed to leap and dive from the diving board for my lens.

I had wanted to get some pictures of folks cruising on the river, but when I'd passed the dock on my way to the pool, the boat was nowhere in sight.

On my return trip, I saw that the boat had already come in and the passengers were trodding up the path toward me.

"Go back," I implored. "I want to get your picture on the boat."

But they wouldn't cooperate.

"Come on, I'll take you for a ride," the boat operator offered.

Although that wasn't what I had in mind, I decided to go.

As it turned out, I wasn't to be the lone passenger.

The driver invited a couple of teens to jump in, and then before we could push off, a mother and her young son came hurrying up for a ride.

"This is working out pretty well," I thought. "Now I'll be able to get in the bow and take some pictures of the folks in the back seat with the boat's wake in the background."

Then, before mother and child could get settled, we were hailed by a man making his way down the hill.

"Don't leave without me," he called. "I've been waiting for a ride all afternoon."

Who could turn down that request? But looking around, I wondered where he was going to sit.

With a little juggling, the driver found a place for him by squeezing one of the other passengers in next to me.

Somewhat hampered, I was still able to raise my arms and take the pictures I'd envisioned.

All went well until we approached the dock for a landing at the end of our voyage.

Then it happened. We struck a log and were securely snagged.

The walk to shore wouldn't have been far, but it would have been wet.

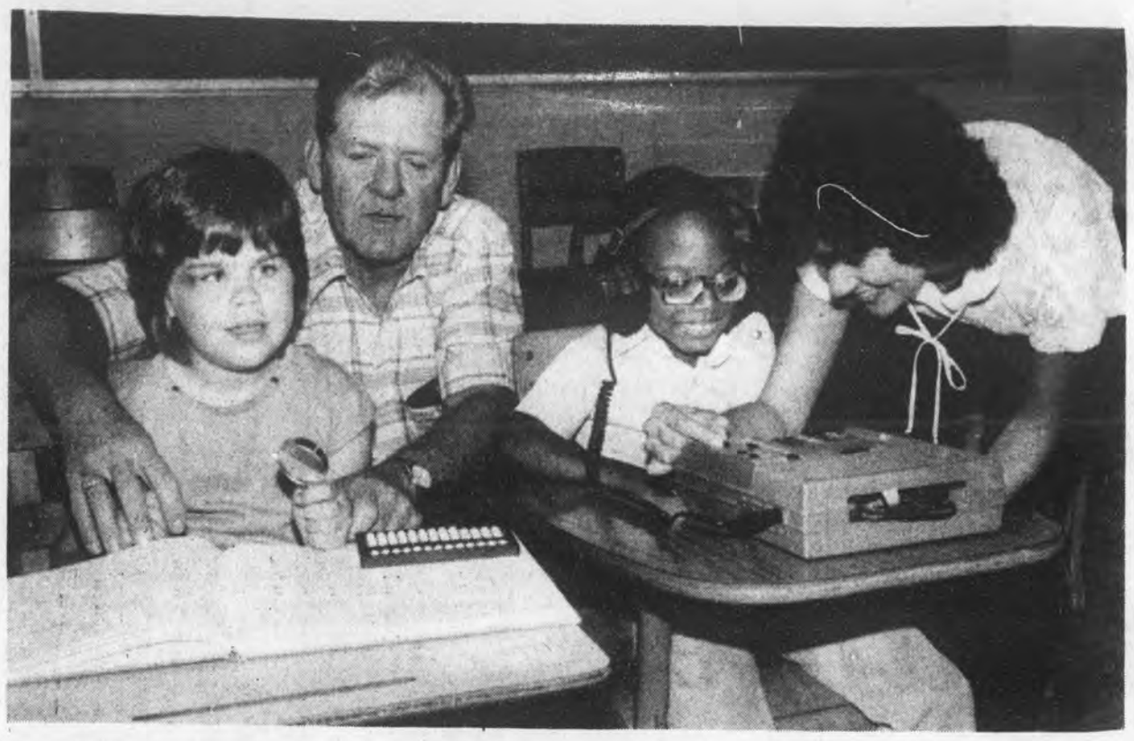

But our abashed pilot saved the day by taking off his shoes, rolling up his pants and getting out to push.

He heaved and shoved until he got us off the log and then managed to get on board again before we drifted away.

Since no one else knew how to operate the boat, I could just see us floating out into the river with everyone on shore waving and wishing us a bon voyage.

However, our adventure had a happy ending.

Even though our reverse gear seemed to have disappeared, the driver navigated us around in a circle until we reached the dock and good old terra firma.

Central Civitan Club President Roy Thomas finds out how Wyndi Conn handles a reading assignment in her class for the visually impaired at Thompson Elementary School. Teacher Carol Buttel gives her attention to Henry O. Jones as he listens to a talking book.

Civitans give $500 to TES class

Students in the visually impaired class at Thompson Elementary School need specialized materials.

Responding to that need, the Central Civitan Club of Alabaster recently made a $500 donation.

Carol Buttel, who taught 12 students in the class this past year, says the money will be used to purchase large print books, special paper, tapes, talking books and magnifiers.

The children in the class are either partially sighted, or legally blind.

Columbiana has the only other such class in the county shcool system.

Cancer award

Better late than never... That's what the American Cancer Society Shelby County Chapter said by its actions, Friday. Norma Rogers, principal of Valley Elementary School, was presented a plaque for her outstanding job as crusade chairman last year. Armed with a goal of $15,000 and an eager group of volunteers, Rogers produced $18,000 for her efforts. Presenting the plaque to Rogers are Bill Bush, president of the Shelby County Chapter, left, and Charles Hawkins, memorial chairman for the society, right. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Areas reviewed for loans

Some areas of Shelby County currently eligible for FmHA rural housing loans, are under review for change. The changes from eligible to ineligible are necessitated by population increases and urbanization, according to FmHA county supervisor Eddie Elliott.

The FmHA Rural Housing Loan Program is designed to provide housing for families in rural areas, but as rural areas become urbanized, they lose their eligibility.

Elliott said the changes will go into effect on July 1, 1983. A map of the ineligible areas will be posted in the FmHA office.

SHELBY COUNTY BOARD OF REGISTRARS will be at the FIRST NATIONAL BANK of COLUMBIANA: CAHABA VALLEY - INVERNESS BRANCH on June 23, 1983: 3 p.m.-7 p.m. Anyone who needs to registrar or reidentify may do so at this time.

Pelham Zoning

that it was getting late," Dean continued. "I looked around and saw some baseball people (at city hall for another meeting), and they said the board members had left."

"This has never come up before," McKinnis told the Reporter. "It's really shocking (that they missed the meeting) because some of them have been there before."

McKinnis did not recall the board ever holding "pre-meetings." Furthermore, he said nearly all the planning meetings are held in the smaller room.

He said he had been surprised that no one was in there when the meeting convened, since R-3 zoning usually brings out the "standard complaint of additional traffic."

"The mistake was that they went in one room and we went in the other," McKinnis continued. "If we could legally do it, I'd like to rehold the public meeting. They should have the opportunity to express themselves."

Mayor Dunaway agreed. He said he checked with city attorney Frank Ellis, and was told the meeting could be held again -- if Russo agreed.

Dunaway said that when he came to city hall shortly before the meeting time, he spoke to a little league representative who asked him if a group of baseball coaches could meet that night in the council chamber.

"It's not unusual to have other meetings going on (at city hall)," he said, adding that he cut on the lights and air conditioner in the chamber council, before going into the smaller room next door.

Dunaway said he saw people standing around, and later saw others in the chamber, but didn't recognize any of them in connection with Russo's zoning issue -- which came up two years ago and was turned down by both the planning board and the city council, after some heated arguments.

He said that many of the protestors had only attended council meeting before in the large room, but "some of them certainly knew where the planning and zoning meeting are held."

He added that the city had mailed out letters announcing the meeting to property owners adjoining Russo's land. The meeting was also advertised twice in the legal section of the Reporter.

"It was a legal meeting," Dunaway said. "No one was trying to slide anything by. I want everybody to have their say, but Russo would have to agree to another meeting."

However, Russo, who lives in Vestavia, said he was inclined to let the board's affirmative vote stand, if his lawyer agrees.

"As far as I'm concerned, leave it like it stands," he said. "I don't know what I'm going to do (with my 26 acres on Helena Road). All I want is to get it zoned the way it's supposed to be."

He said the late Mayor Paul Yeager had approached him a number of years ago about annexation of the area to Pelham. According to Russo, he agreed to annexation if he could get the land zoned R-3, which Yeager agreed to in writing.

The final say on Russo's zoning sits with the Pelham City Council, which is expected at its next meeting to set a date for a public hearing and final vote on the issue.

Dunaway said the final vote will probably come on July 18. Russo, area residents and city officials are expected to turn out -- this time in the same room -- to voice opinions on the matter.

"I feel like we're fighting an uphill battle, now," Vaughn Olson said.

"After the way we were treated Wednesday, we can't help but think they've (the city) already made up their minds," said Mrs. Yessick.

Countians graduate from Troy

Three Shelby County students were among 400 seniors who graduated from Troy State University this spring. The commencement exercises were held on Friday, June 3 at the main campus.

Among those earning degrees were Donna Miley Holland of Chelsea, Joseph Manning Harrell of Alabaster and William Paul Henke of Shelby.

What Does Jesus Teach About - Tradition?

Matt. 15:3-9 "Why do ye also transgress the commandment of God because of your tradition? For God said, Honor thy father and thy mother: and, He that speaketh evil of father or mother, let him die the death. But ye say, Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother, That wherewith thou mightest have been profited by me is given to God; he shall not honor his father or his mother. And ye have made void the word of God because of your tradition. Ye hypocrites, well did Isaiah prophesy of you, saying, This people honoreth me with their lips; But their heart is far from me. But in vain do they worship me, Teaching as their doctrines the precepts of men."

First Annual

Shelby County Reporter

Sports Hall of Fame

They're the athletes that pull through in the clutch. The big play makers. The senior stars. The Reporter wanted to honor these graduates one more time. Wanted to remember them. Hence, we proudly present our First Annual Sports Hall of Fame. To pick the inductees, we asked each school to take a vote of its students. CVA was, unfortunately, unable to participate, and some schools varied on the method of choosing their honorees. But all in all, we think these athletes are excellent representatives of both their schools and the athletic programs throughout Shelby County.

ERIC WOODARD, ISS

Eric Wood ard, a soccer player extraordinare, was named the most outstanding senior athlete at Indian Springs School.

Woodward was one of a select few players who represented the state of Alabama in a national tournament played at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

He was named to the under-16 state tournament team, and also selected as Most Valuable Player for the state's under-16 age group.

He is proudest of the fact that he was the second leading scorer for Indian Springs School with a total of 18 goals.

EDWARD WILSON, CALERA

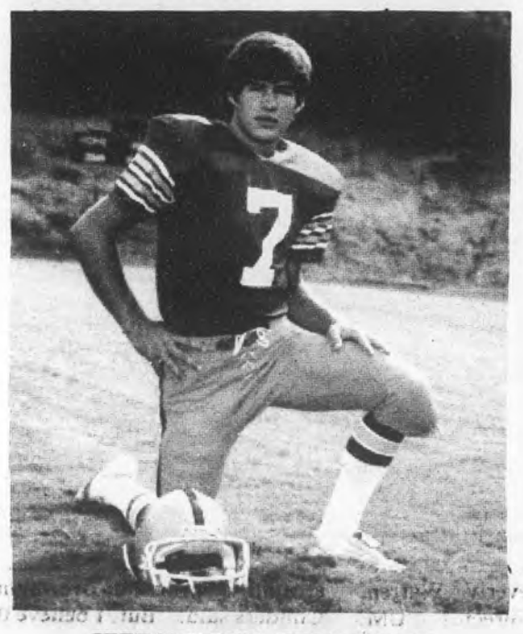

Calera's nomination to the Hall of Fame came on the vote of coaches and seniors alike. There was only one clear choice -- Edward Wilson.

While he is proud of being named captain of his football team, he was also named to All County, All Conference and All State teams. He was also picked as Calera's most valuable back.

But Wilson was not a one dimensional athlete, and also proved himself in basketball and baseball.

In basketball, the team captain earned Mr. Hustle, and was named to All County and All Conference squads.

He took All County honors in baseball .

JEFF NELSON, BRIARWOOD

When Briarwood coaches tried to pick their school's most outstanding senior athlete, Jeff Nelson naturally rose to the top of the list.

After all, as a tenth grader he was an All State kicker in football. As a senior, he proved to be an all county basketball player and the winning edge in his school's effort for state football crown.

Even though a knee injury had doctors shaking their heads just three weeks before a state title match, Nelson came back to run 65 yards for a touchdown in that title winning bout.

Also making Nelson the top choice of his coaches at Briarwood was his outstanding student quality. He has been awarded an academic scholarship to Samford University.

Nelson says the run in his school's championship winning game was his greatest moment.

J.J. MOORE, MONTEVALLO

When Montevallo High School voted for its representative to the Reporter Hall of Fame, J. J. Moore came out the clear winner.

This young man, who intends to join the "proud and the few" Marines, received three quarters of his school's votes.

It was little wonder he earned such respect -- he played football for four years, basketball for three, ran track and field for two, and participated two years in weightlifting.

He was named All County in football, the Most Valuable Offensive Back and team captain.

In basketball he was an MVP, team captain, and made all tourney teams at the Calera Invitational, the county tournament, and the area tournament.

His proudest moment came when he won Montevallo's Theron Fisher Award.

TOMMY WHITE, CHELSEA

When the folks at Chelsea went to pick a nominee for the Hall of Fame...the name Tommy White rose to the top.

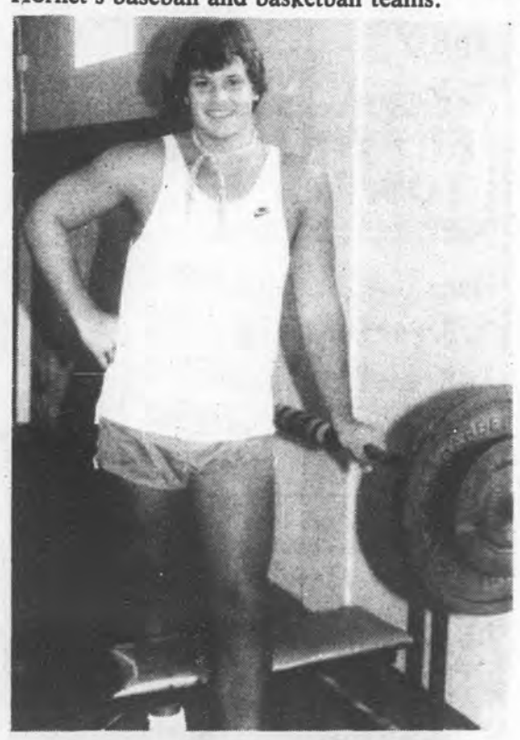

In football, White was named All County for '82-'83, and MVP for the same years.

But the list doesn't stop there. He won the Stug Award for '82-'83, was made a permanment football captian, chosen player of the week by an area newspaper, and was nominated for the U.S. National Football Award.

The list still does not end.

He was offered a scholarship from Marion Military Institute, voted Class Favorite, and made the school's 'C' Club. Furthermore, he was a four year letterman.

White also loaned his athletic ability to the Hornet's baseball and basketball teams.

JEFF BENTLEY, THOMPSON

Thompson's vote went into a run off before what could be called a surprise winner emerged. Big tackle Jeff Bentley beat out the big offensive guns as top athlete.

Though tackles are often short on fame, Bentley's work did not go unrecognized by college scouts and he won a full scholarship to play for Ray Perkins' Crimson Tide.

He says his proudest moment in sports was when his "team" won the 1983 State 3-A Football Championship. But if you push him for individualism, he will admit that the pitch-out he intercepted against Vincent was a lot of fun.

Bentley was named All County, All Mid-State and All State his junior and senior year. As a senior he was named team captain, All South, and All American.

Thompson's choice for outstanding athlete may not be such a surprise after all.

HAL SHELTON, PELHAM

Hal Shelton of Pelham High School proved to be a deserving Panther choice.

At 6' and 200 pounds he was his football team's most valuable player as a senior and served as team captain.

But apart from his ability on the gridiron, Shelton was also tapped for the National Honor Society and named to Who's Who for his academic prowess.

In his freshman year he was captain of the junior high football team and as a junior he was named most valuable defensive back and winner of the athletic achievement award.

He was also a good citizenship award winner and three time class president.

Shelton's greatest athletic achievement was a diving tackle that saved his team from defeat in the season ending game against Chilton County.

KEITH KNOWLES, SHELBY ACADEMY

While students at Shelby Academy were not able to vote on a top athlete for the Hall of Fame, the school's coaches had little trouble coming up with their own choice.

Keith Knowles is the man.

He lettered four years in baseball, football and basketball.

He is most proud of the fact he was named All District in all three major sports -- as well being named team captain in all three categories during his busy senior year.

In addition, Knowles was named MVP in football and baseball for 1983.

In football Knowles played both ways, doubling as fullback on offense, linebacker on defense.

For the Raiders baseball team, he played shortstop and pitched. In basketball, the 5'11" athlete was a point guard.

RONALD BENTON, SCHS

The students at Shelby County High School voted Ronald Benton their most outstanding senior athlete.

Benton, the leading pitcher for the 1983 County Championship Wildcats, says his proudest moment in high school sports came when SCHS whipped Vincent for the county title.

The strength of his arm is exemplified by the outstanding 11-inning game he pitched against Thompson -- even if it was a loss.

Furthermore, at the plate Benton batted .400 his senior year. He was named the Most Valuable Player in the county for baseball, and earned All County honors for baseball and football as well.

He was also named Senior Class Favorite at SCHS and captain of the football team, for which he quarter-backed.

VERNON KELLER, VINCENT

Vincent's Vernon Keller brings some good credentials to the Hall of Fame.

The fact that several area newspapers picked him as Player of the Week -- at three different positions -- says a lot about his ability and versatility. He was recognized as an outstanding forward, guard, and center.

He set new school basketball records by breaking the 1,000 marks in both scoring and rebounding.

As a freshman he averaged ten points per game. As a junior and senior he averaged 15 points -- good enough to be named All County, All Mid State and All Area -- twice.

All this added up to a two year scholarship to Southern Junior College of Business in Birmingham -- sometimes a springboard sc l for major college teams.

Why do people play golf anyway?

Drop please!

Steve Cumbo hopes for par in the UM Falcon Club Tournament held this past weekend.

Sports Editor's note -- Dr. Miriam Collins is not responsible for my poor showing in the UM Falcon Club golf tournament. She once taught me to play golf. Last week, for good luck in the tourney, she gave me a golf ball and two tees. I did the rest by myself...

by Fred Guarino

The University of Montevallo boasts one of the most beautiful nine hold golf courses I've ever seen.

I can say that without a doubt because I was one of those guys who saw it from every angle, Saturday and Sunday in the UM Falcon Club golf tournament.

While I was digging my lucky optic orange golf ball out of holes, blasting it out of sand traps and trying to retrieve it from the depths of numerous water hazards, a question came to mind I just had to ask...

Just why do people play golf, anyway?

I decided to ask some of the others playing in tourney.

Benny Niven, Montevallo: "I love it... the competition and the challenge... Anyone who knows anything about golf knows what a challenge it is.

"I used to drive by and see people chasing that stupid little white ball and wonder why they did it. Now I know..."

UM baseball coach Bob Riesener: "I like it because I get away from the hustle and bustle of my job."

After talking to other golfers, I realized there's just about as many reasons to hit that dimpled little ball as there are folks who play the game.

Dr. Lewis Kirkland, Montevallo: He termed it a game of challenge, one in which players are never perfect. He added, "It's an old man's game... I can play a long time."

Fred Frost, Montevallo: "I play for relaxation and exercise."

Steve Cumbo, Alabaster: "So I can win a softdrink from -------." (Brand name withheld upon request.)

Larry Pickett, Montevallo saw it this way: "Just for the pleasure, enjoyment, competitiveness and fellowship with the other players. Golf is the only sport where fellowship and honor is up to each individual."

Dr. Leon Davis, UM golf coach: "Because it is the toughest game I've ever tried to play."

After I took nine strokes to get through the par four number six hole, I found it a little hard to take some of these men at their word... enjoyment, relaxation, exercise and fellowship... with a nine hole score of 53!

But the more I played, the more I understood what the Falcon Club members were saying.

Bob Bolton, Columbiana: "It's such an enjoyable game and the fellowship you have with people makes it one of the greatest games there is. I wish I had started 20 years ago."

I have to admit that when I was hitting the ball badly, no one in my foursome made fun of me. They laughed with me and offered advice. I began to feel more confident as the day wore on and I started to shoot a little better.

And, after I hit a really good drive that nearly reached the green of the number one par four, the words of Pete Lucas from Calera proved true as well.

Lucas: "I like the feel of the ball hitting the club."

Sonny Dailey of Pea Ridge expressed the sentiments of what I consider a true golfer: "I like it because I just play all the time. I can't really play golf. If I could I'd like it even more."

Sonny's son, Steve Dailey: "Golf is just an individual effort. It's all on your shoulders. You can't blame anyone. And, if you get a good shot, it gives you a good feeling and makes you come out the next day."

Ed Taylor, Montevallo: "I think golf affords an opportunity for the older fellow to indulge in athletics, where by he might not be able in other sports."

Taylor added that the handicap system in golf makes the sport a great one at any level of competition.

As sweat dripped off my head and my arms ached with the pain of being out of shape, I trudged up to the 18th hole Sunday and I realized something...

I play golf because I like it. And for whatever reasons people give...most play golf because they like it, too.

Why not? There's a lot to like about the game.

Club tourney held

When all of the dust settled and all of the divots were replaced Sunday, the winners of the UM Falcon Club golf tournament were clear.

It was also clear that UM supporters want to see that school has a fine golf program, because they donated $700 for golf scholarships.

Tournament fees entitled players to become members of the UM Falcon Club and to participate in 36 holes of golf with a chance to be winners.

After two days on the university's nine-hole course, Robby Tibbs defeated William Brummitt for the championship of the A division.

But Brummitt enjoyed some glory of his own. He proved to be the low medalist for the division with a first day 18-hole score of 74.

The championship of Division B went to Pap McClendon.

John Stamps almost missed the shotgun start of the tournament, but didn't miss the greens in the first flight.

Stamps took his clubs and whacked out of total score of 159 to win low medalist and defeat Leon Davis for the championship.

Johnny Kimbrell whipped Bob Bolton for the consolation prize.

Second flight championship honors went to Benny Nivens who defeated Fred Frost, and who shot a total of 172 for low medalist.

Ed Taylor put the wood to the ball to beat Dr. Milton Orr for the consolation.

The third and final flight went to Mac McGehee, who out scored Sonny Dailey for the championship and low medalist honors.

Steve Cumbo demolished Fred Guarino for the consolation prize.

SCHS boosters ready to swing

Shelby County golf enthusiasts can start practicing their swing for the annual SCHS Booster Club golf tournament.

The event to help pay for lighting the Wildcats' stadium will be held at Buxahatchee Country Club, Saturday, June 18.

According to William Rasco there will be seven flights and two tee off times.

One group will hit the links at 8:30 a.m. and another will try to reach the greens at 1 p.m.

Rasco says that anyone interested in this tournament should call him at 669-3158 as soon as possible. He states that there are slots for only 80 players and 50 have already signed the roster.

Coaches clinic to be held

The University of Montevallo will host the Coca-Cola All-American Coaches Clinic July 8-10.

UM basketball coach Dr. Bill Elder will coordinate the clinic with the help of some big names in basketball coaching.

Owen and truck to face off at Stallions game

The crystal ball says Tom Owen of Shelby County's King Ranch will be run-over by a truck Friday night.

No, it's not a horrible prediction from a psychic. It's a statement of fact.

According to King Ranch social worker Sherry Barton, Owen will allow himself to be run-over by a truck at Friday night's Stallions game at Legion Field.

In addition, he will attempt to set somekind of world record by pulling a truck-load of Phillies with his teeth -- just what record we're not sure, but it sounds interesting...

Owen is the executive director of the King Ranch and is known throughout the Southeast for his weightlifting prowess.

County girl takes flag

The men who roar around the track at Birmingham International Raceway have nothing on Melia Powell Kovakas of Pelham.

Friday night, she won a powder buff race against seven other cars.

What's more, Friday night was the first time she had ever dared to drive on the 5/8th mile circle track.

UM names coach

The University of Montevallo has completed a three month search for a new women's basketball coach.

Billy "Bud" Childers, head coach of Cumberland Junior College in Lebanon, Tenn. will replace retiring Becky Glass.

"We are delighted to have a person of the caliber of Bud joining the Montevallo athletic program," said Beverly Warren, women's athletic director at UM.

She added, "He was the top choice of everyone on the search committee..."

Childers, age 27, led Cumberland to a second place finish in the 1983 National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) national tournament and a 33-4 record.

In two years at Cumberland, Childers won 85.5% of his games. In addition, he was named NJCAA Region VII and the Tennessee NJCAA Coach of the Year for 1981-82 and 1982-83.

Childers has also been a runner-up for national coaching honors and was a finalist for both the NJCAA Kodak Coach of the Year and the Wade Foundation Coach of the year.

As for rebuilding Montevallo's program which won only seven games during the past two years, Childers admitted that it's a "serious challenge".

"No one can come in and turn around a program overnight," Childers said. "But, I believe that a .500 season is reasonable..."

"My coaching philosophy is built around disciplined, intelligent athletes who can run with the basketball, play aggressive defense, and yet be able to handle pressure..."

Childers is a 1976 graduate of Cumberland College and holds a B.S. degree in marketing from Charleston Baptist College in Charleston, S.C.

He is married to the former Judy Dolezal and has one son, Brett, age 4.

Fathers... don't ya just love 'em? Well I do, especially my own.

So, I'd like to take this opportunity to wish each and every one of you dads out there who have ever:

•Taken a little girl fishing when you'd rather go by yourself.

•Taken in just one more puppy or kitten, because it was so-o-o-o cute daddy!

•Taken the time to read just one more story, when you had work to do.

And mostly for forgiving us kids, who seem to always overlook your wise advice and more often than not, need your help out of 'hot-water'.

Thanks, guys! You're the greatest...

Pickin' at the music business

by Bert Seaman

Although she sings and writes country and gospel music, one of Tina Aldridge's favorite songs is the Marines' Hymn.

"And if I don't make it in the music business," declares the 16-year old Vandiver country singer/songwriter, "I want to join the Marines."

Tina isn't sure just why she has such a strong feeling for that branch of the military service, except that she's heard her father talk so often about serving with the Marines in Korea.

Some of her biggest thrills on her 16th birthday May 22, were the gifts of three albums of music played by the Marine Corps band, and two T-shirts with the Marine Corps emblem.

"I like to have cried," she said, telling about the Marines who showed up at her surprise birthday party with the gifts.

But Marines are second.

Tina's goal in life is to make a name for herself in the world of country music.

Although things aren't exactly popping for her yet, Tina has a record out on the Brite Star label entitled, "Have You Told her About Me?" The song is her own composition.

Her penchant for song writing began two years ago. Since then, her lyrics have filled most of a notebook.

Just about anything can inspire a song, she said. "Last night," Tina related, "I was turning the radio dial and caught the words, 'you hurt me,' in a song".

Fifteen minutes later, she'd finished a song of her own entitled, "Do You Really?"

"Mostly I write sad songs," she remarked. "Something just seems to bring out the sad in me."

The explanation might have something to do with the way she feels about Hank Williams, Tina thinks. "I just love his songs," she said.

Tina has been singing since the age of three, but she didn't start playing the guitar until she was 13.

Without the benefit of lessons, she started picking on her dad's guitar, and taught herself "Clementine."

After his daughter had played the same song a few hundred times, Jimmy Aldridge offered to pay for lessons.

It only took one lesson for Tina to learn "The Streets of Laredo." She continued with her lessons from that studio for awhile and then studied with a Homewood musician.

"But I've developed my own style now and I don't take lessons anymore," she reported.

Asked where she performs, Tina's answer is "Anywhere I'm asked."

That includes the Veterans' Administration Hospital, A.G. Gaston Nursing Home, the Vincent Senior Citizens' Center, and at various church functions.

Her biggest claim to fame so far is her association with the Country Boy Eddie Show. She frequently appears on the popular show on Tuesday mornings.

Tina's social life isn't like that of most girls her age. She's not one of the crowd. But Tina and her family share a close relationship.

One of her favorite ways to spend time when she's not singing and doing for others, is to go fishing with her dad. "And I stay here and entertain Kimberly," laughs Margaret Aldridge, Tina's mom.

Kim is Tina's five year old sister.

Although Tina and her family are putting all their efforts into launching her on a successful career in country music, they're not doing it alone.

I've prayed to God to let me make it in the music business," Tina said.

One reason she wants so badly to succeed, is because of her desire to do something for others.

"I really love helping people," Tina insists.

That's why she visits the veterans' hospital and senior citizens and the nursing home.

And when a church pays Tina for singing, she gives part of that money back for "an orphanage or to help people somewhere."

At "Sweet Sixteen," Tina's longing for the country.

Sights set

Driving through the hills on her way to Vandiver, Tina Aldridge composed the song "The Hills of Alabama." The young singer-composer, who has just turned 16, is setting her sights on a career in the country music business.

The Hills of Alabama

by Tina Marie Aldrich

Deep down in Alabama where I was born
I remember walkin'
through the fields of our country farm
Playing the old guitar to them old country tunes...
But the song in my heart
Brings back those country blues.

(chorus:)
The hills of Alabama keep calling me
They bring back my childhood memory
I dream about the time when I was just a boy
Yea, those hills of Alabama
Bring back my childhood
joy.

Nunnelley Tech changes to meet the times

by Marcia M. Sears

The study of robotics is on the way to Childersburg.

Thomas Morris, the dean of instruction at Nunnelley State Technical College, told the school's advisory committee last week how class offerings are changing to meet the times.

Robotics will be taught in the electronic curriculum, and so will computer aided drafting.

Morris said the new drafting class will give draftspersons the opportunity to come back to school to upgrade their training.

In the study of electric motors, students will learn about solid state and programmable controls.

Nursing -- one of the most popular courses taught at Nunnelley -- is having another class added this year, he said. The school uses three hospitals, including Shelby Medical Center, for training.

Morris said that Nunnelley offers students interested in auto body work "probably the most modern auto body training in Alabama."

He emphasized that the fast changes in auto mechanics are "unbelievable." Computerized transmission and carburetion systems now mean that a person who works on autos must be "75% technician and only 25% mechanic."

Another new course will be a 15-month program on computers. After nine months of schooling, a student will qualify as a computer operator, and at the end of 15 months will have learned to be a programmer.

Dr. James H. Cornell, president of Nunnelley, said he has had to make several cutbacks in the staff because of proration. He has let one instructor go, and reduced the employment of several others from 12 to nine months.

He said enrollment is down in air conditioning, brick laying and machine shop, yet the school is

4-H'ers learn meat shopping tactics at AU

Shelby County 4H teams placed high in a meat judging competition recently held at Auburn University.

A junior and senior team composed of seven Shelby County 4H'ers called upon by judges to grade the texture, firmness and color of wholesale and retail meat cuts and the conformation, fat and cutability of red meat carcasses.

The teams judged six classes of meats, gave two sets of oral reasons for their placements, and identified cuts according to species, wholesale and retail type of cut and method of cookery.

"This activity gives young people an appreciation for the end product of livestock production and gives them a knowledge of selecting, buying and preparing meat products," said Bill Jones, Extension food scientist coordinator of the event.

Junior team members are: Janice Tucker, Wilsonville; Emily Mann, Columbiana; Sherry Gerald and Joy Gulledge, both of Chelsea.

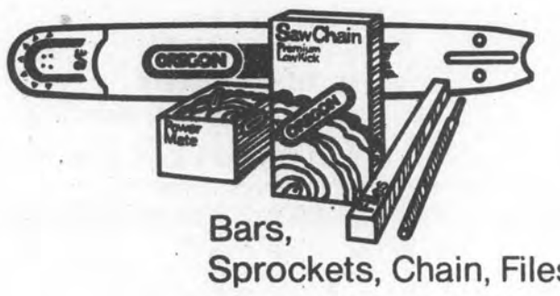

Senior team members are: Michelle Ray, Pam Warren, and DeeDee Reed, all of Columbiana.

The Shelby County junior team placed first in its division. Janice Tucker was second highest individual.

Accompanying the teams on the trip to Auburn University were county agents Peggy A. Prucnal, John Jones, Mrs. Flynn Gerald and Mrs. James W. Gulledge.

Vickrey is on symphony board

University of Montevallo President, Dr. Jim Vickrey has been elected to a three-year term on the board of trustees of the Alabama Symphony Orchestra.

"It is an honor for President Vickrey to have been appointed to the board of directors of this organization, and that honor carries with it many opportunities for services to the arts in our state," Dr. John Stewart, dean of the UM College of Fine Arts, said of the appointment.

"The Alabama Symphony Orchestra is certainly one of the most prestigious and potent forces for music and the arts in general in our state. I am very pleased for him and think that the board has made a wise choice in inviting him into their membership," Stewart added.

Vickrey is also a charter member of the Birmingham Arts Commission.

placing all its graduates from these areas in jobs.

The study of diesel mechanics always draws a big enrollment, and graduates are 100% employable, Cornell said.

He is planning to make other changes to keep up with the area's needs, including more night classes, and some type of cafeteria service for the students who enroll for them.

At present, word processing is extremely popular, he said. "Secretaries from all over are coming back at night to learn the new machines."

Nunnelley traditionally draws a large part of its enrollment from Shelby County, and runs buses here to transport them. For information on dates and costs of studying at Nunnelley: 1-378-5576, or P.O.Box 389, Childersburg, AL 35044.

It's summer when...

...you can swim...

... go fishing...

...and play baseball!

As of Tuesday, it's officially summer in Shelby County -- and from the activities going on, it's not hard to tell. At Gobbler's Knob in Helena (top) Shelly Malcolm and Keisha Reid take a cool dip in the pool. Jason Kibbe and friends fishing at the Triple E farm (center), didn't exactly catch a whopper, but it's still fun. And when it comes to baseball, the Alabaster Indians batter (bottom) has his mind on the centerfield fence. (Photos by Fred Guarino, Bert Seaman and Bill Casari)

Building permit hearing draws more interest than answers

by William Casari and David F. Moore

It was like a two-sided Rubik's Cube. Despite two hours of twisting arguments at a public hearing Monday on a county building permit/inspection law, no one ever came up with a solution.

The majority of those at the meeting, however, were clearly and strongly opposed to the measure.

The bill -- which has already been pushed through the State Senate by Spencer Bachus -- is now awaiting approval from the county's three state representatives before it can be presented to the public for a popular vote.

Two members of the house delegation, Don Murphy and Sonny Moore, attended Monday's meeting at the courthouse.

The meeting was called by Murphy, who wanted to hear public opinions before the county commission sent a resolution to Montgomery supporting the bill.

Murphy, and most of the 55 people in attendence contend that passage of the bill would add unnecessary red tape and expenses to a building industry that is just now emerging from three years of recession.

Proponents, however, contend that permit sales would generate income needed to meet growing service demands, and building inspections would add a safety and quality factor to both commercial and residential construction in the county.

Commissioner John Ames estimated Monday that the permit/inspection bill would cost $100,000 for a staff of seven and several automobiles -- a comment that brought a round of laughter and a digression into such subjects as governmental waste.

Wilsonville resident Frances Phelps said she wasn't totally opposed to the inspection program, but that the county budget couldn't afford one now. Furthermore, it was dangerous to view the bill solely as money maker because the county might be liable if something happened to a building it had approved as being safe, she said.

Noting that delays inspections might cause can be expensive, Phelps drew applause when she said, "We must do everything we can to get more building in Shelby County, and not hold it back!"

Others said that companies locate here because inspection fees penalize them in Jefferson and other counties.

Montevallo Administrator Don Hughes stressed that one-third of the county is already subject to municipal inspection laws.

A county building law "would make sure you get what you paid for and maintain good property values," Hughes said. Shoddy buildings deteriorate, he said, and bring down values of surrounding property.

But one woman countered that shoddy builders don't last long, so shoddy buildings aren't a factor.

Others -- such as Commissioner Jake Morris -- didn't like the idea of government infringement in such areas as farmers building

Could curb crime

Meadow Brook road approved

by Marcia M. Sears

In north Shelby County, crime is higher in subdivisions with dead-end streets. Sgt. John Pratt of the county sheriff's department said this to the crowd at the planning commission meeting Monday night.

It was not what 20 families who live in Meadow Brook wanted to hear.

The Meadow Brook representatives came to the meeting to ask the commission not to approve a street that would connect Broken Bow subdivision with theirs. Speaking for them, Nancy McClendon said she believed that crime would increase if the through street was opened.

But Pratt illustrated his point by saying the section of Inverness that has the most crime is Applecross, which has only "one way in - one way out, unless you swim across the lake on the golf course."

He emphasized that in his experience subdivisions that have through streets have fewer burglaries and other crimes than those with one-way access. "Riverchase used to be the biggest headache we had. Thank goodness Hoover now has it," Pratt continued. "We don't have the men to patrol it."

He added that the worst area for crimes in Riverchase is from old highway 31 back toward the country club, and that section does not have easy two-way access.

When he was asked how many deputies are on duty in north Shelby County, Pratt said there are usually two patrol cars on the day shift, two on the 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift and one on the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift. In addition a lieutenant, sergeant and investigator are usually in the area during the day.

Chief Winston Boutwell of the north Shelby Fire District was also at the meeting to speak up for the connecting street. He said that it would be an advantage to the fire department, because trucks could get into Meadow Brook faster than with the present road situation.

Mrs. Jane Mueksch and Jim Conway were also in favor of the road, saying they bought property in Broken Bow because the road was promised on the master plan.

Planning Commission chairman Roy Martin pointed out that the street had already been approved years earlier when the original Meadow Brook and Broken Bow plats were submitted, and a court case brought by McClendon and her husband will be heard July 26.

The commission went ahead and approved preliminary work in Broken Bow to build the street. But under the protests of the crowd, the commission voted not to allow the new sector of 19 lots to be called "Scotch's addition to Meadow Brook."

They argued successfully that the new sector would not be subject to the same architectural standards as Meadow Brook, and should not encroach on the Meadow Brook name.

Court will hear Pelham issue

by Bert Seaman

A Pelham resident told her city's council Monday that she was concerned for the people living in her area should a fire or medical emergency occur.

Helen Martin said that the road which would give access to her street should the railroad crossing be blocked has been closed off.

After discussing the situation, the council voted to take the matter to court.

Mrs. Martin lives off County Road 52 between the Atlantic Coastline (now Norfolk Southern) tracks and those of the L&N railroad.

Piles of dirt block the access road at the point where a slab permits a crossing at Pea Vine Creek.

Access was further blocked about a year ago when an industry located on the Helena side of the L&N tracks fenced off the road citing security as the reason.

When Mrs. Martin and her late husband moved to the area, she said that he had gotten the state to put in the slab so trains would not prevent emergency vehicles from reaching the street on which their home was built.

"If we need assistance now though," Mrs. Martin said, "there's no way in or out," (if the crossing is blocked).

After the first road was blocked, the Mayor reported that the city's attorney had advised the only route to take was through the courts.

Councilman Bob Cleveland said he thought the city should go in that direction and Councilman Ken Maynard agreed, saying "It appears to be the city's responsibility."

Maynard made a motion to take both cases to court and the council gave unanimous approval.

After questioning two lounge owners about incidents that had occurred at their businesses, the council approved the request of both for transfer of ownership and retail liquor licenses.

The request presented by Ellis Wayne Rich for a transfer from the Coo Coo's Nest to Wayne's was approved by a 3-2 vote with Cleveland and Willard Payne voting no.

Donald Ellison's request, which changes the name of the Pour House to Frog's Lounge, was unanimously approved.

Planning commissioners hear 'nobody told me...' pleas

"Nobody told me..."

That was the plea made by two persons at the meeting of the Shelby County Planning Commission Monday night.

One of the cases involved Annette Cleckler who was charged with a zoning violation for placing three mobile homes on a 2½ acre plot. The county minimum in Beat 12 is one home per acre. The property is located on Carl Raines Lake Road.

Mrs. Cleckler argued that the real estate agent who sold her the land had stated in writing that she could place up to four mobile homes on the plot. The health department had approved all the septic tanks, and no one mentioned the space restriction, she insisted.

She said the mobile homes were occupied by members of the same family and that her sister-in-law could not afford to move her mobile home away.

Members of the commission expressed sympathy for the plight of the family, but stated they would enforce the regulation. They suggested she had recourse with the real estate company, and gave her six months to comply with the regulations.

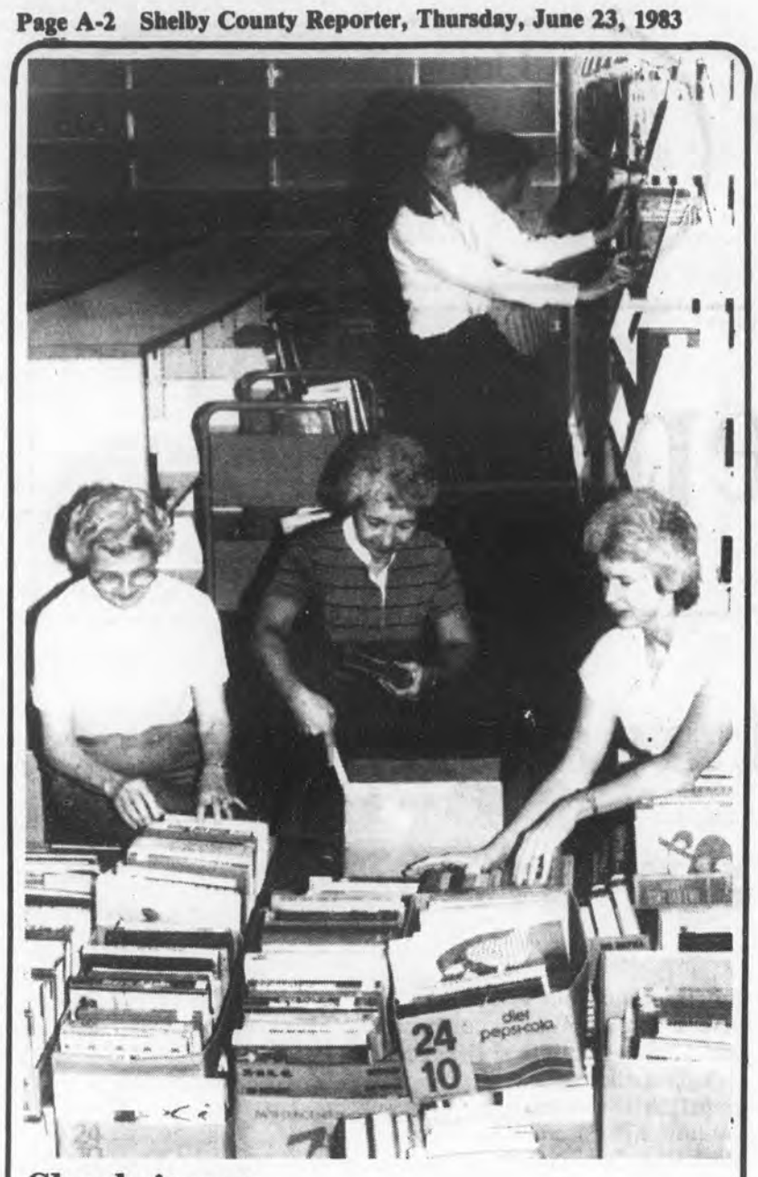

The other case involved the Rev. Martin Muller who is developing a subdivision near Westover on county 51, south of the new U.S. 280.

The commission told him that even for private subdivisions, several county regulations must be met. They told him he would have to install valley gutters along his streets, and would have to replace all the piping since it does not meet county standards.

Muller argued that he could not afford all the expense. "Nobody told me there are specifications for private subdivisions," he said. He added that prominent real estate people and even his bulldozer operator had suggested he go the private rather than the public subdivision route to save money on streets, storm sewers, drainage, and other requirements.

However, the planning commission held firm to its order that Muller stop work until the regulations were met.

He immediately started conferring with county engineer Gary Ray to explore ways he could comply.

Check it out

Alabaster librarian Mamie Templin has been urging patrons to check out books to cut down on the moving to the new facility. Here library board members Gladys Harper, Dot Henry and Katie Hill unpack books while Gail Smith and Carolyn Hughes from the Shelby County Library put them on shelves.

Scott library opens

Alabaster Librarian Mamie Templin and Friends of the Library have been moving books from shelves at the city annex to the city's new Albert L. Scott Memorial Library.

The building, which was constructed with a $300,000 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission, will be dedicated this Sunday.

Following the 2 p.m. ceremony, Friends of the Library will host a reception and conduct tours of the building.

The new building is designed to blend with the landscape on the corner of 2nd Ave and 9th St.

Included in its 5,400 square feet of floor space is room for a periodical and lounge area, a section for audio-visual equipment, a children's area, and a reading section.

A skylight connects the building to a community meeting area where a collection of watercolors will be on display following the dedication.

The artist is E. Keith McPheeters, Dean of the School of Architecture and Fine Arts at Auburn University.

The land for the library was donated by the family of the late Albert L. Scott, in whose memory the library was named.

Building inspection meeting barns. One woman brought a round of applause by saying that the bill would help kill small farmers.

Dixie Snowden, wife of Probate Judge Tommy Snowden, brought on a reaction by saying that if she pays for land and a house, she doesn't want someone telling her what to do with it.

"If I want to live in a chicken coop, it's my business," she insisted.

Commissioner Leon Archer, who supports the bill, said cutting county services will be necessary if another source of revenue isn't found. "We're racking our brains to bring in more income," he said.

"We could set up a toll booth at the Cahaba," suggested Bill Morris, thus putting a "migration fee" on those that build here.

Tommy Snowden indicated that cities such as Vincent and Pelham selling tax exempt bonds to such large firms as EBSCO, Dewberry Engraving, Harbert Corporation and Altec, eat away at county income.

The county has exacted revenge from the cities by creating county industrial parks for companies such as Alabama Power, subtracting them from municipal tax bases.

One licensing proponent said that, elsewhere, buying a building permit is "standard procedure. We're way behind the times. Let's get this thing under the law so we can get the money we're missing."

Jim King supported the bill saying that such planning now is necessary to the county's prosperity in 20 years.

When it was suggested that perhaps residential construction could be exempted from the permits and inspections, Inverness general manager Leo Karpeles said such a move would be "highly unfair. Only so much can be absorbed by the commercial sector."

Sixteen people raised their hands when Commissioner John Ames asked how many present were involved in the real estate or construction business.

At one point, there was actually some confusion as to whether or not the commission had already come out in support of the bill. Later, Ames said that the motion "to set up" the inspections through the pursuance of the bill was on page two of the April 11 commission meeting minutes.

Although no final solution to the Rubik's bill was reached, Murphy said in closing that he had learned a lot about the thoughts of the people he represents.

Ames charges that interests conflict

Commissioner John Ames claims that Representative Don Murphy's opposition to the county's building permit/inspection bill is a conflict of interest.

Ames is staking his accusation on Murphy's apparent involvement with RAYDON Construction Company, Inc.

Murphy is vice president of First Realty in Pelham. Ames said he was made aware of Murphy's connection with RAYDON, Inc. Tuesday, when someone anonymously sent him copies of the firm's incorporation papers.

"He (Murphy) has made the point that just because he's a realtor, he's not in conflict of interest," Ames told the Reporter. "But if he's a contractor, it appears to me that's a conflict of interest."

Numerous area contractors oppose the controversial bill on grounds that it will add expenses to their projects.

Ames said Murphy -- who also opposes the bill -- should not kill it in the local legislation committee, but give it a chance on the floor of house.

"I think he needs to abstain from voting," Ames said. He added that he was bringing the incorporation papers to next Monday's commission meeting.

Murphy was in Montgomery Tuesday and unavailable for comment before press time.

Corporation files in the probate office show Murphy as secretary/treasurer of RAYDON with 499 of 1,000 shares of stock. Company president is Donald Ray Bailey of Birmingham, also with 499 shares.

The company does not have a current business phone listing.

280 widening bid set

The U.S. 280 project in Harpersville is among those the state highway department will put up for bid Friday, June 24.

The project bids will include grading, base and paving, and bridges for a 2.7 mile stretch of right of way. The project is to be completed in 360 working days.

Contractor's sealed bids will be opened at 10 a.m. in room 733 of the state highway department building in Montgomery.

Calera will support new public housing

by Fred Guarino

The City of Calera chose the lesser of two evils Monday night, in giving its stamp of approval to a proposed public housing site.

Based upon the possibility of a HUD grant, the council agreed to write a letter of intent supporting the location of public housing one block off Southern Foundry Road.

Earlier this month the council had refused to such a letter for a proposed development just 1½ blocks from Monday's approved site.

The original location would have been directly across from Hill Brook Apartments which are now under construction off Southern Foundry Road.

Councilman Mark Jones said of the new site, "I guess it is the better of the two sites but I'm not satisfied."

Councilman Jeff Pilgreen agreed with Jones and said, "I think that is the feeling of the entire council."

Jim Johnson, who is constructing the new Hill Brook apartment complex, had asked the council to give careful consideration before it approved public housing so close to his planned 48 units.

On a motion by W. B. Watts, the council agreed to write the letter of intent supporting the latest site sought by the Calera Housing Authority.

That letter carries with it a promise that if HUD money comes through, the city will provide utilities and half the cost of a new road to the project.

In another land related matter, the city tenatively agreed to close parts of 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th streets for the development of a trailer park by Tom Poe.

The property on which Poe plans to build his trailer park is currently zoned for light industrial use. Therefore, the closings are hinged on approval of a zoning change.

In other business:

•The council agreed, without taking a vote, to purchase protective turnout gear and air packs for the Calera Rescue Squad. The prices received on the gear by rescue volunteer Hugh Morrision fall below $2,000, as required to bypass taking bids.

•The council voted to spend $550 for the rescue squad to purchase a new radio.

Morrison told the council that unless a need should come "out of the clear blue skies" his volunteer department is set.

•An expense of $1,326 was approved so the fire department could purchase a new radio and 18 pagers. A grant of $600 from the Forestry Commission will help offset the expense.

•The council instructed Police Chief Harry Deal to get price estimates for wiring city hall and the fire department building so that an Army surplus generator can be used in times of emergency.

Jury still out on jail brutality suit

by David F. Moore

Vernon Johnson of Harpersville was still waiting...

Columbiana officer Tom Carter and former Shelby County deputy jailer Greg Barnett were still waiting...

Federal Judge Foy Guin and his held-up court schedule were still waiting, as were a number of lawyers...

But after seven days of hearing testimony in a civil rights suit against the two lawmen, and after more than a day of deliberation, the federal jury in Birmingham was stalled.

Late Tuesday afternoon the jury asked Judge Guin to re-read several depositions from the case and answer several lingering questions.

Afterwards, Guin dismissed the eight men and women for the day. He was expected to recharge them Wednesday, after this paper went to press.

Johnson, who is suing the officers for a quarter million dollars, claims that Barnett called for help unnecessarily in the early hours of January 11, 1981, and that Carter used illegal force by pinning him to the booking room floor with a flashlight.

Johnson claimed he suffered permanent damage to his vocal chords and other injuries.

The defense claims that Johnson -- who was being checked out of jail following an arrest for intoxication -- was holding Barnett at bay with a screwdriver when Carter responded to a radio call for help.

Carter testified Friday that he had previously been an ambulance driver and had assisted a person who had been stabbed with a screwdriver.

His testimony included photographs of what he would have seen as he arrived at the glass-walled booking room.

Carter said Johnson was cursing, threatening the deputy with a screwdriver, and refusing to drop it. He said Barnett told him Johnson had a knife in his pocket, and Johnson's hand was in his pocket.

Carter said he put a bear hug on Johnson, then a half Nelson, before he "placed Mr. Johnson on the floor."

When Johnson still wouldn't cooperate, Carter said he applied his flashlight to the man's throat for about 30-45 seconds.

Initially, the suit included the City of Columbiana, its councilmen, deputy Sgt. James Mitchell, and Sheriff Buddy Glasgow.

Columbiana was dismissed from the case early on, while Mitchell and Glasgow were both dismissed last week.

One lawyer blamed the lengthy trial on "tedious testimony."

When it became apparent that the trial would not end Friday -- the day it was initially expected to end -- Judge Guin postponed court dates in Tuscaloosa he had set for this week.

"If we don't finish Monday, we will finish Tuesday," Guin said before the court.

The trial did in fact end Monday. Tuesday it was the verdict that was still being awaited.

Abuse arrest made

Pelham police have arrested a Hoover man for the alleged sexual abuse of three young boys.

Charles Michael Cormack, 26, whose address is listed as 1543 Alford Avenue, was picked up by police June 14. He was booked into the county jail the following day on three counts of first degree sex abuse, and his bond was set at $30,000.

According to PPD Captain Allan Wade, the next grand jury may consider other charges against Cormack.

Wade said Cormack had been "hanging out" recently around the ball park in Pelham, and the pool and ball fields in Alabaster, offering young boys rides on his black 550 Suzuki motorcycle.

"We got three complaints Monday night (June 13) when these young boys apparently told their parents (about the abuse)," Wade said last Wednesday. "As far as the sex acts go, we backtracked him as far back as last weekend."

Wade placed the victims' ages from six to 10 years.

Tuesday, a parent of one of the victims saw the black motorcycle drive through the neighborhood, and alerted the police.

A few minutes later another victim's parent also spotted the motorcycle and followed it by car. When the cycle pulled in at a business on the north end of town, Wade said the parent stopped and called the police.

Officer Virgil Rice arrived on the scene and arrested Cormack about 3 p.m.

Wade indicated that there might be at least one more victim, and said further investigation is underway.

He said the victims lived in Cahaba Valley, Oak Mountain Estates, and Chandalar.

Helena okays Brookline development

by Bert Seaman

After discussing drainage and cul-de-sac lots that fail to meet the city code, the Helena Council finally approved plans for Brookline development Monday.

Developer Bob Bone said that 40 of the 75 lots will be developed initially.

Brookline is a 118-acre development for manufactured homes on County 17, between highways 52 and 58.

Engineer Larry Weygand explained to the council that low lying land on several lots in the northeast section will be filled in, diverting water during times of heavy rain.

Answering a question from Councilman Billy Harris, the engineer explained that the area where a park is to be located will be as wet as it is now during times of heavy rain.

In approving the plat, the council in effect granted a variance for three or four lots in a cul-de-sac which are short on frontage facing the turn.

Bone told the council that the lots there are 46 feet wide at the building line.

The developer also reported that all lots contain more than 5,000 square feet, with the average lot being approximately 6,800 square feet.

In addition to the homes, Brookline also calls for commercial development.

The plat map was approved with the condition that it also meet the approval of the city engineer. It has already been approved by the city Planning Commission.

In other business, the council moved their next meeting to July 5, since their regular meeting night falls on the Fourth of July holiday.

Pelham resets zoning meet

The Pelham Planning and Zoning Board and citizens concerned about a parcel of land that was rezoned will try and get together July 13.

At the first public hearing for rezoning 26 acres on Helena Road from R-1 to R-3, the citizens waited for the meeting to begin in one room while the board approved the request in another.

One concern of families who came to the meeting was about drainage the rezoning would create.

Other citizens unhappy about the zoning change contended apartments and condominiums would ruin the peace and quiet of the neighborhood.

Although the citizens didn't have a chance to have their say on the matter, neither did Steve Russo, who made the request.

Russo and his attorney were among the crowd in the large meeting chamber.

Mayor Burk Dunaway said the July 13 hearing will begin in the smaller room, where the board usually begins their meetings, and will then move out to the larger room.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Calera begins budget

Preliminary work on next year's budget is already stirring in Calera City Hall.

Mayor Carl Prichard said he would like to use a possible $20,000 grant for hiring the unemployed to open new park land by building a road.

The road would connect the park land from its existing road to County 20.

Prichard also said city department heads should begin work on their new budget proposals.

Councilman Jones wanted all department budgets to be presented orally and in writing. However, Prichard shot down the idea, saying all budgets will be presented in a refined form.

In giving his own report, Jones stated that the new Junction Supper Club near Calera is open and operating in a respectable manner.

Police Chief Deal added that he has heard nothing but "plus" comments. He stated, "I believe the man (John Roberts) is making an honest try to keep it that way."

Mayor Prichard also reported that he will put the city's maintenance crew to work on painting city hall.

But when Councilman Larry Farris suggested that the city tear down its old jail building because it is an eyesore, the mayor used the opportunity to pitch for a new city hall.

Prichard said space presently used for storage in the old jail building will have to be replaced.

Speaking before a council that seemed to turn a deaf ear, he continued, "We could have something that would last this city 100 years and which would provide adequate parking."

Prichard received no response to his statements.

Church members recoup from wreck in Hale

A Montevallo woman who suffered serious injuries in a church bus accident last week is now in stable condition.

Thirty one year old Patricia Young and 24 other members of the Deliverance Holiness Temple churches in Almont and Centreville were injured in the crash.

Members of the two churches were returning from a service at an Akron Church in Hale County when their bus left the road around 10 p.m., plunged down an embankment and hit a tree.

Mrs. Young's husband, Jimmy, was driving the bus when it went off Hale County Road 32, about eight miles north of Greensboro.

Emergency unit ambulances from four counties and the Tuscaloosa police medivac helicopter transported the injured to Druid City Hospital in Tuscaloosa and Hale County Hospital.

Mrs. Earnestine DeVould from Wilton, who was riding on the bus that night, said the group had accompanied their pastor, Rev. Calvin Meadows, to a speaking engagement.

Mrs. Young was one of the three passengers with serious injuries.

The other two are from Bibb County.

What Does Jesus Teach?

Rom. 14:5 "Let each man be fully assured in his own mind." Are you in doubt about your religion? Do you ever wonder why "your" church does this or why they don't do that? Have you inquired as to why money is spent on organs or money is sent to missionary societies, or Orphans homes? Have you ever raised a question about an act of worship, why do we have a choir, what does a band playing for us have to do with worship in Spirit and Truth, John 4:24? Our questions must be answered with Holy Scripture, Rom. 10:17" "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God." Rom. 14:23 "Whatsoever is not of faith is Sin." 2 Cor. 13:5 "Try your own selves, whether ye are in the faith; prove your own selves. Or know ye not as to your own selves, that Jesus Christ is in you? Unless indeed ye be reprobate."

Under The Courthouse Dome

Only one bill that applies to Shelby County is in a position to pass both houses of the legislature this week.

According to Rep. Sonny Moore, the bill that gives the county commission and the sheriff the right to govern outdoor activities -- such as rock festivals -- has passed the House and is on the Senate calendar. It may pass at today's session, he told the Reporter.

A local bill that relates to the coroner's office, and provides him with additional help, has passed the House.

Moore, however, indicated that Lt. Governor Bill Baxley is not accepting any more local bills from the House until the Senate finishes work on the constitution.

Moore has been successful in getting a line item in the state budget which would give the Shelby County Historical Society $8,750.

The society has been getting $5,000, but this year that amount was prorated. Moore said he noticed other counties were getting extra things, so he pushed for the added money.

He also helped get extra dollars in the University of Montevallo budget for the School of Business, he said.

Health laws

The Shelby County Health Department now has the authority to review and approve local subdivsion developments.

According to health department administrator Ron Stutts, this authority means a savings of time and money to developers who previoulsy had to flip-flop several times from here to the state office in Montgomery before they could get final health approvals for subdivisions.

Stutts said Shelby County is the first individual county to be granted "primary enforcement of subdivision regulations."

The state granted the powers in May and they became effective last Monday.

The regulations deal with the lot sizes, soil types and location of septic tanks in subdivision plats.

Stutts said it used to take up to 240 days for a developer to get a preliminary approval from the county, the final approval from the state. Now, he said, that will at least be cut in half.

"Basically, it leaves subdivision development in the hands of local people," Stutts said. "When you're paying interest on $1 million, the time saved will make a big difference."

Working together

Courtney Mason, club secretary for Alabaster Rotary, displays their new Certificate of Incorporation. The document was received this week changing their name to Alabaster-Pelham Rotary Club. 35% of the club's membership now works or resides in Pelham, and the club's activities and projects are oriented to all of north Shelby County.

Suspects caught

Two people suspected of committing a series of burglaries in several counties were arrested Monday between Chelsea and Columbiana.

Bobby Joe Wideman, 24, and Carol P. Adams, 32, were found in a pickup truck at Joseph's Corner at the intersection of County Roads 47N and 69.

Birmingham police, who had been on the trail of the two suspects, had spotted their car at the residence of an elderly Chelsea woman on County Road 47 around 3 p.m.

Wideman and Adams managed to elude the police when they drove down a dirt road near the home and then fled on foot through the woods.

TV's and other items taken from the residence of Bertha Gardener were found in the abandoned car.

Shelby County Sheriff's deputies searched the woods for several hours looking for the suspects.

The two were arrested at 7:20 when they were found hitching a ride in the pickup parked at Joseph's store. Wideman was lying in the back of the truck and Adams was sitting in the front seat.

Sheriff's department Chief Investigator Reed Smith said the two had gained entry to the home by removing a window screen.

Both suspects, who have Birmingham addresses, were taken to the Shelby County jail and charged with burglary 3rd degree.

Sheriff report

Calls answered by the Shelby County Sheriff's department on the June 14-20 blotter include strikers at Taylor-Mathis in Inverness and the capture of two escapees from Mt. Meigs.

The 69 calls answered include 9 thefts, 3 attempted burglaries, 1 burglary, 1 vandalism, 1 property dispute, 2 property damage.

One criminal mischief, 2 assaults, 2 fights, 3 family disputes, 1 threatening phone call, 1 reckless endangerment, 1 animal complaint, 1 lost calves, 6 accidents, 1 vehicle pull-in, 1 juvenile.

Thirty arrests were made and there was one report of a rape which was unsubstantiated.

Free cheese

So when will the free cheese return to Shelby County for distribution to the needy?

Gladys Ross of the Community Action Agency in Columbiana is wondering the same thing.

She told the Reporter Tuesday that the agency -- which handles the give-aways locally -- has received no word from Montgomery on the next Shelby County delivery date for the cheese and dried goods.

She did say, however, that no free butter will be given out.

"We don't have any place to store it," she said, explaining the planned exclusion of the dairy item.

Night search law works for crime bosses

by Gov. George Wallace

If a peace officer wants to go onto someone's property in the daytime to look for evidence, he can get a search warrant simply by swearing he has probable cause to believe the evidence is there.

But if he waits until nightfall to make the search, probable cause isn't enough. To get a nighttime search warrant, the officer must sign an affidavit saying "positively" that whatever he is looking for "is on the person or in the place to be searched."

That provision was written into the law many years ago to protect the people in their homes and to allow searches after dark only when absolutely necessary. And I agree with that. The people are entitled to all the protection the law can give them.

But the nighttime search law is being misused now by the crime bosses, especially those who traffic in drugs. It protects them more than it protects the homeowner because it makes the narcotics dealer all but immune from search after dark.

Obviously we cannot let that go on. The law must be changed to stop the criminals from using it to their advantage. I have asked the Legislature to amend it to permit search warrants to be issued for probable cause at night as well as by day.

Under our bill, which is part of our "war on crime" package, the judge issuing the warrant could still restrict the search to the daylight hours if he felt that was necessary. But at least he would have the authority to issue a nighttime search warrant for probable cause, and he cannot do that now.

As a matter of fact, some judges are reluctant to authorize nighttime searches under the present law even if the officer says he has positive knowledge that the evidence he is looking for is in the place to be searched. How, they ask, can the officer be sure?

What it all adds up to is this: When the sun goes down the drug dealer is ready for business. He knows there is little chance, if any, that someone is going to search his place after dark.

When I was governor before, narcotics agents told me of an actual case which illustrates the problem as well as anything I can think of.

Local officials in one small town called on state authorities for help in breaking up a drug ring. We sent in an undercover agent from another part of the state who wouldn't be known by anyone in the small town. The agent spent weeks frequenting the narcotics dens, in the guise of just another customer.

In time he learned just about everything there was to know about the operation... whether they sold marijuana or the hard drugs... where they were hidden in each place.. and, of course, what he had to do or say to get in the place.

Finally, after he had learned all he could, he was ready to move in with raids on some eight or ten places where he knew drugs were being sold. Other agents were brought in to help, and, on a given night, all eight or ten places were to be raided. They had to be nighttime raids because the drug dealers were closed in the daytime.

Then came the hitch. To get nighttime search warrants, the undercover man, despite the knowledge he had already gained, had to go back to each place just before the raids just so he could say the drugs were there at that time. After each final visit he obtained a warrant, and the raids began.

But the word spread quickly through the underground after the first raid.

The dealers who hadn't already been hit simply closed up for the night, and the undercover agent wasn't able to get the final evidence he needed in order to get search warrants for those places.

Instead of the eight or ten raids which were planned, only two or three were actually made. But if the warrants could have been issued on probable cause, all of the raids would have been carried out at the same time.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

Gov. George Wallace's announcement that he will not call a special legislative election until after the regular session adjourns, makes it all the more likely that there will be no primary election.

What now seems probable is that the State Democratic Executive Committee will handpick the Democratic nominees for the 140 seats (105 in the House, 35 in the Senate); the Republican Executive Committee will handpick the GOP nominees; and these hopefuls -- plus any independents who choose to run -- will compete in a winner-take-all general election.

While this approach will save the state hundreds of thousands of dollars, it will give the SDEC awesome power in determining the political fate of a number of incumbent legislators. Under the re-drawn legislative districts there are a number of instances where there are two incumbent Democrat legislators. For example, Sens. Foy Covington and Crum Foshee are in the same district; so are Sens. Larry Dixon and Don Harrison; Sens. Ed Robertson and Charles Bishop; Sen. John Teague and Lister Hill Proctor.

The SDEC must decide which of the incumbents will be the nominee, or if either of them will be. There have been rumors that in the Montgomery district which includes Dixon and Harrison that neither of them may be selected but that the committee may name another man instead. Sen. Dixon has vowed he will be a candidate no matter what the SDEC does. If he can't run as a Democrat, he will run as an independent.

Odds and Ends -- The truly dramatic improvement in Gov. Wallace's health (also his appearance and attitude) continues. As was reported in this space a week ago, this turnaround began after the governor had a spirited closed-door meeting with Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley a few weeks ago.

The General Fund budget adopted by the Alabama House is about as lean and fat-free as a budget could be. The only agencies to get major increases are the prisons and Medicaid, otherwise the money allocated is approximately what was appropriated for the current year.

There will be no pay raises for state employees, a hard fact that the workers had already accepted. This will in turn make it exceedingly difficult for teachers to expect a pay raise...

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

By pure accident, I managed to get to my weekend wedding on time.

The only reason I accomplished that feat was because I had the time wrong.

My whole day was unbelievable. In other words, it was a normal day.

Two picture taking assignments that morning were in the same general area. So that was good.

However, I lost my directions to one of the places and turned on the wrong street.

Realizing that I would have to ask directions, I knocked on a door and I guess my lost look tipped the lady of the house off as to who I was.

"You're Bert Seaman aren't you?" she asked.

I wanted to deny it, but I went ahead and admitted that she was right.

And much to my relief, she knew the people I was looking for.

After finishing that assignment, I had hoped to truck on down the road to my next stop.

However, an early morning summons from my daughter, who had an errand to run and couldn't pick up her daughter, sent me charging off in the opposite direction.

That trip, and a phone call that caught me as I was making sandwiches for the two of us to eat going down the road to my next assignment, cost me more precious time.

When I finally finished up at my last event of the day and deposited my charge with her parents, I zipped off to do some last minute shopping.

In searching through the closet that morning for a dress to wear to the wedding, I discovered that the belt was missing to the only suitable dress available.

Remembering that I had seen my other daughter wearing it, I hoped that she could drop it by the house.

But an unfamiliar voice which answered her phone informed me that she was in Atlanta. The young man who answered told me that he was visiting my son-in-law.

Anyhow, I thought there might be time for me to buy a belt since I had to make a trip to the store for stockings.

I thought my problems were solved when I found a belt that looked as though it would match the shoes I was planning to wear.

Racing for home to change, I ran into a storm so bad it forced all the cars I passed off the road - all except mine.

There wasn't time for me to indulge in the luxury of safety. I plunged on through the blinding rain.

Managing to get home in one piece, I jumped out of my blue jeans into my dress.

I put the belt through the loops and reached for my shoes. Then I realized with horror they weren't there.

What to do now, I wondered?

The belt simply would not go with any other shoes, so the only thing to do was go without it.

My next disaster was the button at the back of my dress. The fastener refused to hold it.

After several attempts to fasten it, I finally resorted to a safety pin.

Feeling like a complete slob, I rushed off to witness the happy couple being united in wedlock.

As I looked at my watch however, I despaired of seeing it happen.

My timepiece showed I was going to be late - very late.

In fact, when I arrived, it was 30 minutes past the appointed hour. Or so I thought.

When I walked into the church, I was not only relieved to see that the lights were dim, but also that people were sitting there.

And then I learned that I was right on time because I had the hour wrong.

So the moral of this tale is, that sometimes it pays to be wrong. Right?

Doing it again

After 50 years, Jane Ward gets a new wedding ring from husband John - a cigar band which he presented during a mock ceremony.

Dancing Wards fete golden anniversary

John and Jane Ward set up housekeeping after saying their "I do's" 50 years ago in the Birmingham Courthouse.

Friday night the Shelby couple repeated those vows in spirit, but the actual promises they made during a mock ceremony were a far cry from their first ceremony.

Members of the Shelby Shufflers square dance group -- who participated in the golden anniversary celebration -- heard 75 year old John promise that he would make his bed.

His 69 year old bride gave her word not to squander his wealth.

The dance group's caller, John Paul Bresnan, officiated at the mock ceremony, during which the bride was "gladly given away" by her son-in-law, Harry Jones.

Members of the mock wedding procession included Kevin Mullins, best man; Becky Mullins, matron of honor; Jason Jones, ring bearer; Shana Loveless, flower girl.

Although they have always enjoyed dancing, Mrs. Ward related that she and her husband had never square danced until three years ago when they were asked to join the Coontown Reelers.

They now dance with the Shufflers -- as do their daughter Judy and her husband Harry Jones, neither of whom had ever square danced before either.

Another square dancer on the horizon is the Jones' nine year old son Jason, who attends the weekly dances with his family.

The Wards and the Jones' agree that square dancing is a great family activity. And if the couples that dance together, stay together, then Wards may be in for another square dance wedding anniversary in 2033...

Before his retirement, Ward was a supervisor at U.S. Steel.

He and his wife have lived in Pine Grove Village below Shelby since 1960.

Lions take jump on Saturday's rains

Horse show exhibitors may be a hearty lot, but members of the North Shelby Lions Club weren't sure how the questionable weather would affect their first show last Saturday.

However, the rain that fell throughout the county that day lasted only about 15 minutes at Dunnavant Farm where the show was held.

"And it wasn't enough to even slow us down," reported show secretary Anne Shiller.

Approximately 40 horses were shown in the hunter-jumper show. Over $1,000 in prizes and money were awarded.

Proclaiming their first show a success, the club reported raising $2,000 for charitable causes.

Lynn Gothard of Nashville, won the Hunter Classic Stake, and Margaret Camp from Shoal Creek Stable was high point winner with her pony Daisy Chain.

The Lions presented Gothard with a halter and a cash award. Camp was given a bridle for her accomplishment.

Judge for the 34 classes -- eight of which were stake classes -- was Mrs. Mack Anderton from Franklin, Tennessee.

Ronnie Haralson was show chairman and Linda Lowe also assisted with the event.

The North Shelby Lions Club, which was chartered just a little over a year ago, has 19 members.

New officers are: Pete Smith, president; Hugh Johnson, 1st vice-president; Bob Valentino, 2nd vp; Jim Kerrick, 3rd vp; Clarence Crump, secretary; Mike Wesson, treasurer; Bill Stephens, Lion Tamer; Roy Eich, Tail Twister.

Directors for one year are: John Lowe, Dick Knight; for two years, Dan Lowe, Jim Branch.

Horse van overturns

Only one rider took a spill at the day long hunter / jumper show at Dunnavant Farm Saturday.

Neither the horse nor the rider was injured.

And Lady Luck must have followed four of the horses on their way home.

Although the van transporting them to their home stable on Valleydale Road overturned, the horses were removed without serious injury.

According to Winston Boutwell, Chief of the North Shelby Fire District, the van overturned on rain slick County 17 near the Inverness apartments.

Since the van was lying on the side where the exit door was located, firemen used an Ajax tool to cut a hole in the van roof.

According to Boutwell, a veterinarian was able to tranquilize the animals before they were removed.

Only minor injuries were reported, including a knee injury suffered by the 18 year old driver of the van.

He was kicked by one of the horses as he worked to get them out.

Burgess farm split

An attorney for A. E. "Pee Wee" Burgess lined up final details for the auction of Burgess' 685 acre farm last Monday night. W. E. Prescott submitted a final plat to the Shelby County Planning Commission for dividing the farm into 16 lots.

The commission approved the plan.

Prescott explained that the farm might not be subdivided if one person came forth at the auction to buy the entire property. But he wanted approval for subdividing if the land was broken up.

The showplace farm, called "Whispering Pines," is on both sides of County 13 at the Shelby-Bibb boundary, and about a fourth of it is in Bibb County.

The auction was scheduled for Wednesday, June 23.

The planning commission also advised Randy Goggans on steps he should take to develop a private subdivision on County 48 near Wilsonville.

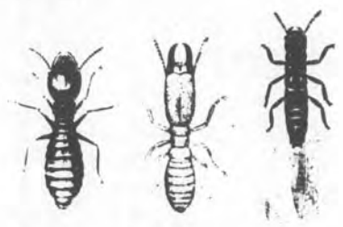

Goggans owns 300 acres there, and is planning to subdivide it into 15 tracts.

In other action the commission approved the final plat for the 5th sector of Riverwood, where developers are planning to build 22 townhouse units.

The Mormon Church also requested a one year permit to locate a double wide classroom trailer at the back of the church.

Tough pull

Tom Owen, executive director of the King's Ranch in Chelsea goes for a world record truck pulling with his teeth. That's right. He pulled a truck loaded with 20 beautiful girls for a total weight of nearly 8,000 pounds at Legion Field last Friday night. See story.

Owen sets record

by Fred Guarino

Twenty beautiful girls filled the back of the Dodge Ram pick-up truck.

No reflection on the weight of the girls, but the load and truck came to somewhere between 7,000 and 8,000 pounds.

A chain was hooked to that short wheel based four-wheel drive truck, and at the end of the chain stood Tom Owen, executive director of King's Ranch.

His object was to pull the load 40 yards -- with his teeth -- for a world record time.

The hour was approximately 7:30 p.m. last Friday. The place, Legion Field, just before the Stallions took on the Chicago Blitz in a disappointing 29-14 loss.

Owen runs the Christian Neighborhood for Kids. The Chelsea ranch is for kids who for some reason cannot live at home, or who do not have a family.

The ranch currently houses over 30 youngsters and by the end of the year it will house over 60.

Owen, a competitive power lifter, was not at Legion Field just for a show of strength. His purpose was to raise at least $3,500 for his ranch, which the Stallions agreed to donate.

As the time for the big pull drew near, Frank Watts, the power lifting chairman for Alabama, learned that Owen would have to beat a time of 25.8 seconds to set a world record.

Watts told Owen that he would have eight minutes to prepare himself for the task.

The girls -- Birmingham Stallion "Fillies" -- were all in place. The engine of the truck was started and Owen went through exercises.

A man in the crowd said to a nearby policeman, "I know he can do it. He's a good Shelby County man."

The policeman replied, "I know it. A Shelby County man can pull anything with his teeth."(?)

The 'go' signal was given. A sudden growl escaped Owen. He began to pull.

Miraculously, the truck began to move and Owen beat the world record with a time of 24.4 seconds.

But pulling the Ram full of Fillies wasn't the end to Owen's evening's efforts.

Immediately following his pull on the concrete pavement beside the famous football field, the truck was driven out on to the bright green playing surface itself.

Owen was going to let the truck -- still loaded with the girls -- actually roll over his stomach.

A ramp was placed down and the truck drove its back wheel right up on to the edge of it.

Owen slipped his body under the vehicle and right next to the ramp.

He asked photographers if two seconds of the truck on his belly would be long enough for pictures to be made.

His last words to the crowd before the truck rolled over his belly were, "Don't ya'll block the photographers."

The truck rolled... Owen flexed his stomach... and the tire actually spun on his belly for what seemed an eternity.

He had done it.

Owen said that a short wheel based truck actually put more weight on his stomach than a longer one would have.

But while he was not sure that the effort was a world record, he did say, "It was a record for me!"

How does he do it?

"I stay in really good physical condition," says Owen. "I have low blood pressure and a slow pulse rate of 38 and only maintain four percent body fat. As a competitive power lifter I work my stomach muscles real hard."

Owen has won the Southeastern Power Lifter Championship five times and the state title eight times.

In the Southeastern event, he power lifted 1,800 pounds.

An injury prevented him from going to the nationals.

But after all was said and done Friday night. It was the kids of King's Ranch would proved to be the real winners.

Everyone wins in SCHS tourney

Lamar Cost won the 'A' division of the Shelby County High School Booster Club golf tournament last Saturday.

But Lamar was definitely not the big news of the day at Buxahatchee Country Club where the event was played.

What was news?

Mrs. Carol Alston won the fifth flight of the tournament while her husband, Dr. James Alston of Columbiana, won the second flight.

That's right, husband and wife winners.

And if that's not enough, Richard Crosby actually knocked his golf ball closest to the pin on hole number two and finished in third place in the fifth flight.

Richard Who?

And if that's not enough, Fred Guarino -- who finished in last place in the UM Falcon Club tournament last week -- actually finished one stroke off of fifth place in the fifth flight.

It should be pointed out, however, that when SCHS hosts a golf tournament... everyone is a winner.

Not only are some outstanding prizes given away, and some great folks show up to play, but the SCHS boosters also raise some much needed money.

This year, the organization netted over $1,000 and gave at least one prize to every participant.

On the winners side:

Apart from Crosby's driving prowess, Jim Curtis hit closest to the pin on the number 5 hole and Lamar Cost got closest to the pin on number 8.

Behind Cost's finish, Don Bunn, Dave Ellison, Stand Elliott and Jim McQueen took care of second through fifth place in the 'A' division of the first flight.

William Rasco won the 'B' division and was followed by his brother, Wayne Rasco, in second place. Don Bulger took third place honors, Jack York finished fourth and Tom Slaughter ended up fifth.

After Jim Alston, remaining second flight honors went to Don Piazza, Charles McCombs, John Slaughter and Wayne Wright.

Third flight prizes went to Ricky Seale, first; Russell Rasco, second; Jim Curtis, third, Dr. Tom Slaughter, fourth; and J. B. Carter, fifth.

Winning the fourth flight was Reid Long. He was followed by Jeff Hand, Jason Shaw, Waylon Davis and Jessie Horton.

In the fifth flight, Carol Alston took top honors and was followed by Oliver Milstead, second; Richard Crosby, third; Jeff Jones, fourth and Jim Adams fifth.

Unofficially sixth place winners were also recognized.

Columbiana teams fight for first place

The Columbiana City League men's and women's slow pitch softball season is underway.

But make no mistake about it, there is nothing "slow " about the action played at Graham Field on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

As of last Tuesday night's battle royal, Shelby County Pest Control and Columbiana Nazarene Church are in a tight knot for first place in men's competition.

For a super start, the pest controllers have eradicated 13 teams and been snuffed out only once.

However, Columbiana Nazarene refuses to be left behind and now beats its chest with an identical record.

In women's action, Spring Creek Grocery has a precarious grip on first place.

The creek girls are off with a good 9-1 record, but The Comets are only two games behind them at 8-3.

Going down the ranks:

In men's action, there are some good fights taking place for positions near the top.

The Shelby Fire Department, The Kings, and Union Methodist are all digging at each other for second place with identical 9-5 records.

Just behind the threesome is a team called The Bandits which holds third place with an 8-6 mark.

Right behind The Bandits in fourth place are the boys from Columbiana First Baptist Church who have won as many as they have lost. They're 7-7 on the year.

Elastic Corporation, Columbiana Methodist, and National Standard are all tangled up for fifth place with 4-10 records.

Valley Mills holds the dubious honor of being in a solid sixth place with a 3-11 mark, while The Red Boys are struggling at an even lower cellar rung -- 2-12.

For the women:

The Cobras have shown their striking power by taking third place with a 6-5 season mark.

Weekend golfer laments

by Fred Guarino

It's just not fair!

In order to play in my second golf tournament in two weeks (I hadn't played before in six months) I had to give in to the demands of my wife this past weekend.

The tournament I was to play in Saturday was that held by Buxahatchee Country Club to raise funds for the Shelby County High School Booster Club.

It was a good cause, and it was only for 18 holes of golf on a rain threatening afternoon that I considered good for nothing else.

Yet just to play those few holes of golf, I had to promise my wife that I would go with her to look at some carpet on sale Saturday morning.

Why me? She doesn't even like my opinion on colors or things like that, anyway.

To boot, this promised shopping trip almost made me late for my 1 p.m. tee off..

But that wasn't all.

I had to promise to finish sanding some plaster in a room of our house Sunday night.

Though I was tired and sore after my fifth flight, sixth place, finish Saturday... my wife was unrelenting in the demand as a condition for my golf trip.

Just for the record, as well as for my wife, I decided to ask the guys in my foursome how they managed to get away from their wives and into the tournament.

Oliver Milstead made me feel better when he said, "I usually ask my wife if she's got something to do first..."

Just as I was thinking that I wasn't alone, Milstead pulled the rug from under me and finished his statement: "Naw," he admitted, "I just go out and play. I used to play a lot more before the kids came along and slowed my golf down."

Well I'll be darned, I grumbled. He's married. He has kids. Yet he can still go out when he wants.

Maybe Dr. Jim Alston of Columbiana would be in the same boat with me, I thought. But again, no such luck!

I asked Alston what he had to do for his wife in order to get on golf course, and he just laughed.

"She's up there in that foursome," he said proudly pointing his finger to the group on the next green. "She likes to play too."

Well, I thought, Jason Shaw is my last resort in this foursome. He's just a young fella' who probably has a wife still trying to tie him down, I hoped again.

No way!

Shaw isn't even married, yet. Talk about freedom!

"I just come and play with my father," he smiled.

Oh well, I SURE I'm not alone. Somewhere, some wife must be telling her husband that he has chores to do before he hits that green. Isn't she?

I hope my wife reads this.

Crappie take leave, bass bite

If you're hankering to haul in a big mess of fish, don't go after crappie.

According to reports from four different local fishing holes on Lay Lake, the crappie have gone to deep depths from 12 to 18 feet, and all but quit hitting.

But if you're after bass -- that's been a different story lately!

Jerry Wooten of Okomo Marina says bass are hitting spinner baits and lunker lures in the early morning hours.

He says to go for the weed beds, trees, or the shallows near the banks.

However, if you let your alarm go off without bouncing out of the sack -- remember, the early fish catches the worm -- Wooten says you can take your gear to deeper water. That's where he says they'll be hiding later in the day, and you might find them interested in crank bait of worms.

Nancy Culpepper at Beeswax Bait and Grocery says that bass fishing is real good with worms, lizzards and "sneaky snake".

At Lay Port Marina, Dit Safford says bass have been real good about hitting green and black, purple with firetails, motor oil and chartruse worms -- sounds a bit like rainbow trout...

She also says the striped bass are hitting willow flies.

Mama Bozo -- at Bozo's Fish Camp, of course -- says the bass near her place are biting buzz and spinner bait, early in the morning and late in the afternoons.

THE "SCOTT PAPER COMPANY WELFARE BILL" WILL RAISE YOUR POWER BILL!

SCOTT PAPER WANTS YOU TO PAY FOR THEIR NEW PLANT.

Scott Paper Company has a paper products plant near Mobile. The equipment in the plant is old and outdated and needs replacing. Scott wants to modernize and expand its plant by spending $300 million on new equipment.

You see, Scott now has a small electric generator inside its Mobile plant that is used to produce the steam Scott needs to manufacture paper products.

The only problem is Scott wants to build a much larger electric generator and force Alabama Power and its customers to purchase all the electricity that generator will produce—at double the current price!

So Scott had a bill introduced in the Alabama Legislature this summer to force Alabama Power to purchase that electricity— whether we need it or not—at double the current price.

Unfortunately, that means Scott Paper Company will make your electric bill increase. We think that is unfair.

Alabama Power has actively supported and encouraged the industrial growth of our state for many years. But we don't think it's fair for all our customers to pay higher rates just so one customer can profit. Stop this bill. Contact your state legislator today about House Bill 675 and Senate Bill 471.

Building a mountain

A two-man scaffolding crew works on the mountain of concrete and steel that is becoming the fourth six-floor addition to Inverness Park. When it's finished early this fall, the mid-rise will be glassed with mirrors and house such firms as Traveler's Insurance. In the meantime, construction crews have their work cut out for them. Columbiana likes park but not land's price tag

by Bert Seaman

Members of the Columbiana Council want the land adjoining the city park in order to expand recreational activities.

But some members of the council think the asking price is too high.

"I want that land bad," declared Councilman Frank Owen, "but I can't agree to pay that kind of money."

A $150,000 price tag was put on the 12.5 acres owned by Columbiana resident Bill Dill.

However, Councilwoman Jessie Jones thought Dill would work with the city in negotiating a price based on the appraised value of the land.

Before taking that step though, Councilman Lewis Walker wanted to know how much an appraiser would charge for his services.

So the matter was held over for a decision until that information is obtained.

The city's chance of getting $30,000 of a $50,000 federal grant depends on acquiring the land.

That amount would be used for building a recreational complex adjoining the park and $20,000 would expand recreational facilities at the middle school.

One objection to spending that amount of money for property was voiced by Councilman Harold McCord.

McCord reminded the council that city employees were not given a raise this year, noting that some individuals could not make ends meet on their present income.

"I think before we obligate ourselves to spend $150,000, we need to take care of the people who work for this town," McCord said.

Jones did not disagree with that viewpoint, but, however, stood firm in urging the city to get the land.

"I want to have vision for the recreational needs of this city, and I'm looking toward the turn of the century and what will benefit future generations!" the councilwoman exclaimed.

Mayor Buck Falkner agreed to get a "ballpark" figure on how much it would cost the city to hire an appraiser.

The matter of proceeding with the installation of a new sewer line stalled when the council failed to agree on hiring an engineer.

Bringing the subject to the council's attention, Falkner said he had read in the journal put out by the League of Municipalities that any project exceeding $20,000 must be supervised by an engineer.

Coucilman Lewis Walker made a motion that Charles Tucker be hired. Tucker, he noted, had done the preliminary engineering for the project.

But Owen, Bill Seale and Jones voted against the motion and it failed to pass.

The line is to go from the city's sewerage lagoon to the Hwy. 25 bypass.

After the vote the subject was dropped without further discussion.

It was announced that bids on widening Washington Street and putting in a sidewalk, will be opened at the council's July 7 meeting.

With the acceptance of a low bid, work should begin shortly thereafter.

The purpose of the project is to make the street to Elvin Hill Elementary School safer.

Plans also call for a bus turnaround at the school.

Relief for Alabaster

One of the benefits of living inside city limits will soon come to new residents in Alabaster. Twice weekly garbage pickup will start the first of July for the thousand homes annexed by the city.

Alabaster council member L.O. Farris recommended recently that the pickup begin July first, as an expansion of the city's existing contract with BFI Industries.

The city will not have to take separate bids for the new parts of town, which lie south of Thompson High. The area already has fire and paramedic service.

Teresa Cain wins state title

TERESA CAIN

Teresa Cain hasn't decided on a costume to represent Alabama when she competes in the Miss United Teenager contest in Hollywood.

But she has until November to dream up an outfit for the event in which a national winner will be chosen.

The 15 year old Chelsea student walked off with the state title last week in the competition held at the University of Montevallo.

Even if Teresa doesn't get the big award in the finals in December, she still may be eligible for one of the scholarships which total $15,000.

An honor student at Chelsea High School, she is a cheerleader and active in school affairs.

She has won several school contests, including Miss CHS, Junior Miss CHS, and Junior Miss Chelonet.

Church work is also important to the CHS junior and she takes an active part in the programs at Liberty Baptist Church where she is a member.

Competing in the state contest, Teresa was required to write an essay on "My Country" and to carry out a civic project.

The project she chose was assisting with the Special Olympics which is held each year for handicapped youngsters.

In addition to the Hollywood trip for the costume competition, contestants in the national event will also travel to Hawaii for a tour of the islands.

The final judging will take place in Washington D.C. in December.

Teresa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cain of Chelsea.

Baker listed

The 1983 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges will list the names of 44 students from Jefferson State.

Among the honorees listed for 1983 is Diane Baker of Vincent.

The students who have been selected are among the country's most outstanding campus leaders and are chosen on the basis of academic achievement, community service, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential.

CVA scores run high on Stanford test

Students at Coosa Valley Academy scored exceptionally well on spring achievement tests.

On the Stanford Achievement test series, CVA second graders scored at the 95th percentile when compared with students from all over the nation in the standardization group.

CVA fifth graders scored at the 88th percentile, seventh graders at the 78th percentile and ninth graders at the 90th percentile.

Three of the four grades tested were also given the Otis-Lennon Ability test which measures skills necessary for success in school.

The Stanford test provides for the continuous, comprehensive assessment of students' achievement in the major skill areas from kindergarten through twelfth grade.

Thirty-five percent of the students who took the tests scored in the above average range (upper 23% of all students), while 63% scored in the average range.

Farewell

In the 34 years R.B. Burns worked at a lime plant between Calera and Montevallo, he never missed a day of work. Since retiring, well, he hasn't missed a day of that either. (Photo by Bert Seaman)

Montevallo worker says 'bye' to his perfect record at plant

During the 34 years he worked at Martin-Marietta -- now Blue Circle Indusries -- R.B. Burns never missed a day.

He admits that there were times he didn't feel well. "But I would have felt bad staying home too," reasons the Montevallo man who finally retired this month.

Not only did he like to work, Burns tells the Reporter, but he liked being around the people.

Burns is no longer switching cars at the cement plant, but he keeps busy gardening and visiting his far flung family.

His main preoccupation, however, is people, and spreading the word that God should have first place in their lives.

Even though he was a Christian, Burns says he was converted at work 15 years ago.

"I'd been to church on Sunday," he remembers, and at work the next day, the words of a hymn we'd sung kept going around in my head."

It was his favorite hymn, Burns says: "Precious Lord Take My Hand."

"I was on the loading dock," he relates, the memory still vivid in his mind. "It was 9 a.m. I heard God speak to me and He told me to go and work for Him."

Burns has been following that command ever since. He's a member of the AME church in Montevallo where he serves as chairman of the Board of Stewards.

Now that he doesn't have to punch a timeclock, one of the activities he has more time for, is traveling with his pastor. The two are scheduled to attend a meeting in Mobile later this month.

Other travel plans will take Burns to Tennessee, Texas, and Ohio where some of his children live.

Burns and his wife Josephine are the parents of six children. They have seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The couple built their home on Samford Street near Montevallo Middle School 22 years ago.

Burns won't tell his age, but chuckles, "Let's just say I still feel good."

Then, serious again, he says "I would like to tell everybody though, that the only reason I made it this far, is because of God,"

He is a Master Mason and a member of the Montevallo Housing Authority Board.

Judy Surjanto, RRA, of Brookwood Medical Center will be installed as president of the Alabama Medical Record Association at a meeting later this month in Huntsville. The association has some 450 members throughout the state and is affiliated with the Alabama Hospital Association.

County farmers enrolled in the federal Payment-In-Kind program can now assign their entitlements to a grain company in exchange for feed credit.

The program was announced by Frank McEwen of Coosa Valley Milling in Wilsonville. McEwen handles the program locally on behalf of Ralston Purina.

"Quite simply, this program allows area farmers to take the PIK grain they will receive after harvest and, in effect, feed it to their livestock today," McEwen explained.

Financing will be at 10.5% -- the same interest rate banks charge their best customers. Under the plan, approved farmers would be extended a credit line equal to 95% of the established value of their PIK grains.

"If the producer accepts the price quote we get from the plant buyer, he can purchase Purina products against his credit line as soon as he executes a PIK Contract confirmation and assignment form, and clears a simplified credit check," McEwen said.

At settlement time, the farmer gets a check for the full amount of the PIK assignment, less any grain quality discounts, advances made for product purchases and accrued interest. McEwen said farmers will not be charged a handling fee for this service.

Bible school graduation

Fifty one youngsters from Freewill Church of God and Christ in Vincent concluded their weeklong Vacation Bible School with a picnic Friday. Participants ranged in age from 16 months to 17 years of age. Mary Davis served as director, and the teachers were Ann Norwood, Nancy Norwood, Katherine Norwood, and Clementine McGinnis.

Radio club goes on air

The Shelby County Amateur Radio Club will be on the air at Oak Mountain this weekend.

The club will be participating in the 47th annual American Radio Relay League Field Day, which tests amateur operators and their equipment under less than ideal conditions.

Operations will be from portable power sources and antenna systems used in disaster situations, such as hurricane Frederick in 1979.

The field day site this year will be the Foothills Restaurant parking lot, near the day area of the park.

The public is invited to observe and ask questions. Air time runs from 1 p.m. Saturday to 1 p.m Sunday.

Alabaster sets fund sale

The Friends of the Library in Alabaster are planning a rummage sale for this weekend. The sale gets underway at 8 a.m. on Friday, June 24 at the present library location, back of the city hall. It will start again on Saturday at 8 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m.

Proceeds will go toward purchasing a 16mm projector for the new library, according to project chairman Janice Clark.

She noted that the Friends are also engaged in a membership drive, and urged all Alabaster citizens to join. Gifts from $1 to $100 are appropriate, she said.

Kidney transplants

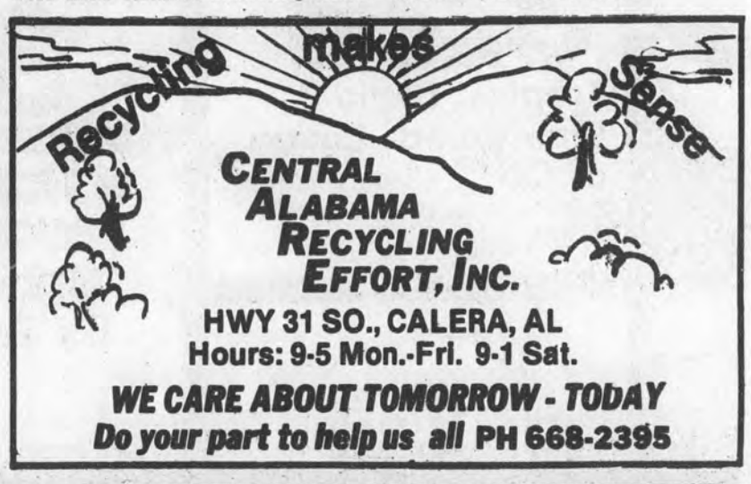

'The problem is...'

The Gallup Poll found that 83% of persons who were asked if they would give permission for a loved one's kidneys to be donated, said they were likely to do so. The same poll, conducted for the National Kidney Foundation showed 40% of those asked if they would agree to donate their own kidneys, said yes.

"The problem is", according to Dr. John Whelchel, UAB transplant surgeon and chairman of the Medical Advisory Committee of the National Kidney Foundation of Alabama, Inc., "only 41% of these persons have told their families and only 31% have signed a donor card."

The survey results are "very positive and dramatically point out how educated the public is about organ donation," said Dr. Whelchel. "If all those persons who wanted to leave their kidneys and other organs, to those in need, told their families or signed a uniform donor card, there would be a doubling or tripling of transplantable organs available."

"While 132 kidney transplants were performed at UAB in 1982, more than 100 other kidney failure patients in Alabama were not give this 'gift of life' due to the unavailability of suitable donors", he concluded.

Fisherman's dream

You may not believe this, but the net held by biologist aid Richard Christenson actually contains what amounts to a stringer full of Florida variety largemouth bass. But, while the 28,000 pint sized versions of the big fish he let go at Beeswax Creek recently won't be ready to catch for some time, many of their brothers are already big enough to mount on a wall. For details on how to catch the big ones, see the sports section of this week's Reporter. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Fourth of July

On a serious level, the Fourth of July marks the nation's birthday -- a red letter date that draws meaning from passionate terms such as liberty, justice, and the pursuit of happiness. On a somewhat different level, the Fourth of July means a national holiday. And traditionally, that means fireworks. Getting warmed up for the big day (or night), fireworks salesman Johnny Sprouse put on a Roman candle display near his father's stand in Columbiana Monday. Don't ask for any triple-barrel candles though. The three shots of fire were created by a time-exposure. (Photo by David F. Moore)

Ambulances -- SMC seeking more for area

by Fred Guarino

Shelby Medical Center plans to improve ambulance service in Shelby County with or without the county's help.

Hospital officials appeared before the county commission Monday and made a stong pitch for placing and funding two new ambulances in the county.

The commissioners, however, made no commitment to go along with the plans.

Hospital planner Norman Price reported that while the county's death rate is less than the state average, it can be reduced if ambulance response time is improved.

He said that most heart attack fatalities occur within one hour of the start of symptoms.

With the present ambulances in Alabaster and Harpersville, he said response time from Lay Lake could exceed one hour.

Price suggested that in addition to present ambulance companies which split Shelby County for service, ambulances could be placed in Columbiana and in north Shelby near Oak Mountain State Park.

The cost of the new ambulances would be $200,000 and the operators would be subsidized until they could operate at a profit.

The board of directors asked that the county join the hospital in a joint venture on the project.

According to hospital administrator Roland Bradford, the ambulances would be leased to operators with a contract agreement.

Board member Pete Raughley reported that response time in Shelby County is terrible. He received support from Commissioner Jake Morris who said his own daughter had to lay in a street 46 minutes after an accident, waiting for an ambulance.

Chief Deputy James Jones threw his support to the cause, noting the occassional necessity of using out-of-county ambulances that didn't even know the quickest route to the hospital.

Lawmen cleared in brutality case

from staff reports

A federal jury in Birmingham has cleared two Shelby County lawmen of charges stemming from a 1981 jailhouse scuffle.

Following seven days of lengthy testimony, the jury returned last Wednesday, deliberated 30 minutes longer, and at 11 a.m. delivered a quick verdict of "not guilty." Two unsuccessful attempts at a verdict were made Friday, June 17, and the following Monday.

The $250,000 suit was filed by Vernon D. Johnson of Harpersville, who claimed that he received permanent damage to his vocal chords during the scuffle.

He charged that his civil rights were violated by Columbiana police officer Tom Carter and former Shelby County jailer Greg Barnett in the incident.

The jury, however, saw things differently.

Despite the quick verdict, Carter said the end of the trial did not come quickly enough for him.

"No one has any idea of the pressure that is on you after eight days in court," Carter told the Reporter, adding that he had lost out on a lot of work and pay by having to sit in court.

"You never know what a jury might do but I knew all along we had done nothing wrong."

The incident dates to January 11, 1981, when Barnett -- now with Helena police -- was checking Johnson out of the county jail following an arrest for intoxication.

Defense attorneys claimed that Johnson held Barnett at bay with a screwdriver. Carter responded to a radio call for help.

When Johnson would not drop the screwdriver, Carter said he wrestled him to the floor and held a flashlight to his throat until he let go of the potential weapon.

Johnson's suit alleged that Barnett called for help unnecessarily, and that Carter used illegal force by pinning him to the booking room floor with the flashlight.

Initially, the suit also named Sheriff Buddy Glasgow, deputy Sgt. James Mitchell, and the City of Columbiana, but those parties had been dropped from the suit by the end of the first week in court.

That Friday the jury deliberated for an hour and 15 minutes before asking to re-hear a portion of the depositions admitted as evidence.

The jury met for another hour Tuesday when it asked for some clarifications.

But Wednesday, the jury wasted no time.

Barnett said he was satisfied with his actions on the night of the incident.

"I just had faith in the jury and if the same situation were to raise tomorrow, I'd handle it the same way. I have no bad feelings about the way I handled the situation," he said.

Barnett would not comment for the record on any counter action against Johnson, but Carter said for his part, "It is being considered."

On the other side of the matter, Johnson indicated that he was intent on appealing the case.

"If I have to mortgage my house to get the money for an appeal," said Johnson, "and if I can get approval for an appeal, this case will be appealed."

The jury also taxed the court costs for the case to Johnson.

Dispatcher arrested

Alabaster Police Department dispatcher Shirley Bishop has been suspended from duty after being charged with two counts of attempted murder and one count of criminal mischief.

According to Police Chief Bull Carter, Bishop shot at two women driving by her home in the early morning hours on Sunday.

The dispatcher told him, Carter reported, that the women were harassing her.

Bishop shot through the windshield of the car with a .38.

The warrants for attempted murder were signed by Sharon Kirkland and Belinda Johnson. A warrant for criminal mischief was signed by Mary A. Green, owner of the car in which the two women were riding.

Bishop posted a $10,300 bond Monday.

Incoming school superintendent interviewed

Glasscox: tackle morale, 'be accessible'

by Marcia M. Sears

The first thing on the new superintendent of education's agenda is tackling morale problems.

Ellie Glasscox, who takes over as superintendent tomorrow (July 1) told the Reporter in an interview that morale and lack of cohesiveness between the public, the teachers, and the central office staff, are his first priority.

He said he is going to "listen to people and be accessible to them" as one means of improving morale. He pointed out that he campaigned on the slogan "Hardwork, teamwork, common sense," and he intends to follow through.

"Teachers must feel appreciated," he observed.

He said that improvement at all levels in the schools can come about through supervision. "Day-to-day, it's the principals who will have to get involved with supervising and observing what is going on in the classrooms," he said.

"Principals will have to assert themselves more to help improve the schools," he emphasized.

The guidelines he sets in the central office will be the minimum expected of each school, he said, and he will expect the principals and teachers to go well beyond those guidelines to create educational opportunities for students.

Glasscox provided the following answers to Reporter questions on these topics:

•Discipline: Principals and teachers have to spend too much time on discipline. The central office will have to give more help to free up the teachers for teaching.

You have discipline by teaching self-discipline and showing teachers how to handle and understand children better. It's not just a school problem, but a society-wide one.

We will also try to develop a Code of Conduct.

•Enrollment: We're holding our own. Elementary grades have fallen off, but the middle schools are increasing. Riverchase will be crowded, but we will leave the 6th, 7th and 8th grades there this year.

We will have basically the same number of teachers as last year. All the teachers at the new Inverness school will be transferred from within the system.

The biggest number of drop-outs occurs in the 8th and 9th grades. If we get them past the 10th we stand a good chance of holding them through graduation -- it's a matter of curriculum that will serve their needs.

•Vocational school: We have to keep up with modern technology and teach skills for which there are jobs. We hope to go more into computers.

•Drugs: We will teach more about drugs in the health classes that are required now. The biggest drug problem in our schools comes from the home health cabinets. Prescription drugs are in almost every household, and the children want to try them out.

•Maintenance: Maintenance is different on any two campuses. We will basically follow the same plan as last year. Maintenance technicians will report to the principal, and the experts in air conditioning and heating will work out of the central maintenance department.

•Central Office staff: We need job descriptions of the central staff, with maybe a few changes.

We need a personnel director who can go out and recruit the best qualified teachers and coordinate the employees. A lot of this has been left up to principals. This same director could also recruit the best lunchroom workers, bus drivers and support personnel.

•Athletic emphasis: The Reporter asked the former high school coach about the rumors that he would create a new position for athletics. His answer: "An athletic director is needed, but right now there are other priorities." He added that he has no plans to emphasize athletics any more than at present.

When it comes to recommending new staff members, "I would never recommend any person for a job unless he or she is the best qualified for that job."

•Finances: We are in dire need of bricks and mortar, we have overcrowding at two schools, and the heating and roofs are terrible at some schools. But the money for these things is not there.

Local county support is being spent on reducing the pupil-teacher ratio. Shelby County levies 12 mills of the ad valorem tax for the schools; Mountain Brook 35.

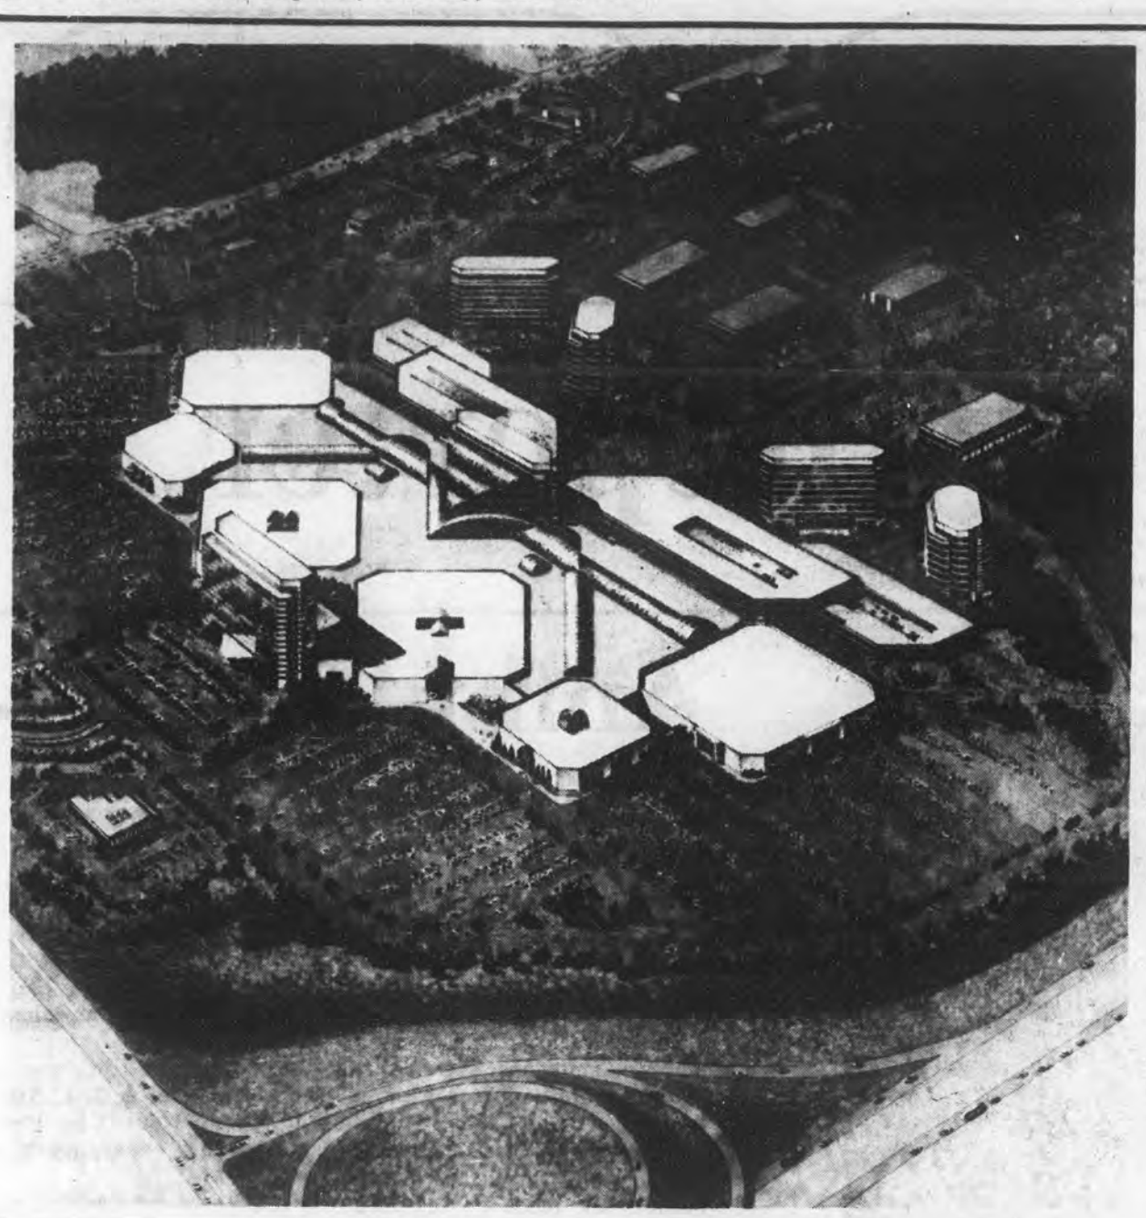

The half-cent sales tax is taking up the problems of proration.

ELLIE GLASSCOX

•Graduation exams: For the first time, 11th graders will take a graduation exam this fall. Those who don't pass can take it again in the second semester, and two more times in their senior year.

The statewide testing program (initiated during Fob James' administration) showed us where to emphasize, so it has been a big help.

Riverchase Galleria will be largest mall in Southeast

A new shopping mall that may have a strong influence on Shelby County's shopping patterns was announced in Birmingham Tuesday.

Called 'Riverchase Galleria' the mall will be located at the intersection of U.S. 31 and state 150, just north of the Shelby County line, and diagonally across the intersection from Loehmann's Village.

Developers say the project will be the biggest mall east of the Mississippi, and will have equals only in the Gallerias of Houston, Dallas, Toronto, and Milan, Italy.

A mall was in the original master plan for the Riverchase development and has been in the planning stages for over eight years, on the site of more than 150 acres.

Construction is scheduled to begin in October of this year, with an opening planned for the spring of 1986.

The first phase of construction will cost between $75 million and $100 million and will include four full line department stores, a hotel and office tower. As the market expands, five more office towers can be added.

Jim Wilson & Associates, Inc. of Montgomery and a group called 150 Mall Associates, headed by John and Bill Harbert, Ed Dixon, and Still Hunter are the major developers.

Two well known Birmingham stores, Parisian and Pizitz, have announced plans to be anchor department stores in the Galleria.

Jim Wilson predicts the mall will draw shoppers not only from the immediate area, but also from Huntsville and Montgomery, because of the interstate highway links.

The architectural firm for the project is Helmuth, Obata and Kassabaum, which has designed other gallerias, as well as the National Air & Space museum in Washington.

Spokesmen for the firm say they have designed the mall with a 1200 feet long 'Main Street' which will be covered with a central skylight. The psychological effect will return shoppers to an enjoyable pedestrian atmosphere.

The center will have 1.5 million square feet of retail shopping, and the hotel will have 350 rooms. The first office tower is designed with 150,000 square feet.

Developers predict that 3,000 permanent jobs will be created when the mall is complete, not counting the construction jobs.

Plans for the galleria were announced at an elaborate luncheon for more than 500 people at the Birmingham Civic Center.

At the luncheon, John Harbert briefly touched on the history of Riverchase, which extends far south into Shelby County. He mentioned that in the 60's Riverchase was 3,000 acres with several small coal mines.

With the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U.S. his construction firm planned and developed Riverchase as a total community with homes, businesses, offices, and recreation areas. 150 acres was set aside for the galleria.

Most of the business area of Riverchase is in Jefferson county, and most of the residential development is in Shelby County. The international headquarters of Harbert Construction Co. is located on the Shelby County side. The entire development is within the Hoover city limits.

County commission names first airport authority members

by Fred Guarino

Shelby County's new airport authority is finally off the ground.

The authority took off Monday morning when the county commission appointed the body's first official members.

That move in effect, put the authority in business.

While control of the present county airport was not turned over to the authority, it does have the power to create and control any new air facility.

Members of the board of directors will report to the commission and will be subject to recall, if control of the airport is ever turned over to the authority.

County commissioners elected the following authority members from a list of 30 nominees complied by commission chairman Tommy Snowden:

Richard Simpson of north Shelby, appointed to a four year term; G. Alvon Dampier of Riverchase, appointed to a six year term; Douglas H. Ballard of Montevallo, appointed to a two year term; Larry Lynn Miller of north Shelby, appointed to a six year term; and Bill Cobb of Saginaw, appointed to a four year term.

Other nominees who were in the running for membership to the authority were:

Robert W. Tucker, Jr.; Kenneth S. Griffis; Sherwood Stamps; Kermit Mathison; Jim Cocke;

R. C. Bob Norris; Sherman Holland; Jim Shubert; Jack Hoback; M. M. "Mac" Argo III; Ben Hartsell; Forrest Crim; Wane Booth; Horst Nelson; and Bill Knowles.

In moving for appointment of the authority members, Commissioner John Ames asked that the body be required to submit a master plan for the county's airport for one, five and ten years, and supply a review of federal grant applications.

He also asked that the members inform the commission if -- and on what time frame -- the present airport facility needs to be expanded.

Bill Knowles of Harpersville, a long-time critic of airport expansion, asked the commission to give 30-days advance notice of any actual authority given the body.

On a motion by Ames, the request was passed.

UM, Montevallo disagree over terms of gas maintenance

The city of Montevallo and the University of Montevallo still have not gotten together on a charge for maintaining meters and gas lines to the college.

At Monday's council meeting, Councilwoman Catherine Legg reported that the university thought the charge for whatever natural gas they used was to be included in a $600 monthly payment.

But the $600 charge the city proposed was for maintenance with any gas used to be over and above that amount.

Legg said she would send the university another letter restating the city's proposal.

If it is accepted, the charge will be retroactive to September 1982 when the university went off the city gas system.

At that time UM switched to a wood chip boiler as their fuel source. Previously, they had been the city's number one gas customer.

When the university turned down the city's first proposal of $1,100 a month to maintain the now-disused equipment, the city reduced the price to $600.

A concern over safety in parking in front of the city's new Parnell Memorial Library prompted the council to leave the yellow line there as it is.

The council had considered allowing a limited parking time. But a survey of traffic done by Police Chief Allen Needham showed that cars parked in that location would obstruct the view of drivers pulling out of the library parking lot.

A further concern was the possibility of children darting into the street from between the parked cars.

City Administrator Don Hughes mentioned that some decision would have to be made on the adoption of a leash law.

Councilman J.A. Brown noted that the passage of such an ordinance would make it a luxury to own a dog.

It has been estimated that the city would have to pay through the nose for enforcement.

Hughes had earlier given the council a $14,000 annual figure.

When work begins on next year's budget, Mayor Ralph Sears said the finance committee and public safety committee would have to decide if the city could afford a leash law.

Brown related that it appears that next year's budget will be 10% bigger than last year's which totaled $557,500.

Hughes added that the city may have to start charging for services such as garbage pickup, which are now provided at no charge.

Hot vehicles hold cold goods

They were hot crimes... over $230,000 worth of stolen vehicles and over $48,000 worth of stolen goods.

But the loot was very cold when Calera Police Investigator Billy O'Bryan and officers C.P. Martin and Rob Kiker recovered it.

What O'Bryan recovered off county road 310 in a vacant lot Thursday, June 16 was a truck loaded with over $38,000 worth of frozen meat stolen from E.S.P. meats in New Jersey.

What Martin and Kiker recovered, Saturday, June 18 was a truck loaded with over $10,000 worth of stolen watermelons.

The watermelon load was recovered off I-65. While no arrests were made in either case, O'Bryan said he has a suspect for the stolen meat.

The police investigator said that he thought something was wrong with the truck when he found it had an old tag bolted on with brand new screws.

He said a check of the tag came back "no file" on a police computer but the serial number of the truck showed that it was "hot."

Ames goes 1-1 with commission

County Commissioner John Ames wants Shelby County to have some solid guidelines for approving private liquor store licenses. He also wants a building permit bill for Shelby County to be passed by the state legislature.

Ames received support for the liquor store license guidelines at Monday's commission meeting, but had less success with the building permit bill.

With a second from Harold Davenport, the commission agreed to set up package store application guidelines.

The guidelines limit the stores to retail business areas, and set out certain size and security requirements. They also require that applications be sent to the sheriff for evaluation of the individuals involved, and for his comments on the proposed site.

But Ames received no support from the commission as a body concerning the controversial building permit bill.

Ames wants state legislators to strike parts of a proposed building permit bill for Shelby County that refer to residential or farm structures.

He also respectfully requested that State Representative Don Murphy refrain from voting on the matter because of a "conflict of interest".

Commissioner Jake Morris said that he would not approve the bill as it was written by Senator Spencer Bachus. He has been opposed to farm and residential applications of inspection requirements and building and electrical codes.

When Davenport asked Morris if he would support a bill excluding the farm and residential applications, the commissioner said, "I would have to look at it."

Davenport, however, did say that the commission needed a resolution to adopt the bill with the changes Ames suggested.

"If people are upset over residential and farm application, take them out," Davenport said. "The bill will bring in revenue but it will also give contractors some guidelines.

"Instead of seeing the whole bill killed, I go with the recommendations," Davenport concluded.

"There are a lot of people who don't want to be confused with the facts," Ames added. "The bill does allow registered architect inspections so there is no way Shelby County builders can hold up a major development."

"But," he stressed, "for small operators, we need a small department."

Ames said the senate would go along with the changes he suggested the house make in the bill.

Commissioner Leon Archer spoke in favor of the farm and residential applications of the bill as it stands.

He said, "I've got a faulty shower stall that's going to cost $250 to replace."

Davenport responded, "I agree but I'd hate to see us lose everything. But I think it is a dead issue."

Commissioners agreed that suggested changes in the building permit bill should be made by members of the body on an individual basis.

SMC projects wage raises

Shelby Medical Center employees will get a 4% raise this fall. The hospital board voted the increase at its meeting Tuesday night.

The board also voted to pay the increased cost of Blue Cross employee insurance, which will average about $46 a month for each person.

Gift appreciated

University of Montevallo President James F. Vickrey gives Carolyn Scott a kiss along with a gift at Sunday's dedication and open house of the new Alabaster library named for her late husband, Albert L. Scott. The Scott family donated the land on which the $300,000 library is built.

Ambulance request

Faye Hilton told commissioners that right now, Columbiana has no way of communicating with the hospital emergency room except through the sheriff's office.

Commissioner Harold Davenport asked Chairman Tommy Snowden to appoint John Ames and Jake Morris to a committee to study the situation.

He stated that the first input from the tax assessor will not come until August 1 and "We are afraid of what she is going to tell us. I don't think there is any question we would like to go along if we can financially.

Davenport also stressed that without the hospital's help earlier in this fiscal year, Shelby County could have been one half million dollars in the red.

Following the meeting, Bull Carter, chairman of the hospital board, told the Reporter, "We will probably go ahead with the plan anyway. We are committed."

On computers

Library has class

The purpose of a library visit is usually to find a good book.

However, young people have an additional reason for going to the Parnell Memorial Library in Montevallo.

On Fridays, in groups of eight, youngsters bypass the shelves and head for a room without any books.

In the room is a computer -- that piece of equipment that is beginning to appear in the classrooms of county schools, but until now, hasn't been in a local library.

But the library has been given an Apple IIe computer, and now holds one-hour classes on Fridays to instruct young people how to use it.

Reporting on the eagerness of youngsters in the Montevallo area to learn the basics, librarian Mamye Yarbrough said that there is already a waiting list for the classes.

Ky MacPherson, a Montevallo Middle School student who is familiar with the equipment, instructs the 8-10 year old class at 9:40 a.m. and the 11-13 year old group at 10:50 a.m.

Once young people know how to use the computer, they can reserve it for twenty minute periods.

The computer was also demonstrated for the 75 four and five year olds who participate in the library's summer reading program, Yarbrough said.

Even the young ones can use it, Yarbrough added, if their mothers are present and they have the librarian's assistance.

Any young person who would like to take one of the four session classes should call the library and sign up.

Class fees are applied to the purchase of more software.

Ky McPherson shows Kathy Weese how to use the new computer at Montevallo's Parnell Memorial Library during the first class session last week.

Alabaster rolls back police patrols

Alabaster has cut off police protection to part of its jurisdiction, including the Saginaw area. The city council voted unanimously to make the cut at its last meeting.

Fire protection to the area had previously been discontinued.

Charles Seales Jr. a Saginaw resident and community leader, stated that he felt the council's decision wouldn't effect the area at all.

"We have already established a volunteer fire department that is chartered with the state," Seales told the Reporter.

Furthermore, he said Saginaw already receives protection from deputy sheriff patrols.

The city's action also affects the west side of County 17 in the Brantleyville area, the east side of I-65 including the Saginaw Community, and about three miles along State 119 south of County 80.

Those areas also receive patrol protection from the county.

The city council's decision was made largely on the basis of the cost to the city.

"We decided there was no need for us to spend the city's taxes on people who were not in our jurisdiction," stated Mayor "Doc" Rubin.

Saginaw and the other areas previously within the jurisdiction, protested Alabaster's most recent attempts at annexing them.

Because of the Fourth of July holiday, the next Alabaster council meeting has been changed to 7 p.m., July 5.

Superintendent salary raises set

Incoming Superintendent of Education Ellie Glasscox will receive a starting salary of $43,000 with $1,000/year increases throughout his term.

That, plus a flat $2,400 yearly expense allowance, was approved by the county board of education Tuesday night.

Paul Sumner cast the only dissenting vote, later telling the Reporter the figure was too low.

Outgoing superintendent Charles Knowles makes $33,000/year plus $12,000 for expenses.

By law, the superintendent's salary must be set at the beginning of his term and cannot be changed while he is in office. However, in the past, the annual figure has remained the same for all four years.

In other action, the board approved Charlotte Lusco as principal of Thompson Middle School.

Lusco, the assistant principal at Riverchase, was one of 19 applicants interviewed for the position.

She replaces Mary Roach who retired this year.

Parker case settled

Arthur E. Parker of Alabaster was convicted of manslaughter in 1981 and sentenced to ten years in jail.

But an appeal resulted in that decision being reversed last year.

Prior to a second trial Monday, a settlement was reached which gives Parker six months in the Shelby County Jail with five years probation.

As a special condition of his probation, Parker must pay restitution in the amount of $5,400 to the victim's eight year old daughter.

The child was the only witness to the crime which took place at her home three years ago.

When he's released from jail, Parker is to pay $100 a month into a trust fund for the girl which will be available to her at the age of 18.

Parker was charged with murder following the slaying of Helen McCarter, but the jury returned a manslaughter conviction and he was sentenced to ten years.

What Does Jesus Teach?

Matt. 7:21-23 "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy by thy name, and by thy name cast out demons, and by thy name do many mighty works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity."

When King Saul obeyed and brought back animals, the best, to sacrifice to God, Samuel replied "Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams."

Under The Courthouse Dome

There are bats in the belfry of the Shelby County Courthouse.

County Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden was authorized Monday to hire Shelby County Pest Control to rid the courthouse of a reported bat infestation.

Snowden told commissioners that he became aware of the situation Sunday night when a bat made an unexpected landing in his office.

He said the bats needed to be eliminated because they could be rabid.

Also during Monday's County Commission meeting...

The county agreed to replace a damaged bridge near Wilton.

The commission voted to accept $10,000 worth of pipe donated by Central Alabama Paving, and to take bids on about $8,000 worth of additional pipe to replace the structure on County 73, south of State 25.

The bridge was closed by County Engineer Gary Ray last Friday after it cracked and dropped several inches at its center.

Ray reported that the structure was used by sand and gravel haulers and that he had been keeping a close eye on it.

He recommended that piping be used in the repairs.

Bids will be accepted July 11 and work is expected to begin in one month.

Valleydale Road may be closed for construction work at Inverness School and Inverness Apartments, but if that happens the public will be given a two week warning.

Ray told county commissioners that if it proves necessary, he will close a section of road there for turn lane construction about the third week in July.

He said changes the planning commission required at Inverness Apartments and the Apple Cross entrance may be carried out at the same time.

Traffic would be re-routed through the Inverness Parkway and only that section of road at the new school and the apartments would be closed.

* * * *

The commission authorized the employment of retired persons as gate tenders at the landfill.

* * * *

Also at the landfill, the county attorney will work out a contract agreement with John Woodall so that his recyling operation meets all requirements.

"Get some kind of contract and until you do, don't allow the set up of any operation," Commissioner Harold Davenport told him.

* * * *

Commissioners Leon Archer and Davenport (members of the county computer committee) were authorized to take bids on five new terminals and two printers. The bids will be opened July 11.

The commissioners also agreed to purchase an additional phone line for communications with the new Pelham Branch Office.

Snowden plans to have the new office open by July 11.

* * * *

Snowden was asked by commissioners to find out who will inform voters if they are to vote in new boxes.

* * * *

The erection of a petition to separate the executive director of the Department of Pensions and Securities from the rest of that office was approved.

* * * *

A request by County Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds to hire a fulltime clerk was tabled.

The position has been open since 1979 but Commissioner Jake Morris wanted to look into the situation before any new person is hired.

* * * *

Commissioners agreed that employees sent to heating and cooling repair schools must sign a 12-month work contract with the county, or reimburse it for the cost of the school.

Employees sent to the school will be provided tuition and mileage expense money by the county.

Many wonder when cheese will return

About 50 to 100 people are calling Columbiana every day, wondering if there will be any more free cheese giveaways.

Gladys Ross, of Community Action, the agency that handles the distribution of cheese to needy and unemployed residents in Shelby County, said she doesn't know the answer to that question. She said she has heard no word from the state on the arrival of more cheese and dried goods.

However, she did say that the agency that hands out the cheese tries to send it where unemployment rates are high. Ross added that Birmingham has cheese and is giving it out this week.

Ross said Shelby County usually gets cheese when Bibb County gets it, and neither have any now.

She said any information on the arrival of any cheese would be made available to the Reporter for publication.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

This and That: A letter from Doris Bush Crummie up Washington way. Doris finished school at the old Shelby County Training School when W.E. Jones was principal there. She's a Wilsonville girl who followed a dream up Yankee way and married and works in the big town. She's been reading my stuff all these years and, because of this, she offered to trace my family tree. That has already been done but I want to thank her anyway, not only for her offer, but for a lovely letter. Letters make this business something special.

A visit to see my boss, Karl Harrison, President of the First National Bank. Karl has had trouble with his eyes, but is better, but not out of the woods yet. We started out together 68 years ago in the Columbiana Public School and finished together at Shelby High in 1925. There are so few of us left that a fellow gets worried when something goes wrong. But he's better and back at work.

Herman Strong keeps having trouble with his eyes too. But he's on the mend and we plan to make our first trip to the blackberry patch one day next week. He's the guy who offered to pick berries for the nice big town lady for a nickle a berry.

A word of sympathy for Ben and Mary Skelton. Fred Skelton, Ben's brother, passed away in Gardendale. And a word of hope for Alvin and Francis Stinson, that both of them will be well again for years and years.

Amy and Bob Brown, from Mary Esther, Florida, are visiting their grandpa and grandma. They'll be here three or four weeks, and having them around is something pretty special for Amy and Milton Bird.

The rain keeps dodging my garden, the same as it has done many times. Next year I think I'll plant in January. I probably won't get my seed back but I'll get to see it actually rain on my garden.

The bluebirds came this spring and built in the little house. They toted grass and straw for days. But they are gone and the two little eggs are still in the nest. Curtis Sherman, who keeps my grass cut, accidently hit the post with the lawnmower. And that did it.

A letter in the mail from Lyla Cagle Norris. Lyla was one of my post office sweethearts years ago. She says her mother, Mrs. Essie Cagle, is out of the nursing home and staying with Lyda, another one of my sweethearts of yesteryear.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

Should a competent school teacher be paid more than the less competent? Or, should teachers with the same degrees and same amount of experience be paid precisely the same amount?

That is a question that is stirring up fierce debate in education on the local, state and national level. There is no doubt where the hawkish Alabama Education Association (AEA) stands on the issue of merit pay... of rewarding those teachers adjudged to be superior --- the AEA strenuously opposes such an approach.

Ms. Nancy Worley, AEA president, minced no words in her assessment of merit pay in her column in the current issue of the Alabama School Journal, the AEA's official voice.

She suggested that performance-based salaries "connote a medieval hierarchy of aristocratic rulers and subordinate servants." Noting that administrators would have to make personal judgments about the value or merit of teachers, Mrs. Worley posed the question: "Do the administrators who would make these decisions have the impartiality and merit to judge us fairly?

Having asked that question she then answers it emphatically. She suggested that teachers rewarded would be those who "gossip" to the principal or who tattle on their colleagues... who are "young and beautiful/handsome"...who "buddy around" with the principal... who attend the "right" church... who are the "right" color... who wear the "right" clothes.

Ms. Worley's strong stand underlines the feelings felt by many teachers on the subject of "merit pay"---namely, how does one make a determination on competency?

The debate over merit pay and performance-based salaries is likely a moot question in Alabama, despite the attention it is getting. There is no way the current Alabama Legislature---dominated as it is by the AEA---would impose such a plan in this state.

Odds and Ends --- An update on the health of Gov. Wallace, which was the subject of this column a couple of weeks ago --- he continues to improve, his spirits are better than they have been since early in the 1982 campaign. Forget the talk about resignation....

Sen. Larry Dixon of Montgomery has joined a suit seeking to force the State Democratic Executive Committee to hold special primary elections this fall for the legislative seats. His involvement in the litigation is admittedly self-serving---if the SDEC handpicks the Democratic nominees, which it seems certain to do, Sen. Dixon knows for sure he will not be the nominee.

The flags are a gift to the city from the Chamber of Commerce. They were made available to the chamber by Dixie Decorations, a Montevallo firm. Previous pastor praises Pope

Letter to the Editor:

The writer is proud to be a native Shelby Countian. While he presently resides in a neighboring state, there are many experiences related to his frequent trips back to his nesting place that make each a sentimental journey.

Whether it is standing on the banks of the meandering Cahaba hard by a venerable old country church yard (such as Thomas Gray must have known when he wrote his immortal Elegy) or gazing upon the heights of old Double Oak, I am still overcome with nostalgia.

Now my reason for writing to the editor. There is no mismanagement in the courthouse that I care to address! No grievance on the political scene that I care to complain about. Rather, let me lift a doxology in praise of one for whom many non-Catholics in general and not a few Protestants in particular have come to have a genuine admiration and regard.

The brave stance taken by John Paul as he confronts the adversaries of religion and morality in his dear Poland has been that of a courageous Christian statesman. His homilies have been spoken with a forthrightness reminiscent of the 16th century Reformers, and well within the apostolic tradition of truth and justice.

When His Holiness declares that it is not God's will that the human spirit in its timeless thrust for freedom should be repressed, then his words lend fresh encouragement to millions the world over who are freedom-starved and down-trodden for truth's sake.

May the solemn truths contained in this good man's words not be lost on the power-mad Jaruzelskis, nor yet be misunderstood by those whom they have misled.

President remembers Independence Day

On the Fourth of July we celebrate the birth of our nation and those brave and patriotic Americans who signed the Declaration of Independence and pledged their lives and fortunes to the cause of freedom 207 years ago.

Today, the document that ignited the flames of liberty remains a symbol of our founding principles for people around the globe.

As Abraham Lincoln wrote, "the Declaration of Independence...gave liberty not alone to the people of this country, but hope to all the world, for all future time. It ...gave promise that in due time the weights would be lifted from the shoulders of all men, and that all should have an equal chance."

The inspired men who signed the Declaration dreamed bold dreams about what the new nation would become, believing that a people could accomplish whatever they imagined if left to pursue their dreams without interference from an oppressive government.

Our forefathers seized the opportunity freedom provided and built this great land of hope and prosperity. Today we honor their heroic spirit and the ideas that changed the world.

As we enjoy this traditional holiday, let us reflect on our blessings and all the good things about life in these United States. Tom Paine once wrote that "Not a place upon earth might be so happy as America." For all our fellow Americans, Nancy and I wish happiness always.

Ronald Reagan

Nation turns 207

by Congressman Richard Shelby

Two hundred and seven years ago, in Philadelphia, 56 Representatives met in Congress under the leadership of Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin and John Adams to declare their independence from colonial rule. That declaration forged the beginning of democracy in the modern world; proclaimed the subordination of political authority to the rights of man and set new aspirations for a civilized society.

Our Nation was founded not on a feeling of nationalistic fervor, but on principles which our Founding Fathers felt were inherent in human rights: freedom, justice, liberty and equality.

These rights coupled with our democratic form of governament and the resourcefulness of the American people have produced unparalleled progress for our Nation. Our achievements have created a standard of living our ancestors could not even dream of. These same principles must be put to work for us today and in the future.

The future holds many great challenges that will test both us and generations to come. The experiences from the past will help us face our problems and solve them. Let us go forward utilizing the principles upon which our country was founded 207 years ago and meet these challenges.

As we celebrate the birthday of our great Nation, we all must work together harder than ever before to overcome any obstacle this country faces so that future generations can proudly say that our land is still the land of the free, and our home is still the home of the brave. It takes continued caring, time, and involvement with others to raise our United States to the level of our forefathers dreamed of.

The meaning of this day is special for I am proud to be a part of our American Government, here in our Nation's Capitol City, representing the Seventh Congressional District of Alabama.

Pelham families get together

by Carolyn Smiley

Many people today would say the family unit is a part of the past. But members of Pelham United Methodist Church are working to improve that situation.

Sponsored by the Family Life Ministries Committee, 39 families from the Pelham church participated last weekend in a family retreat held at Rolling Hills Campground in Camp Branch.

The activities, programs, and recreation were scheduled in an effort to bring the families closer together.

The weekend's activities began on Friday evening with a program by guest speaker Reverend Reid Crotty from Helena Methodist Church. Crotty spoke on the characteristics that Christian families needed to develop.

Saturday, the families worked together in small groups to develop their "Code of Arms," a symbol of their family strengths.

This activity was especially popular with many of the men, some of whom spent up to two and three hours cutting and pasting felt to create an artistic representation of their family.

The families demonstrated their various talents on Saturday evening with entertainment by "Pelham on the Road." By dressing as such well known entertainers as Minnie Pearl and Harry Truman, many of the members sang and played musical instruments in an entertaining performance that was enjoyed by all.

After the entertainment, a unique campfire communion service was held to further family unity.

Besides the planned programs, there was plenty of time for family recreation and relaxation. Swimming, fishing, softball, canoeing, dominoes, and horseshoeing were among the many activities enjoyed.

All of these activities, and particularly the recreation, were the essential theme of the retreat, according to church pastor David Wallace.

"I think it is very important for a church to recognize a need for the family to spend time together in recreation as well as worship," Wallace said. "Ministry time is communication and togetherness."

Wallace emphasized that just about every type of family unit and age group was represented, and that the retreat provided opportunities for them to spend time together. "It makes us take time," Wallace said.

Mary Martin, one of the directors of the retreat, said, "The unanimous opinion was -- we've got to do it again."

Jim King, president of Chambers, King & Meade, Inc., announced record breaking sales for the first five months of 1983.

He said the real estate company sold more than $53 million of residential homes through May, an increase of 61% over the same period in 1982. The company also listed $80 million of residential property for sale during the same period, an increase of 38%.

King said the increase was due to the improving economy, lower mortgage rates, and the fact that his company has reorganized and expanded.

CKM has six offices in Jefferson County and one office in Shelby County at Pelham.

Briarcliff woman reaches 91

ARRIE MC ELROY

The last time Arrie McElroy walked to church on her own two legs was in 1959.

On a fateful Sunday evening in March of that year, McElroy was hit by a car as she stood on the steps of Thomas Mill Baptist Church near Six Mile.

She lost a leg in the accident.

But it wasn't enough to keep the faithful churchgoer from attending services.

Now 91, the Maylene woman makes her way to services at Briarcliff Nursing Home in a wheelchair.

Until she became a resident at the Alabaster facility, McElroy was a member of Ryan's Baptist Church.

Family members visited her over the weekend to celebrate her birthday, which was June 27th.

She has six children, 24 grandchildren, 47 great grandchildren and 16 great great grandchildren.

Prior to her accident, she had a career as a midwife and delivered well over 100 babies.

She and her husband had celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary just three months before his death in June, 1969.

Culvert put in

A story in last week's issue concerning a blocked road in Pelham said that the state had been responsible for putting in a slab so emergency vehicles could cross Pea Vine Creek.

However, it was a culvert off Hwy. 31 (the second one past the entrance of Larry's Mobile Homes), the state installed so emergency vehicles could reach the area via a dirt road.

Night patrol sheds light on game warden's life

by Fred Guarino

The full moon is all but hidden by clouds. A cool wind sways the limbs of trees and causes ripples to appear on the surface of the dark water. At such times, the Coosa River becomes a not so inviting place to be.

Too... the life of a game warden becomes something quite different than one would expect.

* * * *

I always imagined that a conservation officer, or game warden, lived the "life of Riley."

I figured they rode around in those green Alabama Conservation Boats and drove those pickups with a state emblem on the side. They were always outdoors where deer, turkey, squirrel and fish abound, and I thought they probably went fishing or hunting whenever they wanted.

I also pictured conservation officers as easy going folk who occasionally trouble themselves to make an arrest.

Last Thursday I rode along with conservation officer Doyle Wood on a night patrol on the Coosa. My misconceptions disappeared.

After stopping briefly for gasoline, Wood and I launched the Glassmaster patrol boat from Walker's Cove.

The private spot, located between Wilsonville and Columbiana, was quiet as night fell. The only sounds were those made by Wood as he checked out his running lights, then hit the starter on the 140-horsepower engine.

The game warden warned me that this detail would be a slow one. In our 50-mile trip from the cove to Martin Dam and back, we might not see a soul.

Steam plant rises

The Wilsonville steam plant rises into view on the Coosa River. (Photos by Fred Guarino)

"When you work the river at night, there's no need to be in a hurry," he said.

He reasoned that there would be no gas stations to refuel us and that there would be stumps and tree tops in the river which could tear the bottom out of a speeding boat.

"What we'll probably be seeing are people without fishing licenses, some people violating safety violations, and some boat operators without their registration stickers."

...maybe some illegal dynamiting or even telephoning of fish.

He added the possibility of seeing illegal commercial fishing operations, maybe some illegal dynamiting or even telephoning of fish.

The last two are methods of stunning fish either by blast or electric shock to make them float to the top of the water.

Illegal commercial fishing involves the use of nets to catch fish for sale. According to Wood, you can't use a net in any place where salt water or hybrid stripe are stocked -- such as the Coosa.

Wood said most commercial fishermen on the Coosa dump their catches in Guntersville, where they're shipped on to Tennessee.

He assured me that commercial fishing details are well organized stakeout work. It was something we would not be doing tonight.

As we cruised up river towards the Wilsonville steam plant, I noticed the boat was not equipped with a two-way radio. I wondered how we could call for help if we needed it, and asked Wood if there were any dangers to this kind of work.

"You never know," he said. "You might run up on someone wanted by the law for something other than fishing without a license, or someone might run over you with a boat, or shoot at you...

"If we had a radio, there would be no one to hear us, except maybe the Childersburg Police, and they wouldn't have the equipment to come get us."

Shoot at you? The words were stuck in my mind...

"I've had to do a lot of talking in my time," he laughed, "but most people are good sports."

Did he ever let violators go?

"Naw... if he's violating the law, I'm going to give him a ticket. Let him have his day in court.

"My job is to enforce the law equally. When you become judge, jury and executioner, you can't do you job anymore. If you are going to make arrests, do it! If not, get out of the business!"

Then "there's always that few you can arrest 50 times and they are still going to violate the law."

As it worked out, Doyle has been a conservation officer for 16 years. This Friday marks his anniversary with the conservation department.

The steam plant rose into view, its lights blinking against the dark sky.

"A lot of folks don't know how much they've got," Wood said of the outdoors. "There is water, an abundant supply of game and fish, and all of it is well balanced."

We made a side trip check up the darkened Yellow Leaf Creek.

Wood said he was glad to have some company. Without a radio or gas stations, and with no one in sight to help when and if we broke down, I could see his point.

Back on the river, Wood asked if I had a chance to eat before we left. I said no and looked dejectedly out across the water.

"Childersburg's coming up ahead," said. "We can stop at the River Terrace if you want..."

An offer I couldn't refuse! But getting there was something of an adventure.

After finding a barely acceptable place to tie off near the Coosa River Bridge, we had to climb through briars and vines, and over logs in the dark.

But the coffee, giant bacon cheese hamburger, and French fries I ordered at the restaurant made it all worth while.

Wood sipped coffee. "Like I said, there's no need to hurry at night."

I saw what night patrol was really about after the short break, as we continued up river toward Logan Martin Dam.

At various points, we came across camp sites, shacks, old busses converted into homes, and some strange vehicles in very unlikely and uninviting places.

The places were spaced miles apart, in what seemed nowhere. Wood wondered aloud about the kind of folk who would use these habitats.

In some places strings of lights flashed out as we arrived, only to turn on again as we continued by. It gave an evil air to the river.

I felt like we were passing a pirate's cove each time we came across one of the places. Supplies seemed to be strewn about and life seemed very primitive.

Wood made me feel even more uncomfortable when he pointed out the suspected operations base of an illegal commercial fishing outfit.

We moved slowly to avoid stumps in the water...

As we neared Logan Martin Dam, we moved slowly to avoid stumps in the water. That's when I heard laughter and saw some lights.

On the right side of the river was one of those strange habitats with a few lights strung outside. On the left, a small white light bobbed on the water below a train trestle over the river.

"Is that a boat?"

"Yes," Wood replied softly. "We want to check it out."

Wood flashed his blue warning light as we moved closer, and the scene suddenly reminded me of the boat on the river in the movie "Apocalypse Now."

Here were lights, voices and laughter -- but something seemed sinister about the place.

A man in a small boat held the end of a trot-line in his hand. The boat appeared unfit for water travel in the dark, and his only light was a small bulb hooked to a battery.

But the man proved friendly enough. He was

On patrol

Doyle Wood runs night patrol to catch illegal fishermen.

Earl Edwards Godwin of Leeds, and he had had a bad day.

The water pump in his car had burned out on his way to the river, and once he got there, he had nothing but soap with which to bait his line.

"My mother wanted me to catch her a mess of fish but I don't think it's worth it," he said. "I'm going in."

Further up river, we stopped another boat occupied by Billy Hartzog of Talladega and a couple of other people. Again they were friendly.

After turning around just shy of Logan Martin Dam, we stopped our third boat. It's operator was also running a trot-line on the river.

This time it was Billy Hartzog, Jr. He talked a while about the illegal fishing in the area, and said that some day he wanted to be a game warden.

Everyone we stopped at first seemed apprehensive about our sudden appearance in the dark. Some were cited for improper lights, or not enough life perservers -- all basic safety violations. But they all seemed to be good people just out to catch a mess of midnight fish.

But, I wondered to myself, what if they had not been friendly? What if you were alone? What if any number of things happened?

That's when I began to change my mind about game wardens. There was no glamour or fun... at least not on a night detail.

A game warden could leave his wife for a night run on the river, come up on something or someone unexpected, and never return home.

I wondered about these things in the early morning hours on the Coosa.

Wood broke my thoughts with comments about the five-hour patrol, the 12 gallons of gas we used, and the two small fines he had written.

"This has hardly been a big night," he said.

Coaches clinic draws top names to UM

The Coca-Cola All-American Coaches Clinic (July 8-10) will bring hundreds of coaches from across the southeast to Montevallo.

Boosters really cook to raise funds

Most parents spend summer months relaxing in the sunshine at poolside or beaches.

But, according to Lamoine Bramblett, Pelham High Athletic Booster parents took advantage of a local land auction to raise nearly $2,000 for next year's budget.

On June 22, PHS Boosters set up concessions for the "Whispering Pines" auction in West Shelby County. The home, cattle, equipment and 690 were sold in a one day absolute auction. Prospective buyers came from all over the south.

Pee Wee Burgess contacted Coach Billy Tohill and asked if the club was interested in preparing food for 1000 to 1500 hungry buyers. The Boosters replied "Why not?"

Their menu consisted of barbeque pork, baked beans, doughnuts and coke and tea to drink.

Men of the club cooked 854 lbs. of pork over a hickory fire for 14 hours. Chief barbeque chef was Dale Dunnaway.

A shuttle operation kept concessions moving to the remote location throughout the day in pickup trucks.

By day's end, auction goers had consumed 125 gallons of iced tea, 290 liters of Coke (with 2000 lbs. of ice), 1000± barbeque sandwiches, several hundred bags of chips and about 200 barbeque plate lunches.

Chairmen for the fundraiser were: Cathy Clayton, Betty MacWilliams, Linda Scott, Judy Hayes, Lamoine Bramblett, and Barbara Lovelady.

Thirty booster families donated their time and energy and local merchants made generous donations to make the day a success.

Karate kids breeze way to top, take black belts in just over year

Instructor Karen Mitchell says it takes the average adult a year to earn a red belt -- the next to the highest step in Karate advancement.

But two Montevallo youngsters who began taking lessons from her just over a year ago, have already reached the pinacle of Karate by earing their black belts.

Mitchell attributes the rapid advancement of nine-year old Rachael McKinney and ten-year old Shane Hay to "dedication."

"They have worked unbelievably hard," she said.

As proof of Shane's hard work, he has won five 1st place trophies in regional competition.

Rachel has won six trophies in regional competition -- two 1st's and four 2nd's. She won a 1st and two 3rds at the Grand Nationals.

A spirit award given to Rachael this month also points up her championship attitude. The presentation was made for not missing a class or tournament.

Her parents are Susan and Don Vance. Shane is the son of Ken and Cheryl Hay.

Explaining the hard work the students must put in, Mitchell, an instructor in Taekwondo Karate, said that two hours of daily practice is required in addition to the twice a week classes.

From the novice, who wear's a white belt (to hold up the pants), students progress through advancement stages signified by yellow, green, blue, red and black belts.

Each belt also has four degress with eight for black belt and a final honorary degree.

Rachael McKinney and Shane Hay of Montevallo demonstrate the form that earned them their black belts in Tekwondo Karate is just a little over a year.

Alabaster Cardinals win in hot one

The major league Cardinals are the champions of Alabaster Dixie Youth baseball.

However, the championship was not notched until a lip biting, thumb twisting game between the Cardinals and the Orioles came to a dramatic 3-2 sixth inning close.

The Orioles, champions of the season first half jumped out to an early 2-0 lead.

But that lead evaporated when Terry Geeslin, pitcher for the second half champion Cardinals, belted the horsehide across the center field fence in the bottom of the second inning and another Cardinal runner scored.

In the final inning of regular play, the Orioles saw their last turn at bat come to a close with two men stranded on base. Their only hope was to hold off the Cardinals for a chance in extra nnings.

But the Cardinals got two men of their own on base and Dexter Montgomery slapped a base hit to short and drove in the winning run.

The Orioles were coached by Wayne Bunn and Mike Barefoot during this past season and Bunn will serve as the official scorekeeper for the state tournament to be held in Alabaster, July 31.

The Cardinals were coached by Mike Duke and Jerry Palmer. The two will serve as coach of the Alabaster All-Star team in the tournament.

Montevallo Cardinals win major league title

The Montevallo Dixie Youth major league Cardinals finished the baseball season with a 12-3 record and a number one title.

But that wasn't all the glory earned by the team this year.

In the last game of its season, the team's ace pitcher Greg Dailey pitched a perfect no hitter in a 7-0 contest with the Dodgers.

Dailey gave up no hits, walked no one and struck out eight of 19 batters in the six inning bout.

Coached by Wayne Davis and Jimmy Jones, other members of the champion Cardinals include: Todd Davis, Barry Thomas, Terance Peoples, Cody Jones, Michael Allen, Jeff Roper, Albert Jones, Patrick Thomas and Scott Van Ness.

PHS seeks $75,000 in field house donations

Pelham High School is out to raise $75,000 in order to construct a new athletic field house before the 1983-84 school year begins.

According to Robert Gardner, chairman of the campus improvement council, ten donations amounting to $17,500 have already been received from various individuals and businesses.

According to Gardner, individuals making donations include: Gardner, Bobby Hayes, Neal Bailey, Larry Clayton, Billy W. Bramblett, Jim King and Dr. Harvey G. Coker.

These supporters of the high school challenge others to contribute to the cause.

Sports scheduled events

Indian Springs School coach Ray Woodard will conduct a youth soccer clinic at Samford University July 18-22.

Florida... ah yes, one of the nicest places around to just kick up your heels and enjoy the sunshine, the seafood, the ocean, the cable TV and more than anything... the view.

And that's just what I did last week, along with my beach buddies, Regina Stephens and Susan Parker of Pea Ridge.

Other Montevallo folks enjoying the beach last weekend were Mary Ann Parker, and her son, Jon, and Judy Gentry and her son, Kevin.

After putting a new oil indicator, then a new fuel pump, new belts, and finally a new water pump on my car, (in 4 days time) we made it there and back safely, thanks to dear ole dad!

HOW TO KEEP COOL AND SAFE IN THE COMFORT OF YOUR HOME.
Heat stress is a common problem among the elderly, diabetics and those with medical problems.
It can usually be prevented through some practical and easy measures.
Like keeping fans running. They cost so little to operate. Drinking cool liquids. Avoiding hot and heavy meals. And taking cool baths and showers.
And, of course, opening the windows in your home when the air conditioning is not in use.
The Alabama Commission on Aging, in cooperation with Alabama Power, is making window vent locks available so you can raise your windows to a safe height. This invites only summer breezes, not intruders.
And keeps your house at a safe temperature.
Senior Citizens should call this toll-free number, 1-800-468-0953, for more information about heat stress and window vent locks for your home.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY UNION

L.M. BERRY AND COMPANY

Office development comes to New Hope Mt.

L.M. Berry and Company's new $3.8 million office building will be the second structure to go up in Meadows Business Center off U.S. 280 in north Shelby.

Construction on a national headquarters for the Women's Missionary Union is already well underway on 25 acres of the Meadows development site atop New Hope Mountain.

L.M. Berry and Company, advertising agents for South Central Bell's yellow pages, is consolidating a five-state production operation into its planned 50,000 square foot facilty.

Located on a ten-acre site, the building will also house the company's South Central Area Headquarters and operations for the state.

Two-hundred sixty employees now working in offices scattered throughout the Birmingham area will move to the three-story facility which is scheduled for completion in February, 1984.

When work began on the WMU building in late November, it was anticipated that it too would be completed early next year.

However, an architectural change in the plans has moved that date back to June, 1984.

According to June Weatherford, Associate Executive Director of the 1.1 million member organization, "We found that changing the design of the structure from round to rectangular would be more cost efficient."

The Women's Missionary Union, which is an auxiliary of the Southern Baptist Convention, purchased 25.4 acres on the ridge.

At the present the WMU offices are located on 20th Street in Birmingham. When it moves to Meadows Business Center, approximately 130 employees will occupy the three story building now under construction.

The Birmingham construction firm of Brasfield Gorrie Inc. has the contract for both buildings.

C.W. "Bill" Daniel, who is developing Meadows Business Center, said no other immediate plans are on the drawing board for the 122-acre site, although other negotiations are under way.

Civil War cemetery in Shelby gets new lease on historic life

A cemetery in Shelby containing graves pre-dating the Civil War has fallen into disrepair over the years.

But three Shelby County men have recently taken it upon themselves to clean up the burial site and see that it is maintained.

With that goal in mind, Jerry Willis, Kenneth Moore, and Gary Pate formed a non-profit corporation known as the Old Shelby Iron Company Cemetery Preservation Society.

Willis is president, Moore chairman, and Pate vice-president.

According to Willis, some cash contributions have already been received and services and materials have been donated.

"We expect, as more people learn about the project, to develop widespread county interest," he told the Reporter.

Describing the location of the cemetery, Willis said that it is just behind the site where the old red brick "Company Store" for Shelby Iron Company stood until recent years.

Some of the graves are those of Civil War soldiers, Willis said.

The unmarked graves that were found after the initial clearing began will be filled in and marked as funds and material become available.

Any donations are tax deductible.

For further information, Willis may be contacted at 669-9658. His mailing address is: Rt. 1, Box 662, Wilsonville, AL 35186.

GET ALL SEASON VERSATILITY SEASON AFTER SEASON

Sunglasses to earmuffs. As you change for the season, so will your SNAPPER garden tractor. This durable performer offers you a wide variety of optional attachments for every season of the year.

The powerful PTO driven rear tiller cuts 36" to 48" paths with ease. The garden tool kit has almost everything a good gardener needs: A superior hard ground plow, middle buster, harrow, cultivator and rear dozer blade. Other garden accessories include a hauling tray, spring cultivator, and sweep cultivator. That's versatility!

You can even cut a large lawn down to size with SNAPPER's "trim line" mower. Three overlapping blades cut up to a 54" wide path with no streaking. The huge Vac-N-Pac catcher vacuums clippings, leaves and other debris.

All these options makes SNAPPER one of the most versatile lawn tractors available today.

So see your SNAPPER dealer now and get a jump on the seasons.
